Scope and Content of the Collection
Includes more than 2,550 Penguin books published from 1935 through 1965, listed in the Container List below. Also includes about 175 reference items–books, serials, catalogs, and articles. This finding aid includes two essays about Penguin publishing and contents of the collection. Seven appended tables summarize Penguin series, list, index the reference items, and show design sequences and variations.

The Classic Period: 1935-1965

Penguin Books as a publishing firm was the brainchild of Allen Lane, who in 1935 was the Managing Director of The Bodley Head. The Bodley Head was a reputable publishing house, well known in the 1890s for its avant-garde publishing of Oscar Wilde, Aubrey Beardsley, et al. Lane, faced with slumping sales and a serious financial squeeze was familiar with successful paperback publishing on the Continent (notably Tauchnitz Books and the attractive, color-coded Albatross Books). He dreamed up the idea of carefully-selected, well-designed, low-priced paperbacks for British readers and, as it turned out, for export to the world. The first 10 books were issued in July 1935 and were immediately successful, despite dire prophecies by others and considerable resistance by some hardback publishers. Groups of 10 followed every three months or so. Lane was joined by two of his brothers, Richard and John, and a small staff. By the end of 1936 The Bodley Head was in danger of bankruptcy. Therefore, Lane converted Penguin Books to a personal venture to avoid its being caught by creditors.

In 1937 two significant series were added: Pelican Books (non-fiction titles) and Penguin and Pelican Specials (devoted mainly to current issues, and especially the rising threat of fascism in Spain, Germany and Italy). Other series followed. By the outbreak of World War II in September 1939, Penguin was well established. Its large paper usage entitled it to a sufficiently large paper ration, which put it in the forefront of paperback publishing during the war. This led to special series and arrangements for getting books to the troops. Other series aimed at providing the civilian population recreational and educational reading matter were ambitiously added or beefed up. Penguin Books was hard hit by the loss of key senior personnel to military service and had its new quarters west of London commandeered by the Air Force. But the firm managed to maintain a remarkable wartime output. This, in turn, fed back to the benefit of sales after the War, since so many new readers had become exposed to and often addicted to Penguins during these momentous years.
The post-war period naturally saw fresh expansion. The number of first editions increased as well. Several influential series prospered. Pivotal to these series were a group of notable senior managers/editors, some of whom are briefly identified here:

Allen Lane. The dominant entrepreneurial director until his death in 1970. Lacking a university education, Lane had a feel for what would sell and had a knack for hiring able lieutenants. In later years in particular he would let most of the decisions be made by his senior staff and would often be absent for extended periods. But he kept his finger on critical developments and dominated the broad policies by which the firm operated. In the end he became a very wealthy man, but in earlier years he and his brothers scrambled to stay solvent.

Richard and John Lane. These younger brothers were vital managers in the 1930s. Richard functioned as a sort of finance officer. He served as a naval officer in WWII. In 1955 he took over the Penguin operation in Australia. In the 1960s he sold his shares in Penguin to Allen and pulled out of further management. John, the youngest brother, specialized in sales and exports. He, too, was a naval officer who was killed during the North African landings.

Eunice Frost. From a sort of office manager she evolved into the fiction editor and handled a wide range of editorial matters relating to various series.

A. S. B. Glover. With an encyclopedic mind, Glover became the overall fact-checking editor. There are many anecdotes about his queries to authors on matters presumably within the authors’ competencies--with Glover proving to be right.

John Lehmann. Lehmann had been involved in a variety of roles before agreeing to edit Penguin New Writing series in 1940. He had been manager of the Hogarth Press, had edited earlier versions of New Writing, and had wide literary connections. The 40th and last issue was published in 1950.

E. V. Rieu. Rieu became the long-time editor of the Penguin Classics series, featuring fresh translations. Rieu himself translated the first title in the series, The Odyssey, which has reportedly sold 3 million copies at last count.

Nikolaus Pevsner. Pevsner served as the indefatigable editor of three Penguin series. In 1943 he picked up the editorship of the King Penguin series after Elizabeth Senior was killed in a London bombing. In 1951 his first volume in the Buildings of England series was published. There were to follow 45 volumes, the last in 1974, almost all of which were in fact written by Pevsner. It was a prodigious feat of field work/scholarship/writing. In 1953 he launched the Pelican History of Art series, a distinguished hard-cover series somewhat unusual for Penguin. The series continued until 1992 when it was taken over by the Yale University Press.

Eleanor Graham and Kaye Webb. These two women edited the Puffin Story Books, Graham from 1941 to 1961 and Webb from 1961 to 1979. Webb in particular was responsible for rejuvenating the series and promoting the Puffin Book Club among young readers.

Tony Godwin. A highly successful bookseller, Godwin joined the senior editorial group in 1960 with a focus on strengthening Penguin’s contemporary fiction offerings. He was responsible for establishing the Penguin Modern Classics subseries in 1961 and The English Library series in 1965. After differences with Lane, he was fired in 1967.

The wide publishing scope and the attempts by new senior staff to update editorial and design policies inevitably led to considerable internal differences and friction. Lane and the old-timers wanted to maintain traditional standards of content and taste, while newer editors, led by Tony Godwin, wanted Penguin to catch up with contemporary literary developments. Lane was still insistent on what had by now become fairly traditional covers—which, indeed, helped make Penguins distinctive. The 10 or 15 years up to 1965 witnessed a certain duality: most books continued to follow a traditional but evolving design, while some bore clear marks of experimentation.

A Summary View of the Books Published 1935-1965

During its first 30 years, Penguin published more than 5,000 titles in Britain. An additional 300 or so appeared in special World War II series for the armed forces, mainly duplicating titles published in regular Penguin series. Another 265 titles were published as American Penguins in the United States.

In the beginning Penguin Books merely secured reprint rights to titles already published elsewhere. But starting in 1937 with the Pelican series, the Penguin Specials series and the Shakespeare series, a few first editions emerged. This number increased year by year. A rough estimate for the 30-year period suggests about 45% of the titles were first edition and 55% were first Penguin printings of books first published elsewhere.
Once underway, Penguin Books produced a very large number of separate series. Indeed, in the 30-year period there were:

- 80 different series
- 9 different color codes in the main series (for types of literature--e.g., fiction, mystery & crime, biography & memoirs, etc.).
- 11 different color codes in Penguin Classics (for countries of origin--e.g. Greece, Rome, France, Scandinavia).
- 4 different color codes and, following, 4 different cover symbols in American Penguin series (for types of literature).
- 29 subseries (within regular series, usually identified on cover and/or short-title page--e.g., Penguin Modern Classics, Pelican History of England, Penguin Modern Poets).

This amounts to a total of some 133 identifiable book sequences published by Penguin Books during the period 1935-1965. The first and main Penguin series, consisting mainly of fiction but also serving as an omnibus series, includes an estimated 2,400 titles. The successive series with the most titles published between 1935 and 1965 follow:

- Pelican Books (mainly non-fiction). 763 titles.
- Forces Book Club (12 installments, 10 titles each). 120 titles.
- Puffin Picture Books (larger format, for children). 119 titles.
- Penguin Handbooks (on wide range of subjects). 118 titles.
- Prisoners of War Book Service (number estimated). 100 titles.

Additional notable series include:

- King Penguins. 76 hardbound titles 1939-1959. Originally sold for 1 shilling, each volume included at least 16 color plates. Became very collectible.
- Pelican History of Art. 24 hardbound titles 1953-1965. (Series continued, with introduction of paperback editions in 1970.)

Nine of the Penguin series were distinctive in being periodicals including:

- Penguin New Writing. 40 issues 1940-1950.
- Transatlantic. 34 issues 1943-1946. A monthly magazine seeking to interpret the United States as a wartime ally to British readers.

The series and subseries are fully listed in Tables 1A, 1B and 2.

On the design and production side, two notable designers deserve special mention during this period:

Jan Tschichold. Tschichold, an eminent typographer and book designer, was brought in from Switzerland by Lane in 1946. During his tenure, through 1948, Tschichold tightened up design standards and simultaneously created options within these standards through which the large numbers of designers and printers involved in the huge Penguin production could operate.

Hans Schmoller. Schmoller picked up as chief designer and production manager in subsequent years. Design changes and experimentation marked the latter 1950s and the 1960s as Schmoller brought in a range of talented young designers.
In very broad terms, the following time periods may be identified, roughly characterizing the evolution of design categories in all of the series:

1935-1936. Penguin main series only. Three horizontal bands (color-white-color) and "Bodley Head" vertically on front cover.

circa 1952-1957. Consolidation of new style under Schmoller's direction. Penguin main series, a bit later than the other series, shifted to vertical three-band design (1954). Up to 1957 all spine printing read up (a British publishing pattern).

1957. Change in all Penguin books' spines—from reading up to reading down (which brought them into line with standard American practice). All other design features remained.

1957-1965. A great deal of design experimentation for a substantial minority of Penguin titles. Many young designers brought in or contracted with. Included an outstanding (and very collectible) set of some 40 covers by Abram Games. This pattern of mixed covers was evident in several series.

1962-1965. Spines were standardized in distinctive solid colors while permitting considerable leeway in cover design (although generally within a modular frame). This affected Penguin main series (orange spines), Pelican Books (blue spines), Penguin Specials (red spines), Penguin Classics (black spines), Penguin Handbooks (white and yellow spines), and Penguin Poetry (black spines). This was an unusual show of clean, recognizable designs with a considerable sense of commonality among the series. This was never to be repeated in subsequent Penguin publishing. The Classic Period was drawing to a close.

Within a given design category, the front and back covers and the spines tend to be uniform in style. So, too, are the typographic formats of the short title page and the title page. Table 6 provides a summary listing of these design categories as developed for use with the Foley Collection and its database. The design category of each book is identified in the database as uppercase letters.

Supplementing the design categories, which represent regularities during a production period, are what we have termed design variations—distinctive features by which individual books vary from the overall pattern for a design category. Examples include books with unusual self-wrappers (WWII), advertising on back cover (WWII), part of a boxed set, hard cover, private binding, etc. Table 7 lists all of the design variations found in the Foley Collection. The database also identifies these detailed variations book by book. These are shown in the database either as lowercase letters or as 'v' numbers, in either case following the design category.

Selected Designers and Illustrators
In addition to Jan Tschichold and Hans Schmoller, several hundred designers and illustrators—mostly of covers but some of text illustrations—have been identified. Of these a few deserve special mention.

Edward Young. As a young member of the Penguin staff, in 1935 designed the first Penguin device, the cover and spine and the text typography for the main series. In 1937 designed the Pelican and Penguin Specials covers. During the war became a submarine commander, celebrated in Young's One of Our Submarines, published as number 1000 in the Penguin main series.

George Salter. Cover illustrator for both American and British, titles from 1946-1956.

Abram Games. Consulting art director with Penguin, 1956-1958. Responsible for what have become known as the Games covers on 43 Penguin titles. These have become very collectible.

Stephen Russ. Cover designer and illustrator, 1956-1964, including a number of D. H. Lawrence titles.

David Gentleman. A well-known and versatile designer of British postage stamps among other things. He designed or illustrated several Penguin books 1957-1963.

Ronald Searle. Cover designer and illustrator, 1956-1964, including a number of D. H. Lawrence titles.

Germano Facetti. Served as Penguin Art Director from 1960 to 1972 and contributed a few cover illustrations.
Romak Marber. An influential member of the Penguin design group from 1961-1965. He is particularly credited with designing the so-termed Marber grid, used effectively in design category P of the Penguin main series.

Prominent Penguin Authors; the "Million" Sets

Penguin Books, like any publisher, has had its favorite authors. Presumably this was by mutual agreement, with Penguin seeking additional titles and authors welcoming further publication by Penguin. As time went on many authors came to welcome Penguin publication as prestigious. Penguin fell into a pattern of recognizing some of its most distinguished authors by simultaneously publishing 10 different titles by a given author, with 100,000 copies of each title, amounting to a run of a million copies. These came to be known as the "million" sets. Our listing here of these sets serves to identify a number of Penguin's most distinguished and popular authors. (The listings and discussion that follow reflect the British Penguin publishing and do not take into account the American Penguin series.)

Below are listed additional popular Penguin authors. An author qualifies for this list by either having the simultaneous publication of a set of 5 of his titles or, arbitrarily, by having at least 8 entries in the Collection's database. This list is in alphabetic order:

Hillaire Belloc
Arnold Bennett
Louis Bromfield
John Dickson Carr
Raymond Chandler
Peter Cheyney
Freeman Wills Crofts
E. M. Forster
Erle Stanley Gardner
Robert Graves
Compton McKenzie
Nikolaus Pevsner
Ellery Queen
William Shakespeare
C. P. Snow

In the two lists above the popularity of the "mystery and crime" authors is abundantly clear. Most of the titles of these authors were reprints of hardcover books previously issued by other publishers. In this respect, Penguin was being the paperback reprinter. Nikolaus Pevsner's titles, in contrast, were Penguin originals.

It remains for individual users of the collection to serve as their own literary critics of the merits of the large and varied output of Penguin Books. The Penguin mission was wide ranging—from making inexpensive reprints of widely selling titles to publishing more specialized books with lower sales volumes.

Subsequent Penguin Publishing: Post 1965

Allen Lane died in 1970 without identifying a permanent successor. By prearrangement, Penguin was almost immediately absorbed by the Longmans Group. In 1975, Penguin and Longmans bought out The Viking Press in the United States as a means of entering the American market. There have been numerous further acquisitions and consolidations over the years. A few developments are noted here.

In 1967 Lane, with Godwin’s aid, embarked on a new deluxe hardback series entitled Allen Lane The Penguin Press. This fulfilled a dream of Lane’s and became his own successor to the earlier firm, John Lane The Bodley Head. And to top things off, Lane succeeded in repurchasing the very building that had earlier housed the former firm. The series had only mediocre success.

It was also decided in the late 1960s to create a very strong presence in textbooks and teaching materials. An ambitious Education series was established. And this, over time, spawned numerous subseries. The books were produced for the full range of educational use. While the Education series was formally abandoned in the 1980s, Penguin Books continued to be a strong supplier of books used by university students and by students at lower levels. The widespread dependence upon Penguin Classics is a notable example.

It has been reported that Penguin published over 30,000 titles in its first 50 years. This suggests that nearly 25,000 titles were published in the 1966-85 period, a prodigious output. Many of these titles, while carrying some of the former design symbols and designated formally as Penguin products, gradually lost much of their distinctiveness. Viking and other paperbacks were mixed in.

As a global publishing venture, Penguin has continued to do well. An Australian branch has had a healthy output of its own titles as well as distributing books from Britain and the United States. Penguin is well integrated into the American publishing scene.

In 1985 Penguin celebrated its 50th anniversary. In cooperation with the Penguin Collectors' Society (founded in 1974), a special exhibition was displayed at the Royal Festival Hall in London. Facsimile volumes of the first ten Penguins were produced in a boxed edition. In subsequent years several of the separate series' 50th anniversaries have been duly commemorated. To celebrate Penguin’s 60th anniversary in 1995, Penguin produced sets of miniature volumes, The Penguin 60s, excerpting earlier texts.

Introductory Comments

This portion of the Foley Collection of Penguin Books focuses on the 1935-1965 period, the first thirty years of Penguin Books’ publishing. It is donated by Katharine and me in memory of our son, William Ross Foley. Started as my hobby in the early 1980s (following retirement), the collection will be referred to as mine in this essay. I took advantage of a summer in Britain and two further visits to Britain and Ireland where I picked up titles that interested me, particularly in the “first thousand” of the main series. My collecting was less active from 1986 to 1995. During the past four years I developed a full-blown working collection for exploring and documenting the wide variety of Penguin series and the design evolution within each series. I also refined the accompanying database, added reference items and built a detailed index to these reference materials.

The Collection is by no means complete, containing less than half of the 5,000 or so Penguin titles published from 1935 through 1965. The main series and the Pelican series are particularly strong for the 1946 to 1955 period. The King Penguin series and several shorter series are complete. Most of the series have at least some representation. The most serious deficiencies are for titles (some special issues for the services) published during World War II.

The bulk of the items were procured from Britain, with some from Ireland, Canada and, of course, the United States. The earlier books have not been readily available in the United States. In particular, titles in the main series (nearly half of the total Penguin output 1935-1965) were generally not for sale in the United States for copyright reasons. Penguins, particularly first-edition titles such as Penguin Classics, came to be sold more commonly in the United States from about 1950 on. And second-hand Penguins for the 1950-1965 period also found their way to our bookstores.

There are, in effect, two separable aspects of the Collection:

- The Penguin books as such and that part of the database specifically describing these books.
- A broader description of the series and subseries coupled with the indexed reference materials that cover all aspects of Penguin publishing. This second part of the collection provides a more rounded picture of Penguin publishing than would be evident only from the collected books.
In brief summary, the Collection comprises:

- About 100 reference items: books, reports, special catalogs, Penguin Collectors' Society periodicals, etc., accompanied by a comprehensive index.
- Some ephemera: advertising material, special binders, etc.
- A computerized database describing (a) each book in the collection and (b) each series, whether or not represented in the collection.
- A computer searchable finding aid to the collection.
- The present essays

Penguin Books in the Collection: A Summary

The Collection contains about 2500 titles published between July 1935 and December 1965. (Technically, the first 30 years would have ended June 1965, but because Penguin reprints do not state the month published, I opted to collect through the end of 1965.)

A central feature of my Collection when it was shelved at home was its physical organization. The books were shelved by series. Within each series, the books were shelved by design category and the viewer could readily sense the evolution of design categories. Unfortunately, the Bancroft Library user will no longer be able to view the collection in its entirety. Happily, the books in the Collection all have their original covers, so that the books' designs can be examined (in contrast, many of the Penguins in other parts of the UC Library system have been rebound and have lost their original covers).

A comment may be in order about the condition of the books in the Collection. It is a working collection. Paperbacks by their nature are unlikely to have been set aside by fastidious collectors. Wartime paperbacks in particular were passed from reader to reader and are often worn. Some Penguin books published before World War II and for a brief period after (but not during the war because of paper rationing) were issued with dust wrappers. But wrappers on these early paperbacks have characteristically been lost along the way.

Tables 1A and 1B list the Penguin series. For each series, the table shows the inclusive publication dates, the number of first editions held, the number of first Penguin printings held, the number of reprints of Penguin printings held, and the total number of titles published.

Table 2 shows similar information for the color-codings and subseries that were also created in the course of Penguin's publishing during the first 30 years. The color-codings refer to cover colors indicating the character of the contents. For the main series, orange denoted fiction, green denoted mystery and crime, etc. For the Penguin Classics series, the color denoted the country from which the work was drawn. Subseries were usually indicated on the cover and/or on the short-title page.

The listings in Tables 1A and 1B and the counts of books published in each series represent an understandable simplification. In fact, the starts of some series were rather confusing. One pattern was for the Penguin main series to serve an omnibus role in early years. And then as other series were conceived, books already published and numbered in the main series were also given fresh serial numbers in new series. For example, the first dozen or so Penguin Plays serial numbers are for titles already published in the main series. Early titles in the Penguin Handbook series had already been published and given serial numbers in the Penguin Specials series.

Similarly, the World War II series for the armed services and for prisoners of war involved cases of double numbering--one number for regular series publications and another number for the armed services series. And the sequence in which such paired publications were issued varied. In many cases the armed services versions followed earlier regular publication. But in some instances, this was reversed.

A few titles in the American Penguin series were published in Britain and given new, but similarly designed covers. A number appear to be reprints of British Penguins printed in the United States. And then, finally, came the larger run of independently produced American Penguins and Pelicans.

One-third of the books in the Collection are first editions, two-fifths are Penguin first printings but not first editions, and one quarter are reprints of Penguin printings. Most collectors, particularly in Britain, seek only first editions or first Penguin printings (where the first edition was another publisher's). But a strong case can be made (and has been made by a few active "researchers" in the Penguin Collectors' Society) for including reprints. The reprints provide direct evidence of the continued sales of titles and show the evolution of cover design, and, of course, the reprints fill in where first editions or first printings are not available.

Table 3 lists Penguin first editions, year by year, from 1937 through 1950 in the Collection. The Collection contains no first editions published July 1935 through December 1936. The first original titles (or, in some cases, revisions or fresh introductions making the titles technically first editions) came in 1937 with two Pelican titles, five Penguin Shakespeare... titles, one Penguin main series title, one Penguin Specials title and the first periodical title, Penguin Parade 1. As Table 3 shows, the number of first edition titles increased year by year. Remarkably, even the war years (1939-1945) saw an output of first editions, including the Penguin New Writing series, a steady flow of Penguin Specials, a slowly increasing number of Penguin main series, the start of American Penguin Specials, the initiation of the Penguin Painters series, and after a lapse in 1942, a pickup in King Penguin series. The Penguin Classics series, launched in 1946, published only first edition translations. Puffin Picture Books were entirely first edition, as were Penguin Guides. Penguin Handbooks were mainly first edition. And of course the various periodical series were essentially first edition. Penguin New Writing contained reprinted material along with fresh contributions. Pelicans, while mixed, came to have a preponderance of first editions.

Regarding Series Identification

Every title published by Penguin Books is in a series, so identifying the series is an essential part of describing the book. Over half of the titles are also in subservices or color-codings, within their respective series. The titles in the initial Penguin main series (comprising nearly half of the first 30 years' titles) were merely assigned serial numbers, starting with 1. These appeared on the spine and starting in 1944, also appeared on the short-title page. Each of the other series was assigned a letter or a combination of letters that preceded the serial number. Thus Pelican Books carried an "A" preceding the serial number, Penguin Specials an "S", Poetry a "D" and Classics an "L". The letters were partly assigned alphabetically and partly (as with Specials) to match the distinctive word or words in the series name. These letters are sometimes referred to as prefix letters. I have termed them preletters.

In developing the database, I generally followed the Penguin designations of preletters. But to avoid ambiguity, I assigned "P" (unused by Penguin Books) to the main series. Thus, serial number 947 is treated in the database as P947. I made a few other minor preletter modifications for database clarity.

When the Collection was at home, I depended primarily on the preletter for identifying a particular series. Now that the Collection is at The Bancroft Library and a series library identification has been added as part of the call number, each series can conveniently be identified by this library identification. For example, the Penguin main series with its database preletter, "P", can be identified by "A1", its library identification for series numbers up to 9999. And the Pelican series, with its preletter, "A", can be identified by "B1". The preletter is commonly used among Penguin collectors. The library designation helps one to keep track of the series and books within The Bancroft Library system.

Titles that are also in subservices or that have color-coded covers carry the library designation, the preletter, and the serial numbers of the main series in which they are located. The subservice titles are physically identified by the name of the subservice on the cover and/or the short-title page or, in some instances, by a distinctive cover design. The color-coded titles are physically identified by the colors of their covers.

Reference Materials in the Collection: A Summary

The Collection's reference holdings are listed in Table 4. Items are grouped as books, short monographs, Penguin Collectors' Society serials, checklists, etc.

The few main works dealing with Penguin Books' publishing history and with Allen Lane's pivotal role provide broad-brush accounts and, selectively, some information about the creation and evolution of individual series. But providing definitive accounts of specific series and probing the details of individual books remained for a number of diligent collector-and dealer-members of the Penguin Collectors' Society. Their reports are more elusive and not commonly available in libraries, particularly American libraries.

The Penguin Collectors' Society was founded in 1974, with Tanya and Hans Schmoller taking the lead. The Society has provided a social and intellectual base for Penguin book collectors. Many of these have been avid in their interest and some, at least, diligent in their researching and reporting. A PCS Newsletter has published short articles and news notes and encouraged members to share their findings. In 1993, the newsletter became the semiannual Penguin Collector. From 1986 on, the Society has published Miscellany annually, with definitive articles and, usually, a sharp focus to each issue. In addition, the Society has published a few other short monographs and checklists. My holdings of PCS publications are virtually complete, lacking only Newsletter issues 1-2 and 4-11. The earliest newsletters were fairly short. And some of their articles have been reprinted in later years in some of the Miscellany issues. In the judgment of at least one present PCS editor, the gaps in my holdings of these earliest newsletters are of no great consequence.

Several dealers have periodically issued catalogs listing Penguin books for sale. Richard Williams (who is also the proprietor-editor of Dragonby Press) has produced excellent specialized checklists. And there have been occasional articles about Penguin books and Penguin Books publishing history in journals devoted to the book trade.

A few files are also included. One file in particular deals with the Weber Penguin Collection at the University of Notre Dame. This superb collection of Penguin books is virtually complete for the 1935-1965 period. It is undoubtedly the single strongest American collection of early Penguin books. It was purchased from a British book dealer in 1989, financed by a generous donation from Theodore Weber, currently residing in El Cerrito, here in the East Bay.
As a guide for persons desiring to learn about the Penguin story and about Penguin books, the following are suggested for starters. All of the suggested materials are available in the Collection. The relevant section of Table 4 is shown in brackets following each item.

For a general introduction to Penguin Books publishing history:
- Jones & Aynsley, Fifty Penguin Years. [Books]
- Hare, Penguin Portrait. [Books]
- Edwards, Twenty-One Years. [Short Monographs]

For an alphabetized, encyclopedic coverage of Penguin books and publishing:

For bibliographies of Allen Lane, Penguin's founder and dominant leader:
- Morpurgo, Allen Lane King Penguin: A Biography. [Books]
- Williams, Allen Lane: A Personal Portrait. [Books]

For listings of all of Penguin books:
- Williams, The Penguin Story, includes a full listing, by series, of Penguin books published 1935-1956. [Checklists . . . ]

For information about specific series of Penguin books:

Making Use of the Checklists of Penguin Books

It may prove helpful to tap the checklists as listed in the "Checklists . . . " section of Table 4. While my database provides convenient access to titles actually in the Collection, these checklists offer a comprehensive view of all Penguin titles whether or not in the Collection.

In particular the checklists published by Williams and his Dragonby Press are a fine resource. They are in a British Paperback Checklist series. They include the following Penguin series and dates:
- Main Penguin series 1-1000 (1935-1954) Checklist No. 11
  Note: The numbers above match the actual books. In the Foley database the preletter “P” is used (e.g., P1-P1000; P1001-P2000).
- Penguin Specials S1-S393 (1937-1987) Checklist No. 9
  Includes Pelican Specials and early Penguin Handbooks in the Specials series.
- Puffin Story Books PS1-PS148 (1941-1960) Checklist No. 33
- Puffin Picture Books PP1-PP120 (1940-1965) Checklist No. 19
  Includes Baby Puffins, Puffin Cut-Out, Porpoise and certain other non-Penguin imprints that reprinted Puffin books or were related to them. (The Collection includes 2nd rev. ed (1985) and 3rd rev. ed. (1996).

The main portion of each of the above checklists lists titles in series-number order. For each title the following information is provided:
- Series number
- Author

Other checklists can be helpful for titles not covered by the British Paperback Checklists just described. The most convenient are:

These two checklists follow a uniform pattern. Series by series, they list titles in series-number order, showing this information:

- Series number
- Title
- Subseries code for main series, 1068-3311 (By this point cover color coding had been discontinued.)
- Author
- Month and year of publication

Index to Reference Material

The main books about Allen Lane and Penguin publishing have generally been well indexed. But the materials published by the Penguin Collectors’ Society have been given only scant and infrequent indexing. I built a comprehensive, computerized index that is very complete for the PCS publications, for the dealers’ checklists and for a handful of other articles. It deals only selectively with already-indexed books. The index is presented in full as Table 5.

The index often groups more precise topics or specific persons within broader categories. Until one gets used to the index this may be a bit troublesome. There are, however, numerous cross-references from the more precise listings to the group...
A few comments about the middle "Source" column: my format for this column reflects the operating pattern employed in PCS publications. Because the early PCS newsletters have been out of print and difficult to find and because some of the articles in these early newsletters needed updating in subsequent years as fresh information became available, the Miscellany series in particular and in some cases, the Penguin Collector or later issue of PCS newsletters took to reprinting early newsletter articles--sometimes in full, sometimes abridged, and often updated. When this was done, the exact early source would be cited. My index seeks to preserve the earlier source where room in the "Source" column permits. Features of the "Source" column format include:

- The source within brackets following the current source is the original source on which the main source was based. E.g., the item, "American Penguin Specials" lists "Miscellany 2:16-19" as the current source, but [PCSN17] as the original source.
- A name in parentheses following the current source shows the author. E.g., for the same item as above, the author of the main source is "(Edwards)".
- In certain cases some additional information may be added following the current source.

Where the item being indexed is in a series, there may sometimes be listed the series and the specific serial number of a book within that series. E.g., the item "Main series--683" refers to serial number 683, and in this case the "(Hiroshima)" that follows gives the title. (In indexing the "Main series," I used the actual serial numbers without any preletter as Penguin Books did, and did not add the preletter "P" which I used in the database.)

Identical entries (e.g., nine entries for "Publ. hist.") are ordered by Source Date (the publication date of each item, in this example ranging from 1956 to 1995) so that the user may either start with the most recent sources and work backwards or follow the sources in their chronological order.

The Database Aspect of the Collection: A Quick Summary

As the Collection grew, it became clear that an accompanying computerized database would permit ready updating of a perpetual inventory of what was held. And, of course, it would permit the very rapid retrieval of information.

This short subsection offers a brief sketch of the main elements of the database as it is available to the library user. There are two main facets of the database, representing two levels at which Penguin books can be viewed:

- The description of each book held in the collection. This part is analogous to a library's computerized catalog. For each book, there are appropriate "fields" in which the traditional characteristics--author, title, publisher, date of publication, etc.--are reported. Additions and adaptations have been made to report features that seem particularly significant for the Penguin titles in this collection. Thus, the series, the series number, the subseries (if any), color-coding (if any), information as to the printing (whether a first printing or a reprint) and certain design features have also been included.
- The description of each series, subseries or color-coded group whether or not held in the collection. This part is probably given greater emphasis than one might expect in a library's computerized catalog. But series are so integral to the publishing pattern of Penguin Books that this part of the database helps us to understand what Penguin Books really produced.

Other portions of the database list and index reference materials.

In the present case, where the books and reference materials are "archived" in The Bancroft Library and where the potential user cannot walk in and physically browse the collection (as I was able to do), the database becomes a particularly important tool for learning what the collection contains and, thus, what the user may expect to find in it.

A Note About Post-1965 Penguin Books

Some series carried on after 1965 with no great changes. But Penguin’s publishing history during these more recent years also encompassed new ventures and great change:

- An Education series and associated subseries were introduced and vigorously promoted in the latter 1960s and the early 1970s.
- ISBN codes came into use in about 1971, replacing the earlier preletters.
- Penguin Books underwent successive reorganizations as part of a growing conglomerate.
• Series and subseries emerged and dissolved. Titles were transferred, reissued, and in miraculous ways slipped from one series to another and from one serial number to another. (This seems to have been abetted by reliance on ISBN codes which are not normally “decoded” by book handlers.)
• The volume of book production increased enormously. An estimated 25,000 titles were published between 1966 and 1985. And production into the 1990s continued to soar.

A collector can develop a manageable collection for the earlier Classic Period. In contrast, a collector approaches the most recent 30+ years of Penguin output at his own peril.

TABLE 5: Index to Reference Materials

Note: "A PENGUIN COLLECTOR'S COMPANION", 1997 revised edition, offers authoritative encyclopedic entries and deserves to be an active adjunct of the present index. Since its entries are alphabetically arranged, it has not been indexed here. This may be asked for at The Bancroft Library as Edwards (ed.), "A Penguin Collector's Companion," MISCELLANY, 7-8 (1997 revised 1-vol. edit.)

The section, "Index to Reference Materials", in Part II of the above essay provides a fuller account of the Index and the structure of the entries in the "Source" column.

TABLE 6: Design Categories Within Each Penguin Series

The series are ordered by the series designations used within the library call number. The designation precedes each series heading. The preletters are those used by Foley in his data base. The design categories were developed by Foley and are not in standard use by others.

The listings of first printings, reprint printings, and dates should be treated as tentative. They are mainly based on Foley holdings and are thus incomplete.

A1. PENGUIN BOOKS main series [Preltr: P]

Short-title p.: title only. Title p.: "Penguin Books". First 80 only.

First prtgs: 1-78
Reprint prtgs: 4-17

First prtgs: 81-439
Reprint prtgs: 3-309
Dates: Mar. 1937 - Oct. 1944

C. Front cover: like B, but new penguin on front cover: curved body, beak to right. Back cover: photo & biogr. of author.
Short-title p.: Serial number in parentheses on third line. Title p.: "Penguin Books".

First prtgs: 444-628
Reprint prtgs: 300-421

First prtgs: 600-707
Reprint prtgs: 63-574
Dates: Dec. 1947 - July 1949

Firstprtgs: 538-731
Reprint prtgs: 557
Dates: May 1949 - Jan. 1950

F. Front cover: Like E with delicate printing, but the extra thin lines bounding middle panel now omitted. Vertical categories. Horizontal colored line between title and author. Back cover: like D. Short-title p.: like E. Title p.: like E. (This is the new standard design by Tschichold.)

Firstprtgs: 555-963
Reprint prtgs: 11-797
Dates: 1950 - 1954

G. Front cover: like F, but vertical categories now dropped. In all other respects, like F. Note: spine reads up.

First prtgs: 827-1205
Reprint prtgs: 48-984
Dates: Jan. 1952 - Mar. 1957

H. Front cover: new three-band vertical format. Illustrations introduced in middle panel and by 1956 almost all front covers had illustrations. (So cover illustrations not noted as special.) Spine: colored penguin in middle; spine still reads up.

First prtgs: 913-1207
Reprintprtgs: 20-1143
Dates: Apr. 1954 - 1958

I. Cover & spine: return to the design in G, but for the first time the spine reads down. (Categories J to Q also read down.)

First prtgs: 1200-1421
Reprintprtgs: 48-1286
Dates: June 1957 - 1960

J. Front cover: design similar to I, but "PENGUIN BOOKS" in top panel & the penguin in bottom panel have been moved to the right. Employed only for green-covered Mystery & Crime subseries.

Firstprtgs: 1417-1608
Reprint prtgs: 517-864

K. Front cover: Distinctive three-vertical-panel format featuring photo of movie star(s) in middle panel. "PENGUIN BOOKS" in heavy non-serif type at bottom. Spine: wide orange panels top & bottom.

Firstprtgs: 1501-1666
Reprint prtgs: 668
Dates: July 1960 - Sept. 1961

L. Front cover & spine: Three vertical panel pattern like H, but spine reads down. Virtually all covers carry illustrations in middle panel; some vary the print style in middle panel.

Firstprtgs: 1070-2069
Reprint prtgs: 19-1688
Dates: Aug. 1957 - Feb. 1964
M. Same three-vertical-panel format as L, but larger-size book: 20 cm. instead of usual 18cm. [2 examples only, both by Searle.]

First prts: 1516-1659

N. Front cover: various designs. Spine: penguins generally at top, mainly not in ovals (but some are in ovals). Includes Penguin Modern Classics subseries (generally in grey & white); Penguin Crime subseries (in distinctive green); distinctive covers by Games; & various design variations. Short-title & title pages evolve with time, trending toward asymmetric formats.

First prts: 1195-2436
Reprint prts: 297-2030
Dates: June 1957 - Nov. 1965

O. Same as N, but larger "B" format (20 cm. instead of 18cm).

First prts: 1387-2351
Dates: Nov. 1962 - Sept. 1965

P. Spine: standardized solid orange, author in white letters, title in black, white penguin outlined in black within a white oval outlined in black. Front cover: variety of illustrations & some variation in precise format, but within the Marber horizontal grid. Back cover: evolves over time. Initially printed commentary on book or author. By about serial number 2000 the pattern was usually biogr. of author at top and photo at bottom. Short-title & title pp. also evolved toward asymmetric formats.

First prts: 1667-2368
Reprint prts: 342-1988
Dates: Jan. 1962 - July 1965

Q. Same as P, but larger "B" format (20 cm. instead of 18cm.). [Three examples only.]

First prts: 1856-2197
Dates: Oct. 1962 - Nov. 1964

B1. PELICAN BOOKS [Preltr: A]

AA. Front cover: blue-white-blue horizontal panels. "PUBLISHED BY PENGUIN BOOKS" in small type top panel. Large flying pelican bottom panel. Short-title p: No serial no. Title p: "PENGUIN BOOKS LIMITED". Back cover: List of Pelican &/or Penguin titles.

First prts: A 1-A132
Reprint prts: A 1-A 67
Dates: May 1937 - July 1944

AB. Front cover: like AA, but "PUBLISHED BY PENGUIN BOOKS" dropped from top panel. short-title p: serial no. in parentheses added. Title p: "PENGUIN BOOKS". Back cover: photo & biography of author.

First prts: A140-A186
Reprint prts: A 5-A169
Dates: Mar. 1945 - May 1948

AC. Front cover: blue & white horizontal bands like Pelican Specials design category SB. Title p: distinctive. [A126 Manvill, FILM, DF’s only example]

First prts: A126
Reprint prts: A126
Dates: Apr. 1944 - 1946

AD. New Tschichold standard design. Front cover: lighter printing. Short-title p: 4-line format, serial no. with no parentheses. Title p: "PELICAN BOOKS" dropped from top; flying pelican dropped.

First prts: A149-A202
Reprint prts: A 28-A143
Dates: May 1948 - Sept. 1949

AE. Another Tschichold design. Front cover: blue-white-blue horizontal panels with delicate blue lines bounding middle panel. Short-title & title pp. like AD. Back cover: Extra blue line around biographical panel.
AF. Front cover: upright oblong white panel with blue border. Spine: solid blue, with double white lines above & below main panel. Short-title & title pp. like AD & AE. Back cover: similar to AE.

First prtg: A183-A226
Reprint prtg: A 82-A143
Dates: June 1949 - May 1950

AG. Front cover: like AF. Spine: main panel white with solid blue bands above & below. Short-title & title pp. & back cover like AF.

First prtg: A231-A264
Reprint prtg: A 4-A231
Dates: Sept. 1950 - Apr. 1953

AH. Generally like AF. Spine: each blue band at top & bottom has white horizontal line across its middle. Spine still reads up.

First prtg: A176-A444
Reprint prtg: A 4-A350
Dates: Feb. 1952 - May 1960

AI. Like AH, but spine now reads down. Spine remains standard, but there are now some distinctive illustrated front covers.

First prtg: A342-A411
Reprint prtg: A197-A431
Dates: Apr. 1957 - May 1960

AJ. Variety of front covers, spines & back covers. Short-title and title pp. retain standard design.

First prtg: A417-A774
Reprint prtg: A 61-A465

AK. New standard spine: solid blue, pelican in oval near bottom. Front cover: some variety, but mainly fairly standardized horizontal panels at top & illustrations flush to edges in rectangular space below. Short-title & title pp. & back cover usually as earlier, but some new asymmetric layouts.

First prtg: A512-A780
Reprint prtg: A 82-A737

AL. Same as AK, but larger "B" format (20cm. instead of 18cm.).

First prtg: A605-A639
Reprint prtg: A109-A497
Dates: May 1963 - Nov. 1964

B2. PELICAN BOOKS: BOUND EDITION [Preltr: BA]

LM. Green cloth binding. Gold bands & stars on spine.

First prtg: HA261
Reprint prtg: HA212
Dates: Jan. 1953

LN. Plain gray cloth binding. Author & title in box, top of spine.

First prtg: HA 295
Dates: Sept. 1954

C1. PENGUIN & PELICAN SPECIALS [Preltr: S]
SA. Front cover: 3 thin horizontal red bands at top & 1 wide red band at bottom. "A PENGUIN SPECIAL" in top red band. A large standing penguin in bottom band. Back cover: same red bands, promotional material. Dustwrapper: like the cover & spine, but with price. (Cover itself does not carry price.) Short-title p: 2 lines--title & author. Title p: "PENGUIN BOOKS LIMITED".

First prtg: S 1-S 90
Reprint prtg: S 1-S 51
Dates: Nov. 1937 - May 1941

First prtg: S 6-S 40
Reprint prtg: S 5-S 45
Dates: July 1938 - May 1940

SC. Wide format (height the customary width & width the customary height). Front cover: solid color (red or deep blue) with rectangular white panel.

First prtg: S 49-S115
Reprint prtg: S 60-S 88
