Biography

Jesse Brown Cook (1860-1938) was a member of the San Francisco Police Department from the 1890s to the 1930s. He began as a beat cop, and then rose through the ranks to become Sergeant of the Chinatown Squad; he retired as Chief of Police and later returned to the force as Police Commissioner. Before his years of service in the police force he studied taxidermy, worked as a sailor, drayman, and butcher, and toured Europe as a contortionist. His police career began in San Antonio and San Diego before he relocated to San Francisco.

It is unclear what motivated Cook to compile thousands of photographs and clippings into what is a unique portrayal of early twentieth century San Francisco, with its rare police department photographs and documentation of events not available to the general public at the time. Over the course of a decade, Cook had approximately 1300 street scenes professionally photographed, and he meticulously recorded the exact location of each photograph. Whatever the motive for his care and persistence, his passion for San Francisco history is apparent.

Scope and Content

The Jesse Cook scrapbooks consist of thirty-nine volumes containing an estimated 12,000 items, including photographs, newspaper clippings, and ephemera, primarily centering on the history of San Francisco and police activity in the city. The collection is thought to have once numbered fifty scrapbooks.

The photographs described in the container list span a wide range of locations and topics, but most were taken in San Francisco. They include early twentieth century mug shots of criminals; pictures inside the city prison, morgue, and coroner's office; and many group shots of police officers. Also depicted are historical events such as the building of the Bay Bridge, President Taft breaking ground in Golden Gate Park, the Democratic National Convention with a photograph of Franklin Roosevelt, and the openings of the cable car lines, the transcontinental phone line, and the Panama Canal. Numerous street scenes in San Francisco are included, as well as shots of Chinese immigrants and Chinatown, the architecture and neighborhoods of San Francisco, police work and crime in San Francisco, city events, and views from the 1906 earthquake and fire.

Jesse Brown Cook compiled these scrapbooks with the help of official police photographer George Blum. Most captions were handwritten by Cook, and some were typed. The thirty-nine volumes were originally comprised of thirty-four ledger books and loose photographs and clippings. Due to their very poor physical condition, four of the original ledger books (volumes 2, 5, 6, and 29) have been disbound, fully preserved by the Conservation Department of The Library, and newly bound into nine volumes. These volumes are marked 2:1, 2:2, etc. to preserve the original numbering of the ledger books. The loose items have been foldered and boxed and labelled as volume 35. The pages in each volume are numbered, and the photographs are numbered with the page number followed by suffixes of "a," "b," etc. when multiple photographs appear on a single page.

As part of the scrapbooks' preservation, digital facsimiles have been produced of many of the photographs. These are the photographs listed in the finding aid. Users may browse the finding aid and digital facsimiles in order to limit physical browsing of the original scrapbooks. The photographs were selected according to the following guidelines: no copy prints; only photographs in relatively good condition were selected; and no photographs with violent content were selected (coroner's and police photographs of corpses). Where duplicate photographs were found, only one was selected. A total of 4,348 photographs have digital facsimiles. Photographs from volumes 2, 5, 6 and 29 do not have digital facsimiles, but are listed in the finding aid. These volumes are available for use in the library.

The ephemera includes materials such as postage stamps and Chinese lottery tickets, while the newspaper clippings focus on police activity and San Francisco history. Neither the ephemera nor the newspaper clippings are described in detail in

Matt Kennedy, alias Kid McMunn, An International Criminal. Born at Detroit, Michigan and started out as a boy to lead ...

Matt Kennedy, alias Kid McMunn, An International Criminal. Born at Detroit, Michigan and started out as a boy to lead a criminal life. In 1884 with a gang of hoodlums robbed the Post Office at Windsor, Ontario, Canada. He was arrested for this and sent to Kingston, Ontario Penitentiary for twenty years. He escaped from this prison in 1885 and with his gang robbed a fur store at Cleveland, Ohio, was arrested for this crime at Allegheny City, Pa. Two officers from Cleveland were sent for him and started home on the train with him, he being handcuffed to Detective Wm. Hulligan. The train was boarded by a gang lead by an ex-convict Blinkey Morgan who assaulted the two officers, crushing the skull of one of the officers and killing Detective McHulligan. They then released Kennedy. Blinkey Morgan was arrested in Canada for this crime and tried and hanged for it at Cleveland, Ohio. The next heard of Kennedy, alias McMunn, was from Australia where he was under arrest and held for the Cleveland Police. The State of Ohio refused to send for him and he was let go. He remained in Australia for a number of years, spending most of his time in jail and he was at last forced to leave and return to the United States where he traveled with a gang all over the States, committing burglary and robbery. At last he left for Europe and a trip around the world. He kept the police of the world on the go, but they never could convict him. The next he was heard from was when he was killed by Officer Le Strange of the Berkeley Police on September 28th, 1905. He, with four others were attempting to rob a bank at Berkeley, California. He was a very handsome crook and was known as Raffles among the crooked fraternity. He paid his expenses twice around the world by robbing people. He was one of the last men in the world who, from his appearance, would ever be taken for a crook. The career of this man reads like a romance. He was one of the typical swell burglars of olden days. Commenting on his death Mr. Wm. Pinkerton said "He lived by the sword and he died by the sword."

Bruce, No. 5043 and Hubert Creighton, No. 5743, brothers born on Washington Street between Leavenworth and Hyde Streets, of fine parents. They started out on their criminal career when boys and became expert burglars and safe blowers. They were finally sent to the State Prison from Seattle, Washington. They were considered desperate men and would not stop at anything to obtain what they started out to do. Bruce while in the State Prison in Washington, fooled the doctor by the use of Croton Oil on his body, producing an eruption, and was sent to the pest house as the doctors thought he had small pox. He escaped from the pest house but was later captured and returned to the Prison, where finally they both died.

Harry Walters, alias Harry Williams an old time San Francisco bunco man. He was very polished and a slick worker in 1890.

James Egan. Born in Russell Street between Hyde and Larkin Streets; attended Spring Valley School on Broadway between Larkin and Polk Streets. He became a desperate man as he grew to manhood; spending a great deal of time in jail. He was on September 8, 1888 convicted and sent to San Quentin prison for 35 years for the murder of a man in a saloon brawl at Bay and Larkin Streets, and after serving 21 years he was paroled and died shortly after.

John Devine, alias "Chicken Devine", was considered a desperate criminal. He always hung out around the Barbary Coast and the waterfront, and was continually in trouble. In a fight in a sailors' boarding house his arm was caught in the jam of a door and a man named Billy Maitland seized a knife and severed Devine's hand from the wrist. Devine picked up his hand and walked into a drug store at Pacific and Davis and asked the druggist to put it together. Devine's last escape was when he inveigled a man to accompany him to the southern part of the city and upon arriving at the hill where the big rocks lay, as you would be descending from Wilde Street, he murdered this man whose name was August Kemp, by beating him to death with a rock. For this murder he was convicted and was hung in the county jail on Broadway, May 14, 1873.

Dutch Harry had the letter written by Stocking to his mother in San Francisco in his pocket, in which he advised his mother, that he had friends who would pick him up at Stockton in a launch, carrying him down the river to San Francisco and for her to make all arrangements for passage on a Panama Steamer. The letter stated he would identify the launch by a white cloth wrapped around the smokestack. Plans were made by the police and Deputy Sheriff Degan to wait at Stockton but they received news that he was at Ray's house, so they went to Acampo, when the officers arrived, Stocking was in the house when the rig drove up, and climbed out of a window, but being covered by a revolver he surrendered.

James Hope who was known as the greatest bank burglar in the United States in the early days was arrested in this city on July 1st 1881 by Chief Crowley, Captain Lees, and Detectives Ben Bohen, W.S. Jones, Ross Whitaker, John Coffey and Edward Byram. The building that he was captured in was on the S.E. cor of Commercial and Montgomery Streets known as the Peder Sather and Company's Bank. He had cut through the floor and the brickwork of the vault for the purpose of robbing it of its contents. For this offense he was sentenced to San Quentin for seven and one half years and served time up to November 16th 1886 when he was discharged. Previous to this robbery he was implicated in the big robbery of the Manhattan Bank in New York but managed to escape detection. His son was apprehended for the Manhattan robbery and served time New York.
Wm. McGowan -- #11556 -- who was arrested and did time for picking pockets. His graft was to board street cars when they were crowded and pick the pockets of the passengers. The last time he was arrested was in the Summerfield Store on Market St., where he had picked the pocket of a woman, and for this he was sent to Folsom Prison for 3 years and after coming out of Folsom he went east.

Jas. Rogers, alias Matty Kerwin, another Midwinter Fair pickpocket. On Feb. 24/94, he was sent to San Quentin for 3 years and on coming out he, the same as the other Midwinter Fair pickpockets, left for the east and has never returned.

Chas. Morton, another Midwinter Fair pickpocket, came west to show how clever [sic] he was and on March 6/94 [1894] was arrested at the Fair and sent to San Quentin for 3 years, and on finishing his term in prison, left for the east stating that San Francisco was not such a &quot;jay town&quot; as he had been told it was.

Frank St. Clair, alias Edwards, another street car pickpocket, was arrested and served time on a number of occasions and the last time he was sent to San Quentin for picking pockets at the Midwinter Fair on Dec. 20/93 [1893] for 10 years.

Jos. Wells, alias Jack Morgan, a dangerous and suspicious pickpocket, with a long eastern record, was arrested in San Francisco on Dec. 14/06 and ordered to leave town, which he did.

Mary McKenzie was a pickpocket who worked the shopping district and her line was to open women shoppers’ purses and take the contents in the crowded stores.

May Kirby: One of the old China Town pickpockets; she worked in that section of San Francisco. She has not been seen since the fire of April 18/06.

Mary Plaza: An old time pickpocket from the Italian Quarters. Was arrested a number of times but her victims would never prosecute her. The last time she was arrested she picked the pocket of Frank Godence and when she found out that he was determined to prosecute she jumped her bail in Dec. 1905 and that was the last seen of her in the west.

Rose Cady, #17967, one of the old Grant Ave. pickpockets; her victims were men from the large hotels. She has not been seen in San Francisco since the fire.

Carrie Weber, #18111, another of the old tenderloin district pickpockets. She worked the same as the other pickpockets of San Francisco; her victims were all married men. She left about the time of our fire in 1906.
Annie Green -- an old time negro pickpocket; her victims were all white men and the police never could get anyone to prosecute her as they would not admit having anything to do with a "nigger". BANC PIC 1996.003:Volume 21:163b--fALB

Gertrude Smith, another negro pickpocket; she always worked with Dolly Mickey around the Coast. She was also given six months in the County Jail with Dolly and with Dolly, left town. BANC PIC 1996.003:Volume 21:163c--fALB

Full title
Fred Clarence Edgeller, alias Edward C. Hazen, alias Clarence Watson. Shot and killed by Police Officer T. Herring, January 27, 1926, at 2nd & Howard Streets, about 7:10 P.M. Edgeller was known as "The Whistling Bandit", as he would walk up to oil stations, whistling, before holding up the attendant. He had held up several oil stations in this city before he was shot. He gave his name before he died as Clarence Watson. After being finger-printed at Coroner's Office, he was identified at Police Bureau of Identification as Fred C. Edgeller, which is his true name, having served time in the Industrial School, for running away from home at Kearny, Nebraska. Since that time, he had been arrested several times in California of burglarizing box cars, and at Omaha, Nebraska, for auto theft.

of the funds and proceeded along the highway with their loot. Detective Sergeants E.L. Roberts and Walter Nelson, of Sacramento, overtook them on the road and, after a gun battle, one of the desperados was killed and the other three taken into custody and are now doing five years to life in the Folsom Prison. The dead bandit, known only as "Whitey", was said to have been identified as Hugh Whitney, a notorious bandit who once terrorized the Wyoming-Utah-Montana borders some years ago. These photographs of the bandits are: J. Rechisin, alias Ray Parker, Folsom Prison No. 13971; John Ryan, Folsom Prison No. 13972; Thomas Newman, alias Joe Ross, Folsom Prison No. 13973 and still. The lead steer will lead them direct to the killing pens. He enters with the cattle and makes a complete circle around the pen, and comes out. By this time the last steer has entered and the gate is closed. For this work, the lead steer is allowed to go into a field of rich grass and have a good feed. This is a photograph of the lead steer for - Alpert Packing Company, Third and Evans streets, Bay View, San Francisco. From Jesse B. Cook, April 12, 1928

In BUTCHER TOWN, San Francisco, the wholesale butchers keep their cattle in corrals quite a way from the killing pens, as they are not any too gentle and cannot be driven without a lead steer to keep them quiet and lead them to the killing pens. These lead steers are very gentle. The cowboys drive them up to the corrals where the beef cattle are, open the gate, and soon the first beef steer starts out of the corral and the lead steer starts on his way, with the cattle following him to the killing pens. The cattle will keep together so long as they have a leader, but without a lead steer they would scatter and the cowboys could not handle them in a city where there is so much noise, as they are from the ranges where all is quiet and still. The lead steer will lead them direct to the killing pens. He enters with the cattle and makes a complete circle around the pen, and comes out. By this time the last steer has entered and the gate is closed. For this work, the lead steer is allowed to go into a field of rich grass and have a good feed. This is a photograph of the lead steer for - H.M. Moffat and Company, wholesale butchers at Third and Arthur Street, Bay View, San Francisco. From Jesse B. Cook, April 12, 1928

N. E. corner east Eighth Street and Fourth Avenue, East Oakland, front view. This home was built by Moses Chase in 1849 on part of 640 acres he brought from old Peralta, who at the time owned a large part of what is now Alameda County. This lot was later a part of the Township of Clinton. Mr. Moses Chase was born in Newberyport, Mass., on July 31, 1806. He was the first white man in Oakland and camped at the foot of what is now Broadway, in 1849. The rear rooms of this house were built in 1849 of ship’s timbers, driftwood and redwood shakes. Later, in 1856, the front part of the house was added. As you see in the photograph, the house is in first class condition today, October 5, 1928. Photo taken by Jesse B. Cook and Joseph A. Murray.
