Preferred Citation

Immediate Source of Acquisition
The Ben King Collection of Detroit Publishing Company Photochrom Views was given to The Bancroft Library by Ben King in 2016.

Arrangement
Numbered and arranged by the publisher's identifying number that is printed on each image. Several items lacking numbers or with non-conforming alpha-numeric codes are at end.

Biographical Note
In 1897 William Henry Jackson sold his photographic inventory to the Detroit Photographic Co. In 1898 he became president of the firm. In the early 1900s the enterprise changed its name to Detroit Publishing Co.

Scope and Content
Scenic photographic views, printed in color, of landscapes, urban locations and everyday life, taken throughout the American West. Other regions in North America and the Caribbean are present. A significant percentage of views depict locations in California and Colorado, with other views in Utah, New Mexico, and other Western states or territories. Non-Western views include Mexico City, other Mexican locations, Cuba, the Bahamas, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, Mississippi, Virginia, Washington D.C., Philadelphia, New York City and state, Niagara Falls, New Jersey, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Maine, Chicago, Detroit, the Great Lakes and Saint Lawrence River region, Toronto, Montreal, Quebec and other Canadian cities, and a few views in central and western Canada.

Western scenes were, chiefly, photographed by William Henry Jackson. Although published in the 1890s and first decades of the twentieth century, some of the photographs may have been taken in earlier decades. The photomechanical "photochrom" process of the Detroit Publishing Company reproduces these monochromatic photographs in color by means of chromolithography.
