Abstract: The Ernest J. Kump Collection spans the years 1928 to 1992, and includes files created by Kump and his numerous firms. The collection is organized into six series: Personal Papers, Professional Papers, Office Records, Project Records, University of California, Santa Cruz, and Kump Research Projects. These records contain correspondence, project files, drawings, photographs, slides, research notes, articles, lectures, manuscripts, and patent files.

Access Statement
Collection is open for research. Many of the Environmental Design Archives collections are stored offsite and advance notice is required for use.

Publication Rights
All requests for permission to publish, reproduce, or quote from materials in the collection should be discussed with the Curator.

Preferred Citation
[Identification of Item], Ernest J. Kump Collection, (2005-19), Environmental Design Archives, University of California, Berkeley.

Funding
Arrangement and description of this collection was funded by a grant from the National Historic Publications and Records Commission (NHPRC).

Biographical Note
Ernest J. Kump, Jr. (1911-1999), was born in Bakersfield, CA. His father Ernest Kump, Sr was also an architect, Ernest Kump, Jr’s younger brother Peter became an architect in 1946, working in Menlo Park, CA, for most of his career. Kump, Jr. (hereafter referred to as Kump) married Josephine Clark Miller in 1934 and had two children.

Kump drafted for pioneer California architect J.N. Saffell (1858-1936) and studied under noted architectural educator Clarence Cullimore FAIA (1885-1963) at Kern County Union High School in Bakersfield. He received his B.A. from the University of California, Berkeley in 1932 and began studies for his Masters in Architecture at Harvard University, Cambridge, MA, in 1933. He was forced to return to California due to limited funding, where he worked for his father's architectural firm in Fresno. Kump, Sr. fired his son in 1934 over conflicting ideals on design, which the senior Kump characterized as “chicken coop architecture.”

Kump met Charles Franklin while working at his father’s office and they established the firm of Franklin & Kump in 1937 with offices in Fresno and Bakersfield. One of their earliest advanced designs was Fowler Grammar School (1933). Early work that established him as a brilliant and innovative architect included Bakersfield's Sill Building, the Fresno Civic Hall and Acalanes High School in Lafayette, hailed by critics as outstanding examples of innovative open plan modular construction.

Franklin and Kump rose to national distinction with their modern design for Fresno City Hall (1941), which was selected by the Museum of Modern Art in New York as one of the most significant American structures built between 1932 and 1944. They left Fresno for the Bay Area during World War II to provide the military with their architectural knowledge and skills. Kump worked with structural engineer Mark Falk where he applied his ideas on modular and prefabricated construction to produce the Naval Optical and Ordnance Building at Hunters Point, one of the world's first transparent multi-story buildings.

Following WWII, Franklin, Kump & Falk established a practice in San Francisco. This firm's legacy is preserved in the San Joaquin Valley by the high-profile United Airlines Airport Terminal at Merced (1947). This advanced International style facility received highest honors in the 1948 annual awards competition sponsored by Progressive Architecture.

Ernest J. Kump Collection 2005-19
In the late 1940s, Kump's partnership received multiple awards and recognitions due to Kump's influence as a public spokesman for modern architecture. Kump was a panelist on the very significant Planning Man's Physical Environment, a three-day symposium held at Princeton University in 1947 as part of the school's bicentennial celebration along with Alvar Aalto, Serge Chermayeff, Sigfried Gideon, Walter Gropius, Philip Johnson, George Fred Keck, Richard Neutra, Konrad Wachsmann, Frank Lloyd Wright, William Wurster and other eminent practitioners and scholars.

Kump formed Ernest Kump Associates in 1955 with offices in Palo Alto and New York. During this period he designed numerous educational buildings in California, including the much lauded Foothill College (with Peter Walker, landscape architect), De Anza College, and Crown College, University of California, Santa Cruz Other designs of recognition include the U.S. Embassy in Seoul, Korea and the Pacific Lumber Company Headquarters in San Francisco. In 1990, he partnered with Hiko Takeda to research and develop Kump was part of the Master Planning Committee at the University of California, Santa Cruz (UCSC), starting in 1961 with Theodore Bernardi, Robert Anshen, John Carl Warnecke and Thomas Church. He became the supervising architect for the UCSC in 1963, and also the architect for Crown College and for the Central Services Building.

Kump was a prolific inventor holding 59 international and U.S. patents. During the 1940s, Kump created Prebilt production designs as a solution to low cost, prefabricated structures. This technology was used to create defense housing during a collaboration with the noted firm of Wurster, Berardi, & Emmons. He created Tekkto Systems in 1970 to explore the potential of space age technology for mass production of low-cost housing. That same year, the American Institute of Architects recognized the importance of Ernest J. Kump Associates, praising Kump as "a pioneer of modular practices and systems concepts in architecture."

Kump authored several books, including the noted A New Architecture for Man, served on President Ronald Reagan's Task Force for Arts and Humanities and taught at many universities, including Harvard, Columbia, Stanford, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He was elected a fellow of the AIA in 1956, and was a member of the Royal Institute of British Architects, Royal Society of Arts in London, Akademie der Kunste in Berlin and the International Union of Architects and International Arts and Letters in Switzerland. He served as Chair, American Institute of Architects Committee on School Buildings, 1948-1949; as a judge for the American Institute of Steel Construction's 1949 contest for the most beautiful bridge in the U.S; as an AIA Delegate to the International Congress of Architects, 1951-1955; and as a member, City of Palo Alto, School Planning Committee, 1949-1955.

After retiring from active practice in the United States, Kump lived abroad and maintained a London office from which he continued working as an international architectural consultant. Until his death, Kump remained dedicated to his research on low-cost modular building systems for housing, educational, and community facilities. Ernest J. Kump, Jr., died in Zurich, Switzerland, on November 4, 1999.

System of Arrangement
The collection is organized into six series. Within each series, original order has been maintained when evident; however, much of the collection arrived with no evident order. In these cases, an order has been imposed by the archivists.

Scope and Contents
The Ernest J. Kump Collection spans the years 1928-1992 (bulk 1935-1990), and includes files created by Kump and his numerous firms. The collection is organized into six series: Personal Papers, Professional Papers, Office Records, Project Records, University of California - Santa Cruz, and Kump Research Projects. The collection documents his career including his education, architectural practice, and patented inventions. His career focused on designing educational buildings, of which many are well documented in this collection.

The Personal Papers series is limited and includes biographical information as well as student notebooks and drawings from Kump's education at Harvard University. Professional Papers contain correspondence with publishers and architects, extensive writings and presentation materials, records relating to involvement with associations and committees, awards, research, reference files, consulting files, and patents. Kump was a prolific inventor throughout his life, and the patent records document his process towards receiving exclusive rights for his work. The most significant materials in the Office Records series include brochures, photographs, and news clippings that extensively document completed projects. Project Records containing drawings, photographs, and files comprise the majority of the collection and span the entirety of Kump's career. Well documented projects include Acalanes Union High School (1939), College of the Virgin Islands (1965),
Ohlone College (1968), the Naval Optical and Ordnance Building at Hunters Point (1948), and the U.S. Embassy in Seoul Korea (1959). This series also includes a file documenting Kump’s involvement as a principal for the Kitty Hawk Associates Air Force Academy, of which Frank Lloyd Wright was the chief architect.

The University of California in Santa Cruz series is divided into four sections that document Kump’s involvement with the development of the university: Master Plan Committee, Consulting Architect, Crown College, and Central Services Building. Kump was a member of the Master Plan Committee and later served as the Consulting Architect. He was also the architect for Crown College and the Central Services Building.

The Research Projects series consists of records relating to several major projects that Kump worked on throughout his life. Many of these projects are examinations of how to create prefabricated, low cost designs for educational buildings and homes. This series is organized by specific research projects, which include notes, photographs, patents, and published writings.

Custodial History
The collection was retrieved from Kump’s home in Austria in 2005, where it had been stored in the basement and suffered damage from moisture. Prior to that, it had been stored at the Hoover Institute at Stanford University. Records relating to Foothill College and De Anza College are retained at the Foothill College Archives.

Colophon
The papers came to the Environmental Design Archives in one accession, from Kump’s home in Austria, which was his last place of residence. When Kump retired, his records were stored in Palo Alto and later shipped to Austria. In 2005 the records were packed and shipped to the Environmental Design Archives. These materials came to the archives in poor condition after having been exposed to moisture and mold at their previous location. In addition, a fire at the Palo Alto office on February 7, 1964 damaged many of Kump’s firm’s drawings beyond repair. Much of the original order was lost during the numerous times the records were packed and moved.

Physical Description: 8.5 Cubic Feet - Carton 3-4, 7-10, Flat Box 5, 11, Document Box 6

Arrangement

Arranged chronologically and alphabetically

Scope and Contents

Administrative records contain the history of Kump’s various firms. Public relations consist of firm and project brochures, as well as several film strips, including the 1959 School Building filmstrip that references Foothill College and was produced for the AASA School Building Architectural Exhibit in Atlantic City. Photographs and clippings are arranged into two categories: Kump and his firm, and projects. Materials relating to Kump and his firm are arranged chronologically and included on the file list, materials relating to projects are arranged alphabetically and listed on the project index.
