Descriptive Summary

Title: Robert N. Royston collection

Dates: 1941-1990

Bulk Dates: 1946-1971

Collection number: 1999-12

Creator: Royston, Robert N., 1918-

Collection Size: 1 manuscript box, 95 cartons, 24 cartons (folded drawings), 17 Flat File drawers

Repository: Environmental Design Archives. College of Environmental Design.

University of California, Berkeley.

Berkeley, California

Abstract: Contains records related to the life and career of landscape architect Robert N. Royston. The vast majority of this collection documents the projects of Royston's various firms, with a much smaller representation of Royston's work outside the firm in the professional or academic context. Of particular interest is Royston's participation in the landscape design for various sub-divisions and individual houses built by Eichler Homes and T. Jack Foster and Sons (Foster City). In addition, the many projects funded by FHA and HUD reflect both these organizations' involvement in design and development.

Physical location: For current information on the location of these materials, please consult the library's online catalog.

Languages: Languages represented in the collection: English

Access

Acquisition Information

The collection was acquired in 1999.

Biographical Note

Robert N. Royston (1918- ) began his career working weekends in the office of Thomas D. Church while he was a student in the landscape architecture program at the University of California, Berkeley. He continued to work for Church for two years following his graduation in 1940. However, after the bombing of Pearl Harbor, Royston enlisted and served in the Pacific Theater during World War II. Reaching the rank of Navy 1st Lieutenant, Royston returned to civilian life in California in 1945. In a 1998 interview he remarked that, "the War gave you a chance to think" and "I used to go into my cabin on the ship and design jewelry, houses, and gardens -- it kept me sane."

Following his return to California Royston had to choose between returning to Church's office or joining his friend Garrett Eckbo, a fellow recent graduate in landscape architecture, in opening a new firm. Feeling that Church kept "replaying themes from the past," he joined with Eckbo and Ed Williams who "had more future-oriented designs." Eckbo, Royston and Williams (ERW) worked together in the bay area for nearly two years. In 1947 they opened two independent offices. Eckbo managed the Southern California office while Royston and Williams ran the Northern California office.

From 1947-1950 Royston also taught in the landscape program at UC Berkeley. His students included Francis Violich, Asa Hanamoto (who eventually became his partner), and Francis Dean (who later became a partner in Eckbo's firm). After his professorship at UC Berkeley ended in 1950, Royston continued to lecture at universities throughout the country.

In 1958 Royston separated from ERW and formed Royston, Hanamoto & Mayes (RHM) with former student Asa Hanamoto and David R. Mayes. Over the next four decades, Royston's firm evolved through many changes in name and partnership. In 1962, Eldon Beck, who had joined the firm in 1958, became a partner and the firm was renamed Royston, Hanamoto, Mayes & Beck (RHMB). In 1966, David Mayes left the firm to open his own practice, and the following year associate Kazuo Abey was made partner, changing the firm name once again, this time to Royston, Hanamoto, Beck & Abey (RHBA). Eldon Beck left the firm in 1979 to pursue an academic career, making way for Louis G. Alley, who had joined the firm in 1960, to round out the current structure of Royston, Hanamoto, Alley & Abey (RHAA). In 1998, Royston retired from active practice at RHAA.

Although his early work included many residences, Royston is best known for his public projects not only in the United States but also in Latin American and Asia. In addition to designing numerous governmental facilities and university campuses, Royston played an integral role in a number of city redevelopment projects. He was hired by the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency to create an overall landscape concept for the Western Addition, Hunters Point and Diamond Heights and worked congruently with private organizations such as the African Methodist Episcopal Church to plan and execute landscape design for Freedom West, a transitional housing community in San Francisco. Royston also served on the Housing and Urban Development Region VI Advisory Committee (1967).

Scope and Contents Note

The records of the Robert Royston collection span the years 1941-1990, with the bulk of records spanning 1946-1971. The collection is organized into nine series: Professional Papers, Faculty Records, Office Records, Project Records, and five Major Projects: Bay Area Rapid Transit (Bart), California State University: Stanislaus College, San Joaquin Delta Junior College, University Of California, San Francisco, University of Utah. Within these series original order has been maintained wherever it is evident.

The vast majority of this collection documents the projects of Royston's various firms, with a much smaller representation of Royston's work outside the firm in the professional or academic context. Royston's work with many individual architects including John Lyon Reid, Henry Hill, Claude Oakland, John Dinwiddie, Fred Langhorst, Mario Corbett, Worley Wong, William Wurster, Callister & Hillmer, and John Funk is documented in the project records. Of particular interest is Royston's participation in the landscape design for various sub-divisions and individual houses built by Eichler Homes and T. Jack Foster and Sons (Foster City). In addition, the many projects funded by FHA and HUD reflect both these organizations' involvement in design and development.

Projects that received AIA awards were the T. Jack Foster residence in Orinda (1953) designed in conjunction with Henry Hill, and Hillsdale High School (1956), by John Lyon Reid. The firm received ASLA merit awards for Marina Vista Redevelopment, Quarry Theatre at UC Santa Cruz (1970), and Sunriver Properties (1971). The firm's work has been published in both national and international journals including Sunset Magazine, Architectural Forum, Huestra Arquitectura and L'Architecture d'Aujourd'hui.

The records in the Major Projects series were partially pulled together by the firm over a number of years. In order to make the projects more coherent, the remainder of various jobs related to each major project were pulled together into one arrangement. The firm's many professional relationships that spanned decades while completing extensive planning for institutions are documented in these series.
