Biographical/Historical Note

Esther Dyson was born July 14, 1951, in Zürich, Switzerland, to physicist Freeman Dyson and mathematician Verena Huber-Dyson. At age 16, Dyson was accepted to Harvard University, where she earned a bachelor's degree in economics in 1972. After graduation, she went to work at Forbes as a fact-checker and then reporter from 1974 to 1977. In 1977, she started working as a Wall Street securities analyst for New Court Securities (later called Rothschild) and then Oppenheimer and Company, specializing in high-tech and software companies.

In 1982, Dyson began working with Rosen Research firm and its founder, venture capitalist Ben Rosen. The next year, she bought the firm from Rosen, which included the newsletter Rosen's Electronic News and the annual PC Forum conference. She renamed the firm EDventure Holdings and the newsletter Release 1.0, and began organizing PC Forum, which she helmed each year until its last conference in 2006. After Dyson took it over, PC Forum was considered one of the premier conferences in the technology industry.

Dyson published Release 1.0 from 1983 through 2006, with a break in 1985 when she accepted an offer to edit Ziff-Davis' short-lived newsletter Computer Industry Daily (CID), which only lasted a few months. Release 1.0 focused on Dyson's analysis and projections of emerging technologies, and the software and technology industries. As a paid-subscription publication, Release 1.0 had a fairly small readership but its subscribers were considered highly influential in the industry. With EDventure Holdings, Dyson has invested in technology start-ups, more recently focusing on health care and aerospace. In the late 1980s, she started investing in Eastern and Central European technology ventures. She was an early investor in Flickr, Evernote, Medstory, and Square, and was active in the sale of Flickr to Yahoo! and Medstory to Microsoft. In the 1990s, Dyson became involved in internet public policy. She chaired several organizations, including the National Information Infrastructure Advisory Council (NIIAC) and the Electronic Frontier Foundation (EFF), and she was a founding chair of the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN).

Dyson's book, Release 2.0: A Design for Living in the Digital Age, was published in 1997, and she has written columns for the New York Times, ZDNet, Project Syndicate, the Guardian, Content magazine, and other publications. Dyson sold EDventure Holdings, Release 1.0, and PC Forum to CNET Networks in 2004. She left CNET three years later, but has continued to work under the EDventure Holdings name. She also sits on the boards of several companies and nonprofits.

Scope and Content of the Collection

The Esther Dyson papers are comprised of material Dyson collected from 1974 to 2001, with the bulk of material from 1980 to 1996, related to her work analyzing and making projections on emerging technologies, her industry newsletter Release 1.0, and her venture capitalism firm EDventure Holdings.

The largest part of the collection contains material related to various topics, companies, and products that reflect Dyson's venture capitalism and interest in the computer and software industry. A smaller but significant part of the collection relates to Dyson's industry-analyst newsletter Release 1.0 and its Eastern European-focused sister publication Rel-EAST, including edited drafts of the newsletters and material used for research on the subjects, products, and companies she wrote about. The smallest part of the collection consists of books, manuals, periodicals, and computer industry conference proceedings and workbooks that are focused on computer technology, software, programming, and development.

Arrangement

The collection is arranged into 3 series:

Series 1, Subject files, 1974-2001, bulk 1980-1996

Series 2, Release 1.0 files, 1979-1996

Series 3, Books, manuals, periodicals, and conference material, 1982-1992

Separated Material

Software was separated from the main collection (X2957.2005). To view catalog records for separated material, search the CHM catalog at <http://www.computerhistory.org/collections/search/>.

Series Scope and Content

This series is made up of material Dyson collected on a variety of companies, products, and topics from 1974 to 2001, with the bulk of the series from 1980 to 1996. The material reflects Dyson's interest and involvement in the software and computer technology industry, venture capitalism, and internet public policy. Press releases, promotional material, handwritten notes, articles, and company financial information make up the bulk of the material. Dyson organized these files alphabetically by using the subject or company name as the folder title, and that filing system has been retained in our arrangement of material. This series is arranged alphabetically by folder title.

Release 1.0 files Series 2, 1979-1996

Sereis Scope and Content

This series consists of material related to Dyson's monthly technology industry newsletter Release 1.0. Material dates from 1979 to 1996. Included are Dyson's drafts of the periodical and working files that contain notes and information about products, companies, and subjects that were used as research for or were featured in the newsletter. A small portion of this series includes material related to her short-lived quarterly newsletter Rel-EAST, which focused on Eastern Europe's emerging computer technology market.

Arrangement

This series is arranged in 2 subseries:

Series 2.1, Drafts, 1988-1992

Series 2.2, Working files, 1979-1996

Drafts, Subseries 2.1 1988-1992

Subseries Scope and Content

This subseries includes drafts of Release 1.0 from 1988 to 1992. The drafts show the development of each issue, with handwritten edits, changes in stories and headlines, and correspondence with others who edited or wrote articles. A few folders include material related to research about subjects for the periodical, including articles, brochures, press releases, and Dyson's notes. This subseries also includes drafts of the August and October 1991 issues of Dyson's quarterly Eastern European-focused newsletter Rel-EAST. This subseries is arranged chronologically.
