Biographical / Historical
The Palos Verdes Library District (PVLD) is an independent library district serving the four cities of the Palos Verdes Peninsula: Palos Verdes Estates, Rolling Hills, Rolling Hills Estates and Rancho Palos Verdes. The district has one main library, Peninsula Center, and two branch libraries, Malaga Cove and Miraleste.

PVLD had its beginnings as the Palos Verdes Branch of the Los Angeles County Free Library Service. The library opened to the public in June 1926 and was housed in an upstairs room of the Gardner Building, the first commercial building of the Palos Verdes Project. The by-laws of the Palos Verdes Homes Association, the community association of the Palos Verdes Project, authorized the creation of a library board with three members. Romayne Martin, one of the three original board members, spearheaded the effort to separate from the County and establish an independent library district. A petition to order an election to form the independent library district was circulated to the residents of Palos Verdes in 1927. An election was held in January 1928 and by overwhelming vote residents authorized the formation of the PVLD. PVLD is governed by a Library Board of Trustees composed of publicly elected board members.

The construction of the District's first free-standing library building was funded in 1928 with the passage of a $90,000 bond vote. The Board of Trustees hired local resident and well-known architect Myron Hunt to draw up plans for a library building. The building cost $60,000 with the remaining balance used to acquire and landscape the site and furnish the building. The furnishings were specially made by the Palos Verdes Furniture Guild at Portuguese Bend and are replicas of renaissance tables and chairs brought from Italy by Frank Vanderlip. The Olmsted Brothers, hired by the Palos Verdes Project to layout the whole Peninsula, landscaped the library grounds and adjoining park.

Agnes I. MacMillan was appointed as the District's first librarian in May 1930. On June 3, 1930 the Palos Verdes Public Library and Art Gallery opened to the public. An official dedication ceremony took place on June 27, 1930 with a delegation from the American Library Association present.

From 1930-1967 the library building in Malaga Cove served as the main library for the Peninsula. With the population growth in the 1950s the single facility was insufficient to meet the needs of the growing Palos Verdes community. In May 1961, the Peninsula Friends of the Library and the District worked together to expand the District's facilities. Through a series of local bond measures, the community funded the Peninsula Center Library (1967) in Rolling Hills Estates and the Miraleste Library (1970) in Rancho Palos Verdes, thus reaching the population centers on the Peninsula. Malaga Cove became a branch facility of the District and the library board was increased from 3 to 5 members.

In 1991, a $16,000,000 bond was approved via election for renovation and expansion of the Peninsula Center Library. Construction on the facility started in 1992. When the new building re-opened in September 1995, its square footage had more than doubled.

In 1995, the Malaga Cove Library was put on the National Register of Historic Places and the California Register of Historical Resources.

Correspondence 1926-2004; bulk 1926-1947

Physical Description: 10 Folders
Scope and Contents
The bulk of the correspondence (1926-1931) chronicles the inception of the Palos Verdes Library District (PVLD) and the land acquisition, construction, furnishing and grand opening of the library at Malaga Cove through letters and attached documents written and received by Charles H. Cheney, Romayne Martin, Myron Hunt, the Library Board of Trustees, the Olmsted Brothers, Jay Lawyer, the County of Los Angeles Free Library and Frank Vanderlip. Correspondence of the 1930s-1950s includes letters sent and received by the Board of Trustees and by librarian, Agnes MacMillan, regarding the contract with the Los Angeles County Free Library to supply materials to PVLD, purchases for the burgeoning library's collection, the Works Progress Administration, the purchase of a Florentine Triptych from the Vanderlips, tax lawsuits, the Harbor Hills Housing Project, the Chelsie Final Kraemer Memorial Fund, and the sudden death of Agnes MacMillan in 1956.
