Committee History
The Senate Judiciary Committee was among the first committees created during California's first legislative session. On December 21, 1849, the third standing committee of the Senate to be created was that of Judiciary (1850 Senate Journal, page 28). Initially, the Senate Judiciary Committee was granted jurisdiction over "so much as relates to hanging for stealing," any "Act of Congress in relation to the grant of swamp and overflowed land," and any "repeal, amendment, or enactment of laws" (Ibid., page 51). In 1854, the standing committee's focus was substantially narrowed to address matters which "[relate] to amendments of the State Constitution" (1854 Senate Journal, page 58).

The jurisdiction of the committee remained relatively the same over the intervening period. By 1945, the Senate Judiciary Committee had expanded its scope to include "all bills amending the following codes: Civil Code, Code of Civil Procedure, Probate Code, Penal Code, and [all] statutes of a penal nature not related closely to a subject embraced in some other code" (Legislative Committees: 1945-1946, page 20.1). In 1953, the Senate Judiciary Committee added "Corporations Code, except for Corporate Securities Act" to their jurisdiction, where it remained until 1969 (Legislative Committees: 1953-1954,
The Senate Judiciary Committee member's head count has fluctuated over the course of its history. Claiming as few as three members, as in 1850, and as many as twenty, as in 1905 and 1907, the standing committee's membership has averaged about twelve members. However, as of the 2009-2010 legislative session, the committee was comprised of only five members.

Scope and Content

The records of the Senate Standing Committee on Judiciary and its related subcommittees contain approximately 199 cubic feet of textual materials, 1700 cassette tapes, 51 CDs, and 26 VHS tapes. The records are organized with the records of the Standing Committee first, followed alphabetically by the names of the Subcommittees. The series described throughout this record group include Bill Files (1969-2004), Hearing Files (1850-1986), Subject Files (1961-1979), Correspondence (1857-1982), Minutes (1862-1895), and Reports (1850-1979).

The Bill Files document the legislative bills directed to the Standing Committee on Judiciary and the Subcommittee on Administration of Justice. The files include committee analysis, letters from interested parties, and the comments of affected agencies. Bill files are extremely useful to researchers seeking to track the evolution of a bill and to gauge the public's response to specific legislation. From 1995 to 2004, the Senate Judiciary Committee heard thousands of bills covering a broad range of topics. Some recurring issues addressed during this period include: mobile home regulations, elder and dependent abuse, public records, eminent domain, internet privacy, child custody, adoption, domestic violence, gender discrimination, payday lenders, and workplace harassment. This diverse subject range reflects the broad reach and scope of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The Hearing Files pertain to the committee's investigation of certain topics. The files include agendas, transcripts, precedent and background materials, internal and external correspondence from interested parties, and relevant news clippings. Researchers may note that Hearing Files from earlier sessions of the standing committee are available in the form of bound transcripts, whereas more recent files frequently include audio cassettes in the place of text. Hearing files may originate from either the standing committees or subcommittees.

The Subject Files contain various types of information deemed useful to the committee. In the course of drafting legislation and holding hearings, the Senate Judiciary Committee usually requires a fair amount of supplemental data regarding their respective topics. These files include additional information on an existing bill or hearing file, material related to proposed legislation, or documents related to committee administration. The subject files inventoried here originated from the standing committee between the years 1961 to 1979. The topics, ranging from Family Court to traffic, again illustrate the expansive scope of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Other file types originating from the Senate Judiciary Committee include Correspondence, Reports, and Minutes. The Correspondence series contains letters and memoranda relevant to the committee. Authors, recipients, subjects, and dates may vary greatly. Types of documents include hearing schedules, pending and proposed legislation, bills referred for study, press releases, and news clippings. The Reports document the committee's findings on various topics of study referred to them. These files originate from the standing committee and the Senate Subcommittee on Narcotics Trafficking. The Minutes document the proceedings of a meeting of the committee on a specific date. As these files are from the earliest years of the committee's history, they originate only from the standing committee.

The Senate Judiciary Committee records also include the records of many subcommittees. The subcommittee files focus on specific judicial issues and contain material such as public hearing files, bill files, reports, and correspondence.
