Acquisition Information

In 1957, Larry Booth, photographer and photograph curator for Union Title Co., acquired thousands of negatives slated for destruction by the San Diego Union. In 1979, these were transferred to the San Diego Historical Society. A second gift of negatives spanning 1945 to 1981 were donated to the San Diego Historical Society by the San Diego Union-Tribune Publishing Company in 1984. Together, these accessions form one collection.

Biography / Administrative History

The San Diego Union began publishing in 1868 when San Diego's population was barely over 2,000 citizens. Industrialist John D. Spreckels purchased the newspaper in 1890. The San Diego Evening Tribune was founded in 1895. In 1901, Spreckels also purchased the Evening Tribune. In 1928, Colonel Ira C. Copley of the Copley newspaper chain purchased both the Union and the Evening Tribune. The two newspapers operated separately until 1992 when they merged to form the San Diego Union-Tribune. The San Diego Sun was founded by editor Horace Stevens in 1881 and purchased by E.W.
Scripps of the Scripps-Howard chain in 1892. The newspaper published until 1939 when it was merged with the San Diego Evening Tribune. Between 1939 and 1950 the paper was entitled the San Diego Tribune-Sun. The newspaper reverted back to the name San Diego Evening Tribune in 1950.

1950  The newspaper reverted back to the name San Diego Evening Tribune.
1992  The San Diego Union and the San Diego Evening Tribune merged to form the San Diego Union-Tribune.

Funding Information
The San Diego Newspaper Photograph Cataloging Project was made possible by a generous two year matching grant provided by the National Historical Publications and Records Commission to the San Diego Historical Society. The grant provided funding for employee salaries and supplies to describe and preserve more than 150,000 negatives in the San Diego Union-Tribune photograph collection dating from 1910-1975 (bulk 1915-1957). This represents a portion of total collection which spans through 1981.

Processing Information
From July 2003 through July 2005, a team of project archivists worked on-site at Historical Society to accomplish these goals. The Project Director was John Panter. Project Archivists were: Therese James, July 2003-June 2004; Jessica Silver, July 2004-June 2005. Project Assistants included Rebecca Gerber, Robert Ross, Miranda Nighbor and Emily Posedel. Project staff were assisted by Project Consultant Gabriela A. Montoya, an intern, and more than twenty volunteers from the San Diego community.

Images were first cataloged in the Historical Society's in-house catalog using SydneyPLUS software. Selected descriptive information was then exported to the Online Archive of California to form this finding aid.

Scope and Content of Collection
The San Diego Historical Society's holdings of Union-Tribune newspaper photographs consist almost entirely of original photographic negatives of San Diego news events taken by staff photographers between approximately 1910 and 1981. This guide addresses images taken primarily between 1915 and 1957. These files contain more than 150,000 images submitted by photographers from their assignments, and are not limited to images actually published. Physical formats present include chiefly 4x5 inch glass plates, 4x5 inch film negatives, 120 film, and 35mm film, and photographic prints. The vast majority of negatives are black and white. Copy negatives are also present throughout the collection, presumably made from photographic prints loaned to the newspaper or for internal duplication purposes. Also included are photographic assignment sheets and newspaper clippings.

Subjects present in the collection document the history of San Diego and in turn, California and the nation. Images depict local and national politics including relations with Mexico, air, rail and automobile transportation, housing and urban development, the tuna fishing industry and other business enterprises, and tourist attractions including the San Diego Zoo and San Diego's 1915 and 1935 Expositions. Also extensively documented are San Diego County community events, locations, residences and other buildings, social and religious organizations and clubs, recreational and professional sports, municipal services, education and health services, the arts, and crime. Throughout the collection are images of prominent residents and visiting dignitaries. Portraits predominate throughout all series. The extent of the images encompassed by the collection allows in-depth examination into the rapidly changing cultural, political and social mores of the region, state and nation.

Arrangement
The San Diego Historical Society holdings of the Union-Tribune photograph archive described by this guide are arranged in five parts, as received by the library. Series 1-4 consist of photographic negatives, and Series 5 consists of photographic prints.

Series 1-4 each represent a different organizational approach employed by the newspaper when these were the current, working photographic negative files. Series 1-4 break down along roughly chronological lines, with Series 1 and 3 containing the earliest images, and Series 2 and 4, the latest. There is some date overlap amongst the four series. The internal arrangement of each series is generally alphabetical by subject or by personal surname rather than chronological. A unique local control number corresponds to each negative and identifies the series to which it belongs:

Series 1. UT1 - UT8238, UT8241
Series 2. UT84:21715 - UT84:35539
Series 3. UT8326 - UT25683
Series 4. UT84:1 - UT84:21714
Series 5. N/A

Guide to Descriptive Text and Searching
Within this finding aid, descriptive approaches to each part of the collection vary according to the arrangement of that part and the descriptive resources available.

Series 1: Subjects, 1910-1947. 1915-1942 (bulk)
Descriptions are paragraphs about 21 groups of negatives by subject. Descriptions include: the subject category name, an estimate of the number of images present, the years present in it, and a variable-length summary of the types of images or subject content present. Selected highlights and subjects of higher potential interest are noted. In these summaries a few lines of text may represent several hundred negatives. This series contains numerous images of people and activities and overlaps in content and dates with Series 3, Individuals and activities.

In general, subjects were assigned by the Union-Tribune. No standardized vocabulary or subject terms were employed. Descriptions are based upon original negative sleeve annotations, often supplemented by observations made by staff. In some cases, some research as to context was carried out. Spelling errors were generally corrected. Original lists, index cards, photographic assignment sheets, newspaper clippings and photographic prints that may have originally accompanied this series are no longer extant.

This series is not physically organized by subject, and the existence of a local negative numbering system long in use prevented its reorganization. Within the existing organization, negatives assigned to a given subject have too many associated local item numbers for the space of this finding aid. Information about local item numbers is instead made available through the Research Library's on-site public access catalog.

By subject:
Brief, single-term keyword searching is advised.

By name:
Brief, single-term keyword searching is advised. Surnames alone for individuals are suggested.

By date or other information:
Library staff can provide assistance for researchers wanting to know more detailed information about image or subject content. Researchers may also visit the Historical Society to search the on-site public access catalog.

Descriptions are provided for 25 subject groupings based on original subjects assigned by Union-Tribune. Staff modified original subjects infrequently to reduce subject duplication or facilitate research. Two to three levels of description are present for most subject groupings. The top level is the most is the most general description, summarizing large numbers of negatives. Most subjects are then described at more detailed levels.

For all subject groupings, a summary description provides an overview of the contents of that section. This description includes: the subject category name, the range of local item numbers that represent it, an estimate of the number of images present, the years present in it, and a variable-length summary of the types of images or subject content present. Selected highlights and subjects of higher potential interest are noted. In these summaries a few lines of text may represent several hundred or several thousand negatives.

More detailed level descriptions frequently include descriptions of events or activities, place names, and names of residents as well as figures of local, state and national prominence. Not all names provided by the original negative sleeve annotations are noted. However, original sleeves frequently containing photographic prints have been retained to serve as an index and source of captions and other detailed information. They are available for use at the Research Library.

Series 3: Individuals and activities, 1910-1951 (1922-1948, bulk), and Series 4: Individuals and activities, 1940-1960 (1946-1957, bulk)

Descriptions are for selected negatives organized alphabetically into groups: A-E; F-J; K-O; P-T; U-Z. Groups correspond to the surnames of people pictured and are based upon the original organization and indexing system of the Union-Tribune.

Information provided includes: surname and first name of a selected person, year or years pictured, and the approximate number of images in entire group.

Staff selected fewer than five percent of negatives for inclusion in these group descriptions. Of the thousands of San Diego residents, visitors, and local events pictured, only persons representing higher potential historical interest or those with a relatively large number of negatives were noted. The totality of names is recorded in the Research Library's public access catalog. Names recorded there are based on original annotations found on negative sleeves.
For Series 3, place names, events pictured, and dates frequently are missing, inaccurate, or provided as “circa” dates. A series of index cards created by Historical Society staff or received from the Union-Tribune provides additional references to persons pictured throughout the series. For Series 4, annotations are more extensive and reliable. Additionally, photographic assignments sheets, instructions to the photographer for a given shoot, frequently provide additional historical and cultural context about place names, events, and exact dates. These are organized by the local item number and are available for research.

For both series, newspaper clippings and photographic prints that accompanied negatives are organized separately and arranged by local item number. Prints sometimes corresponding to negatives are found in Series 5.

By name:
Brief, single-term keyword searching is advised. Surnames alone for individuals are suggested.

For additional names and other details:
Library staff can provide assistance for researchers seeking surnames not recorded in this finding aid. Researchers may also visit the Historical Society to search the on-site public access catalog.

Series 5: Photographic prints (ca. 1915-1957)

Black and white photographic prints of various sizes found throughout Series 2, 3 and 4 have been placed in this series. A given print sometimes corresponds to an extant negative. When it does not, the negatives most likely were not received with the collection.

Prints in Series 2 are housed within original negatives sleeves and are available for research. No container list is available. Prints in Series 3 and 4, frequently edited and marked by newspaper production staff, are arranged in loose alphabetical order by surname of person pictured. Descriptions are available in an alphabetical container list that provides only surname, first name, and print binder number. Dates, local item numbers (sometimes corresponding to extant negatives) and other information are sometimes noted on the verso of a given image. Print binders can be browsed on-site.

Staff devoted limited resources to this series because it fell outside the scope of the grant responsible for funding this cataloging project.

By name:
Brief, single-term keyword searching is advised. Surnames alone for individuals are suggested.

By date or other information:
Additional information is available to on-site researchers interested in browsing the print binders.

Images of a reception and parade held to honor Charles Lindbergh (1927) are in found in Series 1.6, Events, parades and celebrations.
1.4 Balboa Park

Physical Description: 455 negatives.

Subseries Scope and Content Summary

Images portray events, activities and people in Balboa Park, primarily during the 1915 and 1935 Expositions. Illustrating the 1915 Exposition are images of building and exhibit hall construction, exhibits, visitors, and crowds throughout park. Also represented are Native American men and women, military parades and reviews, straw electric cars (known as electroquettes), crowds strolling the Cabrillo Bridge, and high profile Exposition visitors including Buffalo Bill Cody, Secretary of the Treasury William McAdoo, and groups of Japanese diplomats.

The 1935 Exposition is depicted through images of crowds, buildings and exhibits including Indian Village. Highlights include images of Catholic Day Parade, Kansas Day, the Japanese Tea Garden and images of prominent San Diegans and government officials such as Gov. Frank F. Merriam. Other highlights include a series of images of Balboa Stadium (1915-1938). Found here are images of Balboa Park landmarks and events unrelated to the Expositions, including a memorial service for President Harding at Spreckels Organ Pavilion (1923), and documentation of the Fine Arts Building (1941).

1.5 Buildings and businesses

Physical Description: 445 negatives.

Subseries Scope and Content Summary

Interior and exterior images of San Diego businesses, organizations and residences including banks, churches, historic sites, hotels, industrial facilities, newspapers, radio stations, residential apartments and homes, and theaters. Images of business related activities include employees at work, participating in work sponsored sports teams and special events, and posed formally. Included are the annual Union-Tribune Ryan Christmas Party at Lindbergh Field (1931-1938) and views of more than 25 San Diego churches and synagogues. Images of schools, military buildings and Balboa Park buildings are found in other subseries.

1.6 Events, parades and celebrations

Physical Description: 155 negatives.

Subseries Scope and Content Summary

Images portray ceremonies, conventions, parades and other celebrations in the city of San Diego. Highlights include images of dedication day events at the Serra Museum (1929), more than 45 images of a parade and reception honoring Charles Lindbergh (1927), and a visit to San Diego by the Prince of Wales (1920).
1.7 Government services and facilities

Physical Description: 210 negatives.

Subseries Scope and Content Summary
Negatives portray city, county and federal government buildings in the city of San Diego. Included are images of government officials and employees working and posed formally, as well as people in jails and courts. Officials include selected San Diego mayors (Capps, Irones), city managers, congressmen, and governors.

Views of city buildings (Post Office, Police Station, and Civic Center) often show construction and related dedication events. Fewer than ten images show buildings in Escondido, East San Diego, National City and San Ysidro.

Examples of other images found here include the Post Office baseball team (portrait, 1924), San Diego police department staff (ca. 1915-1940), fire stations, companies and fires scenes (1920-1923), unidentified women in jail (ca. 1910-ca. 1912), and female jurors in Superior Court (ca. 1916).

1.8 Hospitals and medicine

Physical Description: 65 negatives.

Subseries Scope and Content Summary

Interior and exterior views of more than 14 hospitals, sanitariums and other health care facilities in San Diego County. Featured prominently are Mercy Hospital, San Diego County Hospital, Naval Hospital and Children's Hospital.

Images also show patients, medical staff at work, and building construction.

Of special interest are images of nurses in surgery at Mercy Hospital (ca. 1919), tuberculosis patients recovering at Vauclain Home (ca. 1920), and WWI Nurses at Camp Kearney (ca.1914-1919).

1.9 Mexico

Physical Description: 320 negatives.

Subseries Scope and Content Summary

Images of street scenes, buildings, people, and events primarily in Tijuana and other locations in Baja, California. Most prominently featured are horse racing and golf, both at Agua Caliente, and copy negative images of the Tijuana Insurrection including military men, crowds and battle scenes (1911). Also pictured are Tijuana cafes, saloons, hotels and tourist oriented businesses often with Mexican public figures and San Diegans.

Highlights include racehorse "Seabiscuit" at Aqua Caliente Handicap (1938), images of the Coffroth Handicap (1925-1928), construction of Rodriguez Dam (1930), and Alvaro High School dedication ceremony (1930).
1.10 Military

Physical Description: 400 negatives.
Subseries Scope and Content Summary

Locations pictured include Army Barracks at Market St., Balboa Park, Camp Callan, Camp Elliot, Camp Kearny, Ft. Rosecrans and Wilkeson Battery, the Eleventh Naval District at Broadway, Marine Corps Rifle Range at La Jolla, Marine Corps Base, Naval Training Center and Naval Radio Station in Point Loma, and other military installations throughout the county.
Activities pictured include a variety of training exercises and drills, artillery demonstrations, parades, reviews and other ceremonies. Individual and group portraits of military personnel include General Pendleton (ca. 1916, 1924), Admiral Robert E. Coontz (1923), and many others. Images of companies and regiments include the 11th US Cavalry (1940), Baker Company 372 (1919), and others. Army, Navy and Marine bands are pictured throughout the group. Army football team (1925), Fleet Air Football Team (1925), Naval Air Track Team (1927), and other teams are shown in formal and informal poses.
Notable are images of sailors waiting to testify before Board of Inquiry for a Navy destroyer disaster (1923), and of parachuters in training at Camp Elliot (1941).

1.11 Miscellaneous

Physical Description: 60 negatives.
Subseries Scope and Content Summary
Images of locations outside of San Diego County (San Francisco, Sacramento, Kansas, New York), generally aerial views, street scenes and building exteriors. Also found here are images lacking identifying information or outside the scope of other subseries topics. Examples include images of a sheep, fish and ostrich, New York City street scenes on Fifth Ave (1930), and the San Diego Sun's front page headline declaring the end of WWI (1918).

1.12 Nautical subjects

Physical Description: 155 negatives.
Subseries Scope and Content Summary
Views of commercial and private fishing boats, whaling ships, freighters, ferries boats, private yachts, and other vessels. Also pictured are captains, crews, passengers, and others, often identified by name. Among other vessels pictured are the yacht, Velero III, including crew and passengers Capt. G. Allen Hancock, Dr. Harry Wegeworth and Belle Benchley. Well represented are military vessels and events including the return of the Naval Fleet to San Diego harbor, and decorated naval ships and destroyers docked for "Navy Days."
Notable are images of ship workers at Peter Rose plant (ca. 1930), images of the USS Constitution "Old Ironsides" at San Diego Harbor (1933), and views of damage to a Scripps research vessel (ca. 1936).
More than 1,500 additional images of San Diego vessels during this period are found in Series 1.18, Ships.
1.13 Organizations and clubs

Physical Description: 335 negatives.

Subseries Scope and Content Summary

Negatives illustrate the activities of local and national fraternal associations, business clubs, sports clubs, country clubs, community service organizations, labor organizations, and political groups.

Depicted are conventions, parades, groundbreaking events, strikes, riots, demonstrations and other sponsored events. Significant are the Veterans of Foreign Wars Convention parade (1934), Communist riot (1933), a KKK demonstration and explosion (1926), and Woman's Christian Temperance Union (WCTU) Convention (1929). More than one hundred images document strikes against food, entertainment and lumber industries and San Diego city departments (1936-1945). Events on a smaller scale, such as an Al Bahr group camel christening (1915) and the San Diego Rowing Club's Annual New Year's Dip (1935) illustrate the variety of activities in which local groups were engaged.

1.14 People

Physical Description: 555 negatives.

Subseries Scope and Content Summary

Images of San Diego residents and visitors including politicians, actors, musicians, scientists and military officials. Well represented are ethnic groups and people including Chinese, Japanese and Native Americans. Includes numerous images of unidentified men, women and youth posed formally and informally, as well as unidentified groups in varied poses. Of interest are newsboys (1924) and female taxi drivers (1942).

Also found here are prominent San Diegans such as John D. Spreckels (1923) and Kate Sessions (ca. 1932), actors such as Lawrence Oliver (1939-1940), Clark Gable (1940), Harpo Marx (1942), and Bette Davis (1935), and other well-known individuals including Helen Keller (ca. 1920-1925) and Theodore Roosevelt (ca.1915-1916).

Thousands of additional images of people pictured during this time are found in Series 3, Activities and Individuals.

1.15 San Diego communities and locations

Physical Description: 1,390 negatives.

Subseries Scope and Content Summary

Pictured are more than sixty towns, communities, monuments, structures and sites. Best represented are the cities of San Diego and Coronado. Also pictured are East County communities and cities (Alpine, Julian, La Mesa, Lemon Grove, Ramona, Santee), South Bay (National City), North County (Carifff, Del Mar, Escondido, La Jolla, Oceanside) and other beach communities (Point Loma, Mission Beach, Ocean Beach and Pacific Beach). Historical sites and districts include the San Diego waterfront (1913-1927), Old Town (1913-1943), Mission San Antonia de Pala (1932), Mission San Diego de Alcala (1920-1941) and Mission San Luis Rey (1916, 1938).

Other sites include Palomar Mountain Observatory and numerous dams (Barrett, El Capitan, Lake Murray, Otay, Sutherland, San Vincente), lakes and bridges. Events such as Escondido Grape Day Parade (1923, 1936, 1939), Ramona Turkey Day Parade (1934), and La Jolla Parade (ca. 1921-ca. 1924) illustrate San Diego communities at play.
1.16 San Diego Zoo

Physical Description: 155 negatives.
Subseries Scope and Content Summary
Negatives depict birds, cats, deer, elephants, primates and other animals at the San Diego Zoo. Animals are often pictured with Zoo visitors or staff, in habitats or performing. Zoo buildings are also pictured. Highlights include images "Happy" the elephant wearing eyeglasses (1925) and Belle Benchley, Zoo Director with orangutan (1934).

1.17 Schools, colleges and universities

Physical Description: 275 negatives.
Subseries Scope and Content Summary
Interior and exterior views of elementary and secondary schools, colleges, military academies and other learning institutions. Pictured are student clubs, graduations, school dedications and events such as San Diego High School "Tacky Day" (1924). Featured prominently are both college and high school boy's and men's sports teams posed formally in groups. Of note are images of Scripps Institute (ca. 1920-1940), Nazareth House (1925), and Francis Parker School (1934).

1.18 Ships

Physical Description: 1,500 negatives.
Subseries Scope and Content Summary
Images of ships are organized into 24 groups by vessel type: Steam ships; Schooners; Sailing vessels; Sailboats; Ferries; Dredges; Foreign naval ships; Aircraft carriers; Battleships; Boats; Aircraft; Coast Guard; Cruisers; Naval auxiliaries; Destroyers; Freighters; Yachts; Submarines; Speed boats; Side wheelers; Tugs; Tuna boats; Miscellaneous ships; and People.
Black and white glass and film negatives document nautical history of San Diego with views of military and civilian vessels. Also documented are people associated with air travel and naval warfare including ship captains, sailors, congressional members, wives, children, pilots, mechanics, and chiefs. Included are christening and launching ceremonies for both military and civilian ships. Highlights include the visit of USS Constitution (also known as Old Ironsides) to San Diego. Views of ships are primarily from docks. Other views illustrate ships underway, and views of people on or near ships.
Prints made from negatives in this subseries are found in Series 5, Photographic prints. Additional images of vessels during this period are found in Series 1.12, Nautical subjects.
Arrangement
Negatives are arranged numerically. Original numbering system was retained. Local item numbers begin UT8241-.
Access Note
Further processing is required. Handwritten finding aid compiled in 1980s is available in paper format with numerous inaccuracies.
1.19 Sports and recreation

Physical Description: 485 negatives.

Subseries Scope and Content Summary

Images show spectators and athletes observing or participating in baseball, football, golf, tennis, horse racing, auto racing, surfing, swimming and aquaplaning (water skiing). The majority of images feature adult male amateur athletes in action, individually or with team members. Images of San Diego State College football players (ca. 1922-1923) in action and professional baseball teams (White Sox and others) are included. With the exception of the San Diego State Girls Crew Team (1935), women are pictured playing tennis, golf, or water sports.

Sporting events include golf tournaments at the San Diego Country Club and elsewhere, horse races at Del Mar (1937, 1941), and tennis and swimming tournaments such as the Silver Gate Channel Swim (1930) in La Jolla. Of special interest are Charles Wright and Faye Baird “surf boarding” (1926), Babe Ruth duck hunting (1927), “aquaplaners” and “sea sleds” off Coronado (ca. 1918-1924), and Bing Crosby and others at the Bing Crosby Golf Tournament, Rancho Santa Fe (1938-1942).

The remaining images include lawn bowling at Balboa Park (1932), boxing, fishing, motor-boating, polo, and yachting. Formal group portraits of school, club, company and military teams are found across other subseries.

1.20 Transportation

Series 4 Activities and individuals 1940-1960 1946-1957

Physical Description: 36,157 negatives.

Series Scope and Content Summary

Black and white film negatives are organized into five groups by surname of primary person indexed: A-E; F-J; K-O; P-T; U-Z.

The majority of images document postwar life in San Diego County as captured by the newspaper's photographers. Thousands of images feature military personnel of all ranks, military ceremonies and private celebrations. Local business, political, religious, and social leaders are frequently pictured as are other San Diego officials, judges, law enforcement officers, librarians and teachers, scientists and inventors, film stars, artists, authors and athletes. Also shown are criminals at City Jail and County Jail, during judicial proceedings, and views of crime scenes. Neighborhood postal carriers are pictured individually throughout 1949.

Cultural activities are represented by images of weddings and anniversaries, charity balls, fashion shows and beauty contests, and members of clubs and organizations. Women are pictured most frequently as members of social clubs or in the home. Views of WAVES and other military servicewomen, and women performing nontraditional work, illustrate changing roles for women in the postwar period.

Effects of broader politics are illustrated by images of visiting state and national politicians, visiting foreign dignitaries, and newly arrived Central European refugees and war brides. As evidence of the Korean Conflict are hundreds of "daddy no see" images featuring mothers with newborns, Gold Star mothers, and mothers of POW's.

Images of members of the newspaper's own staff are found throughout the series. Corresponding newspaper clippings and photographic assignment sheets created by newspaper staff are available for some negatives.

Additional images of people pictured in Series 4 are found in Series 5, Photographic prints.

Arrangement

Negatives are arranged alphabetically by surname of primary person indexed. Newspaper clippings and photographic assignment sheets are organized separately and arranged by local item number.

Access Note

Comprehensive access to names of individuals pictured is available through the San Diego Historical Society's public access catalog. Container list is not available.
