Biographical note

Lynn Lonidier was born in Lakeview, Oregon on April 22, 1937. Often describing herself as a "card-carrying anarchafeminist," Lonidier was a teacher, author and multimedia and theater performance artist. As a West Coast writer, she was active in the San Francisco literary scene, especially within the lesbian/feminist community, during the 1970s until the time of her death in 1993. Also a musician, she studied composition and collaborated with Pauline Oliveros at the University of California at San Diego. She also attended San Francisco State University where, as a cellist, she majored in performance. She also received a M. A. in Media/Education in 1975 from the University of Washington at Seattle. While teaching public school in Northern California in the 1960s, Lonidier participated in the "Poet in the Schools" program. She also helped coordinate the Pegasus Program, sponsored by San Francisco State University, that encouraged public school students to write poetry and publish, under Lonidier's direction, numerous chapbooks. In the mid-1960s, Lonidier helped to design a new series in this program that emphasized the use of audiovisual equipment and techniques in the student creation and performance of poetry and "light show-happenings." She was also interested in encouraging the writing of bilingual poetry, especially Spanish/English, to children in San Francisco's Mission District. During the 1970s and 1980s, she also taught, and lectured on feminist topics in writing and multimedia performance in Washington, Oregon, and Northern California, especially at the San Francisco Women's Building, of which she was a "Founding Mother." She was also a "light-optics artist" in 1969 for the Electric Circus in New York City and also worked in the same capacity at the 1970 World's Fair, held in Japan. This kind of "multimedia" aspect, reflected in the combination of poetry, film, animation, two and three dimensional visual arts and music, in a theatrical or "performance art" setting, characterizes her approach to her life work reflected in this collection.

Lonidier was the recipient of a California Arts Councils grant, a member of the Mission Alliance for a Popular Culture. She was associated with the Feminist Writers Guild as well as other Bay Area based writers' organizations and projects, such as the Lavender Rose Collective founded by Judy Grahn. She performed, read, and lectured extensively throughout San Francisco and the Bay Area at such venues as the Women's Building, Intersection for the Arts, Mission Cultural Center, Small Press Traffic as well as many other San Francisco cultural spaces and cafes. She also participated in the 1988 National Poetry Week Festival held in San Francisco. In the early 1990s, she also attended the International Women Writers Conference held in Argentina.

Lonidier's published collections of poetry include Clitoris Lost: A Woman's Version of the Creation Myth (1989), The Female Freeway (1970), A Lesbian Estate (1977), Po Tree (1967), and Woman Explorer (1979). Published broadsides include A Jellyfish Swim (1972); Christmas Kitty in Bilingualand, or, What I Did This Year (1986), For Sale: Girl Poet Cheap (1977). She was also published in numerous important poetry journals including The Ladder and the San Francisco Review and poetry collections including She Rises Like the Sun (1989) edited by Janine Canan. Lonidier was also the author of several unpublished novels, plays, and multimedia/theater works which are found in this collection.

Although her work is eclectic, reflecting an interest in eroticism, satire, surrealism as well as politics and popular culture, she considered her poetry mentors to be Robert Duncan and Jerome Rothenberg. Her work, however, consistently presents a lesbian and feminist consciousness and experience, that enriches lesbian literature, especially in its irreverent postmodernism. Lonidier's friends and colleagues included Karen Brodine, Jess Collins (Robert Duncan's long-time companion), Robert Gluck, Barbara Grier, Judy Grahn, Noni Howard, Pauline Oliveros, and Betty Wong. Lonidier died in San Francisco on May 18, 1993.

Scope and Contents

The Lynn Lonidier Papers include correspondence, manuscripts, drafts, research materials and notes, financial and publishing documents, and photographs that relate to her career as a teacher, writer, and lesbian feminist activist. Materials related to her personal life and relationships are not numerous in this collection.

The creative works, found in Series 1. Works, consist of manuscripts (often including multiple annotated and corrected drafts) of poems, short stories, novels, multimedia theater works, including works for live performance, television and film. Also found in this series is correspondence, notices of public performances, and forthcoming publications. This series is divided into three Subseries: 1A. Poetry and Prose; 1B. Multimedia and Theater Pieces; and 1C. Works by Others. While drafts of poems, novels, and short prose dominate the Works series, also present are numerous creative notes and outlines for plots of proposed fiction, poetry and other genres, such as opera. Nonfiction works include book reviews and essays. Notes for and partial drafts of works are often interfiled with manuscripts and also found in other series such as Subject Files and Personal Papers.

Correspondence with friends, literary agents, and publishers is not numerous in this collection and is found throughout the collection. Within the Personal Papers series, however, is found correspondence related to Lonidier's publishing and writing career. Correspondence with Ilse Kornreich, found in Subseries 1C. Works by Others, is of a more personal nature. Letters present do reflect Lonidier's literary career and mutual influence women writers, artists, and organizations had on Lonidier's personal life and career. Significant correspondents include: Karen Brodine, Barbara Grier, George Hitchcock, Noni Howard, Ilse Kornreich, Paul Mariah, Pauline Oliveros, Jane Rule, and Betty Wong. A list of correspondents can be found at the end of this finding aid.

Series 2. Subject Files reflect Lonidier's varied research interests including feminist theory and politics, the environment, education, lesbian and transgender experience and culture, occult and ancient cultures (Egyptian and Mayan), writing and publishing. Series 3. Teaching Materials consists of a variety of educational material from Lonidier's student and teaching career. Series 4. Personal Papers focuses on her academic, publishing, performance and writing career. Documents found here include publishing and financial records as well as manuscripts and research notes for Lonidier's Master's exam and thesis. Also found here are other class notes and creative drafts originating from her educational experience and include the work of Pauline Oliveros. Business or publishing records include such items as daybooks of publishing addresses, submission records, maps, travel guides, personal and publicity photographs. Some general finances including records and photographs of her personal possessions are also found in this series. Series 5. Printed Matter includes printed materials that consist of the numerous magazines, journals, newspapers in which Lonidier's work was published. Also present are several pamphlets and booklets that explicate the types of audiovisual equipment which she used when performing her theater pieces.

There are two additional cartons of materials, props, and objects used in the multimedia/theater performance pieces. These include "The Dolls' Piece" props found in carton 8 and "The Jar Piece" props found in carton 9. The Lonidier papers represent aspects of her work and life from early in her career to her death in 1993. Beyond the study of Lonidier and her writings during part of the most prolific times of her life, this collection also provides insight into the process of writing and publishing of women and lesbian writers, especially in San Francisco and California, in the last half of the twentieth century.

Arrangement note

The collection is arranged in five series: Series 1. Works; Series 2. Subject Files; Series 3. School and Teaching Materials; Series 4. Personal Papers; and Series 5. Printed Matter.

Series 1 Works, 1959-1993, undated

Physical Description: 4.25 cubic feet

Scope and Contents

The Works series is divided in three subseries: Subseries 1A--Poetry and Prose; Subseries 1B--Multimedia and Theater Pieces; and Subseries 1C--Works by others. It consists of drafts (original and carbon copy) proofs of poems, short stories, screenplays, novels, book reviews, speeches, as well as scripts or instructions for performance of multimedia theater pieces and includes numerous corrected and annotated versions. The manuscripts found here, both holograph and typescript, represent drafts, modified with corrections, annotations, and inserts as well as complete drafts that Lonidier described as "original" and "master" copies. The folders often contain numerous manuscripts and/or related notes, proposals, and correspondence. Many of the drafts of poems are written verso (reverse side) of other incomplete manuscripts by Lonidier or various printed materials (some generated by the San Francisco Lesbian and Gay and feminist communities). This series contains both published and unpublished material, which are identified whenever possible. Also found here is correspondence that relates to the publication of materials or Lonidier's writing process.

Arrangement note

This series is alphabetically arranged by published titles or Lonidier's folder headings.

Subseries 1A Poetry and Prose, 1959-1991, n.d.*Scope and Contents

This subseries consists of drafts, annotated and corrected typescripts, notebooks, notes, book reviews, plays or dramatic treatments, poems, novels, and other short creative prose works. Also found here are files that contain creative, biographic, or career-oriented notes, drafts of works, and proposals for future work in various formats (holograph, typescript, photocopy) and stages of preparation (whole pages and page fragments). Lonidier's poetry collections and chapbooks, that often include front matter and publicity materials, in this series include A Lesbian Estate, 1977. Manuscripts for early poetry collections ("Sigrid") and individual poems, 1959-1964 as well as similar later materials, such as "My Newest Poetry 1990-1991," are also found here. There are also numerous drafts of unfinished collections of poems found in folders labeled by "working title." These include "Pocho Poems," "Partita and Other Poems," "2nd Landmark Poem," "Unfinished Seattle Poetry," and "The Making of a Mayan." Also found here are folders, such as that labeled "Pop Poems," that include a variety of materials (newspaper clippings of ads and other visual materials) often clipped together with drafts of poems. Two folders of proofs for poems are also found in this collection. Also found here is an unbound copy of Poetry from Violence (1976), edited by Lonidier, accompanied by folder of related materials and a copy of her 1970 chapbook, The Female Freeway.

Manuscripts of Lonidier's unpublished novels found here include: The Banana Lady (1984, 1986), Candy's Cane (revised 1970), The Hanged Man (undated), The Nursery (undated), Phantom of the Organ (undated), Sacrificial Lambs [1976], and A Very Faerie Tale [1986]. Many of these materials are accompanied by numerous holographic fragments, revisions, critical notes and related correspondence. Manuscripts of short prose found in this series include drafts of four short stories tentatively entitled "Lesbian Dreams," the drafts and newspaper clipping of a book reviews of The Once and Future Goddess by Elinor Gadon (1990), and Young Robert Duncan (1973) by Ekbert Faas as well as various versions of an essay, "The Facts Are, The Poem Is." Journals and notebooks created by Lonidier are present in this series and include "Surfaces On" and "Journal of Myself: The Land of Quintana Roo." Other bound journals and notebooks that include notes, drafts of poems and materials related to Lonidier's writing career are found in Subject Files and Personal Papers.

Subseries 1B Multimedia and Theater Pieces, 1967-1974, undated*Scope and Contents

This subseries includes drafts of screenplays or scripts (including outlines), for mostly unpublished performance art works or dramas. Such scripts, which Lonidier usually calls "scores," are often a set of instruction for the performance as well as the sequence of various props and events of the work. Also found here are drafts for television projects and film as well as music and opera, including a partial music manuscript and text for an untitled opera, the script for "The Rhyme of the Age-ed Mariness" and "The Flying Symphony: A Theater Piece for the Bay Area Women's Philharmonic." Also found here are the notes, scripts, and objects, and other materials used in "The Dolls' Playette," some versions of which is called "The Dolls: A Theater Piece." Included with this performance piece are instructions and stage directions, here called "How to Do the Doll Piece" and "Opaque Sequences" as well as various materials listed in the score. These include such items as slides, photographs, cut-out images from magazines, color gels (used for lights), and objects--such as Barbie dolls. Also found in this series are similar types of materials, including glass jars, color gels, and scripts, for "The Jar Piece." The many other multimedia/theater pieces found in this collection usually consist of only drafts of "scores" and lack other material and objects for performance.

Series 3 School and Teaching Materials, 1961-1978, undated*Physical Description: 15.0 folders(0.5 cubic feet)Scope and Contents

This series consists of a variety of educational material from Lonidier's teaching career. Several folders represent Lonidier's focus in feminist and women's studies, and includes notes for classes in multimedia performance as well as research on women writers. Also found here are drafts of proposals for women's studies at San Francisco State University. The majority of materials found in this series are those generated from her teaching poetry and multimedia performance to school children in the Pegasus Program, an affiliate of the Poetry Center at San Francisco State University. Lonidier worked within this program, as well as the broader based "Poets in the Schools" program from the mid-1960s. Materials found in this series include notes and drafts of the children's poems and drawings as well as instructional materials and class plans. Also found here are printed collections of children's poetry created during the program at individual schools, including Blue Door I, II, III; and A Scrawny Cry #3 Spring, 1967.

| | Scope and Contents |
| | This series concerns Lonidier's academic, writing, performance, and publishing career. Found here are business documents, such as financial records, royalty statements, and correspondence, that document the financial, legal and business aspects of Lonidier's writing career. This series also contains general business documents, including photographs, of her personal finances and possessions as well as daybooks of business and publishing records. The daybooks list consignments of books to retail stores and also include addresses, dates, and logs of submissions of work. |
| | Correspondence found here includes two folders of outgoing and incoming correspondence, 1977-1993 and one folder of correspondence from Walker and Cole Literary Agents, 1984-1987. Other correspondence found in this collection can be found throughout the collection and has been maintained in Lonidier's original order. The majority of the correspondents include colleagues, literary agents, publishers and distributors. Significant correspondents include: Karen Brodine, Barbara Grier, George Hitchcock, Noni Howard, Paul Mariah, Pauline Oliveros, Jane Rule, and Betty Wong. These letters, while not numerous, help to provide insight into Lonidier's process of writing and publishing. |
| | Also found here are creative and scholarly materials from Lonidier's academic career. Materials for her Master's exam include a draft of the exam as well as the abstract and bibliography for her thesis. Also found in the Master's materials is a short prose piece, "Journal of a Bird in Stopover." Related scholarly and creative class materials are included here, such as the folder labeled "William Irmchus' Rhetoric Class." The folder titled [Pauline Oliveros], with whom she studied music composition and performance techniques at the University of California at San Diego, includes copies of Oliveros works as well as collaborative pieces with Lonidier and other class members. This series also includes photographs, one unidentified and two others of Lonidier, including one which shows her undergoing a female to male gender transformation. |
