Abstract: The San Francisco Public Library Performing Artists Photograph Collection consists of 1,670 photographic prints from 1890 to 1950 collected by the Music Department of the San Francisco Public Library. This artificial collection of publicity photographs and performing artists’ portraits was originally assembled by San Francisco Public Library’s Music Department head librarian Jessica Fredericks as a collection of autographs. In addition to these, the Music Department incorporated photographs dedicated to and donated by Selby Oppenheimer. Oppenheimer was a local impresario and once the managing director of the Opera House. Many of the photographs are autographed – with dedications to the San Francisco Public Library, Jessica Fredericks, and/or Selby Oppenheimer. Fredericks and Oppenheimer collected the photographs between 1917 and 1950. The artificial collection includes portraits of conductors, opera singers, instrumentalists, dancers, directors and composers.

Biography

Jessica Fredericks (1887 – 1979) was head of San Francisco Public Library’s Music Department 1917-1950. Jessica Fredericks was born on September 29, 1887. Largely self-taught, her formal education consisting of only three months of high school and summer coursework on library reference work at the University of California. In 1916 she began working as a substitute librarian at the San Francisco Public Library, despite lacking the prerequisite high school diploma. Because of her musical background and her experience teaching piano, she was asked upon the opening of the new Main Library in 1917 to head the Music Department. She strove to make the Library's Music Department a part of the City's musical life. During her career, Fredericks wrote the book California Composers: Biographical Notes (1934) and various articles for Pacific Coast Musical Review, Musical West and other music publications. Upon retiring from her job in 1950, she moved to Mexico and lived nearly 30 more active years.

Selby C. Oppenheimer (1879 – 1941) was a well-known San Francisco impresario and managing director of the San Francisco War Memorial Opera House and Veteran’s Building.

Oppenheimer was a San Francisco native. In their home, Mr. and Mrs. Selby Oppenheimer had a Steinway baby grand piano which had over 400 autographs on its interior by the contemporary world’s greatest musicians who visited San Francisco. The couple began collecting the autographs in the early 1920s.
