Organizational History
In 1857 the San Francisco Board of Education established Minns' Evening Normal School for current and prospective teachers in the city. Named after its principal, George W. Minns, the institution was formally established as the first California State Normal School by the State Legislature in 1862. A decade later, the Legislature voted to move the Normal School to San José, and the school relocated to its new home on Washington Square prior to the fall term of 1872. After a fire destroyed the Normal School building in 1880, the Legislature authorized $200,000 to construct a new building on the same site. Completed in 1881, the building was commonly referred to as the Second State Normal School. After several names and curriculum changes, Minns' Normal School is now San José State University, offering more than 134 bachelor's and master's degrees with 110 concentrations, and is recognized as one of the top public universities granting such degrees in the West.

According to the information contained within the records, in 1925, the university’s health board, representing the Associated Students of San José State Teachers College, purchased property from the Edwin Markham Home Landmark Association in order to create a "rest cottage" for the health needs of the student population. Located at 432 South 8th Street in downtown San José, the building was initially named the Edwin Markham Health Cottage, Inc. and was incorporated in 1929 by the authorization of the Associated Students. In 1939, the building's name was officially changed to the McFadden Health Cottage, in recognition of the services of Miss Elizabeth McFadden of the College Health Service. In 1965, the Board of Directors of the McFadden Health Cottage, Inc. amended the by-laws of the corporation to prepare for the dissolution of the corporation. The remaining assets of the Health Cottage were subsequently absorbed by the San José State College Foundation in 1966.
