Biography/Administrative History
The Latino Outreach Council of San Luis Obispo was awarded a $30,000 grant by the California Council for the Humanities to support a photography project titled “With Our Own Eyes: Con Nuestros Propios Ojos” focusing on a community of immigrants from San Juan Nuevo Parangaricutiro, Michoacan, Mexico now residing in Paso Robles. The grant funded five projects throughout the state as part of the Humanities’ statewide California Stories Uncovered project, documenting the daily lives of contemporary California immigrants and refugees. The project was directed by Pedro Inzunza Arroyo a writer and cultural activist who focused the project on the indigenous community in Paso Robles to provide a “bi-national perspective of these communities through the eyes of its youth”. The families and youth from San Juan Nuevo Parangaricutiro are the largest immigrant in the community of Paso Robles, California and are descendants of the Purhepecha indigenous community of San Juan Nuevo Parangaricutiro, a town in Michoacan. The community of San Juan is recognized throughout Mexico and the world for a tragic volcanic explosion that destroyed the town in 1943. The "With Our Own Eyes/Con Nuestros Propios Ojos" project provides insight about the Purhepecha youth, while encouraging student participants to examine important questions about their family, culture, and community. The goal of the project is to create a personal and collective photography exhibit documenting the Purhepecha youth experience from the inside out: narrated and photographed by the youth themselves. The grant funded the purchase of cameras, film and processing, and framing expenses to organize a photography exhibit. Since early September 2004, the immigrant youth participants attended photography workshops and training. Thirteen youth participated in the project and took over 7,000 black and white photographs documenting their experiences, families, traditions, and culture. Forty-three photographs are featured in the exhibit. The exhibit will travel throughout the Central Coast and California. - Press Release, Pedro Inzunza Arroyo, 2006 The exhibit opened 23 April 2005 at the Oak Park Recreation Center in Paso Robles and was open from 23 April to 19 May 2005.
