Scope and Contents

The Kaye Briegel Chicano Publication Collection (1953-1994, bulk 1970-1980) consists of over 100 different title magazines, newsletters, newspapers, and other publications related to Chicano movements, history, and culture. Some of the publications featured in this collection include: Regeneracion formally known as Carta Editorial; El Chicano; and La Raza.

Biographical / Historical

Kaye Briegel, an Emerita Professor of History at the California State University, Long Beach, primarily assembled this collection of Chicano publications.

Publications in this collection include:

1. El Chicano began in 1968 when the University of California received a grant from the Ford Foundation, and the first issue was published later that year. In 1969 funding for the publication was pulled due to a political cartoon, but was picked up as an independent press by its current owners, Gloria and Bill Harrison, along with Marta Macias Brown and Sam McQueen.

2. El Malcriado-The Voice of the Farmworker started when Cesar Chavez and Gilbert Padilla wanted to build a movement in 1962. It wasn't until 1964 that the original idea to create the publication became a reality. Bill Esher, a New Yorker who moved to Oakland, helped create and distribute the paper. The publication continued distribution until the early 1970s.

3. Regeneracion was a monthly magazine previous known as Carta Editorial. Regeneracion was published in Los Angeles until an undisclosed date and focused on issues of inequality, poverty, and war.
