Abstract: The AC Martin Partners drawings and records on microfilm document the significant role this prominent, multi-generational firm has played in shaping the built environment of Southern California throughout the last 100 years. The records consist predominantly of aperture cards mounted with microfilmed copies of over 67,000 architectural drawings, technical plans, and site surveys for civic, commercial, and residential projects predominantly in the greater Los Angeles area. These aperture cards are supported by microfilmed copies of project documentation for several early projects, and a selection of the professional correspondence of Albert C. Martin Senior.

Biographical / Historical

AC Martin Partners are an architectural firm whose contributions to commercial and civic structures have shaped the built environment of Los Angeles. In operation since 1906, the firm has consistently emphasized maintaining a balance between precise planning and engineering. Based on the program and location of a building, and with appropriate design elements that reflect the building's intended role, their approach has remained consistent over 100 years of practice. AC Martin Partners are widely recognized for iconic structures such as the Los Angeles City Hall, Grauman's Million Dollar Theater, May Company Wilshire, and the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, as well as their extensive contribution to the skyline of downtown Los Angeles, including Sanwa Bank Plaza and City National Plaza.

In a landscape that is home to many architects striving to define themselves with strikingly distinct styles, AC Martin Partners has consistently contributed architecture seemingly without branding, and structures that reflect the community and climate rather than the firm's corporate identity. Under the guidance of Albert C. Martin Junior (1913-2006) the firm's unofficial slogan was, "The firm is not a single individual," and from honoring neoclassical traditions and the Beaux-Arts style, to Art Deco buildings and glass tower blocks, and from malls to military facilities, their work is all-encompassing. The firm was a central figure in the 1950s post-war boom in Southern California, building many schools, churches, shopping centers, and technology facilities, as well as contributing to a vast amount of less-visible structural engineering work that binds the fabric of the city as a whole.

AC Martin Partners have also maintained a tradition of being civic leaders and generous contributors to their community beyond their corporate practice. The Martins are politically-minded and have been long-time board members of countless city planning associations and advisory councils, as well as frequent recipients of professional awards. Both Albert C. Martin Jr. and his nephew Christopher C. Martin (b. 1950) served as elected presidents of the Southern California chapter of the American Institute of Architects (AIA), and Christopher C. Martin is credited with being the originator of Los Angeles's Adaptive Re-use Ordinance, which initiated the revitalization of Downtown Los Angeles in the early 1990s.

The firm bears the distinction of having remained a family-run business for three generations. At the turn of the nineteenth-century, the young architect and engineer Albert Carey Martin left the midwestern United States and traveled to California, a land then symbolic of modern growth and opportunities. Martin would find both hardship and great success in the West, and ultimately build a legacy integral to the history of Los Angeles, a legacy that continues to grow through his grandchildren.

Born in 1879, Albert Carey Martin was one of eight children raised by parents John and Mary Margaret (née Carey) in La Salle, Illinois. Martin completed his formal education in Illinois, graduating with a Bachelor of Science in architectural engineering from the University of Illinois in 1902. After graduation, Martin relocated to Indianapolis, where he served as a draftsman for Brown-Ketcham Iron Works. This was followed by a move to Pittsburgh, where he spent two years working for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. In 1904 Martin followed his brother Joseph, a Roman Catholic priest, to Los Angeles, California. Martin began doing manual labor related to the expansion of the rail lines for the Pacific Electric Railway, and was later employed by the building contractor Carl Leonardt & Company, for whom he worked as a construction laborer and then a foreman. The connections he formed through these experiences led Martin to the appointment of engineer for the development of the Hamburger Department Store in 1906. In an unanticipated turn of events, a falling out between the project's head architect and the client resulted in Martin being given the title of architect. Martin successfully guided the completion of the landmark building, and launched his own architectural firm under the name Albert C. Martin and Associates. A year later he married California native Carolyn Borchard, and the couple settled in Central Los Angeles, in the neighborhood now known as Koreatown. Here they raised six children: Evelyn, Margaret, Albert Junior, Carolyn, John Edward, and Lucille.

Two of Martin's brothers, Frank and Emmett, came to work at Albert C. Martin and Associates in the early 1910s, but World War I drew both of them to Europe. Frank's fate remains unknown, but Emmett returned to California and the firm in 1919, after studying at the École des Beaux-Arts in Paris. By 1924 Emmett had left Albert C. Martin and Associates to open his own architectural firm. He experienced a successful career in the Los Angeles area, particularly in his work for the Roman Catholic Church, until his premature death at the age of 48 in November 1937.

By the mid-1930s Albert C. Martin and Associates had become a prominent commercial firm in Los Angeles. In addition to momentous landmarks like the Hamburgers Department Store (1908), Grauman's Million Dollar Theater (1917), and Los Angeles City Hall (1928), they also completed multiple high schools, church rectories, office buildings, factories and warehouses. By this time, Martin's two sons, Albert Junior (August 3, 1913 - March 30, 2006) and John Edward (October 23, 1916 - November 22, 2004), had become the second generation of Albert C. Martin and Associates. Albert Junior graduated from the University of Southern California (USC) in 1936, then studied civil engineering at The California Institute of Technology. John Edward spent two years at USC before pursuing architectural engineering at the University of Illinois. By the late 1940s Albert Junior and John Edward had worked up to management roles at the firm. In 1959 their mother Carolyn passed away. Not long after losing his wife, Martin Senior experienced a stroke and died on April 9, 1960.

The 1950s and 1960s were a period of expansion in southern California, and Albert C. Martin and Associates built many industrial manufacturing plants, scientific research facilities, hospitals, and parking lots during this time. This was also a period of shopping malls, and the firm completed two notable developments - The Lakewood Shopping Center and the Eastland Shopping Center - both projects for the May Department Store Company. 1965 saw the completion of one of the firm's most iconic structures, the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power. Built in the International Style, this building demonstrated to Los Angeles that the second generation of Albert C. Martin and Associates was just as dedicated to giving the city strong and notable civic structures as the first had been.

A third generation of the Martin family found its place within the firm by the 1970s. Albert Junior's son David Martin, FAIA, (b. 1942) joined in 1967, after graduating from the USC School of Architecture and completing a Masters of Architecture at Columbia University. John Edward's son Christopher C. Martin, FAIA, (b. 1950) graduated from USC with a Bachelor of Science in Architecture in 1974. The firm began to play a large role in earthquake damage repair and seismic upgrades by the mid-1970s, work which included a multi-phase retrofitting of Los Angeles City Hall in the 1990s. Their contribution to the skyline of downtown Los Angeles has been significant, and includes the Union Bank Plaza (1967), ARCO Plaza (1972), Bank of America Plaza (1974), Citigroup Center (1982), TCW Tower (1990), Figueroa at Wilshire (1991), and Two California Plaza (1992).

The firm now operates under the name AC Martin Partners, Incorporated, under the guidance of Christopher and David Martin. Christopher Martin is the firm's current CEO; he has long served as chairman and member on many city planning, commerce and philanthropic boards, and is a founding member of the Los Angeles Business Improvement District. David Martin is an award-winning architect and design principal who also runs the Martin Architecture and Design Workshop (MADWorkshop) in Santa Monica, California. This firm has evolved through challenging economic and political times, through transitory stylistic influences, and through three generations of the same family. Today, AC Martin Partners are leaders in sustainable design and technological advancements in engineering and architecture, and continue to contribute to the city they helped build.

Processing Information

In the summer of 2016, Multicultural Undergraduate Intern Kathryn Reuter conducted the preliminary rehousing of the aperture cards while retaining their original order.

In the fall of 2016, Graduate Intern Talia Olshefsky used a FileMaker Pro database that had been produced by AC Martin Partners to create a container list, with the assistance of Laura Schroffel. Talia Olshefsky physically verified the presence of each project listed in the database, rehousing and catalogued the records on index cards, viewed and catalogued the 14 reels of microfilm, and completed the documentation of the archive under the supervision of Ann Harrison and Kit Messick.

David C. Martin on three generations of the A.C. Martin firm, April 1, 2013

The exhibition OVERDRIVE: L.A. Constructs the Future 1940-1990 (April 9 - July 21, 2013) at The J. Paul Getty Museum investigated the evolution of Los Angeles into one of the most "influential industrial, economic, and creative capitals in the world." The exhibition featured a video interview with David C. Martin.

Scope and Content of Collection

The AC Martin Partners drawings and records on microfilm document the significant role this Southern California firm has played in shaping the built environment of Los Angeles throughout the last 100 years. Through copies on microfilm and aperture cards containing detailed architectural drawings, technical plans, and site surveys for commercial, residential, and public service projects, both the history of this multi-generational, continuously operating firm, and the development of the Greater Los Angeles Area, through a variety of architectural styles, are seen.

Documented here is AC Martin Partners' contribution to prized Los Angeles landmarks such as Grauman's Million Dollar Theater, The May Company Wilshire Building, the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, Saint Basil's Roman Catholic Church, and City National Plaza (ARCO Plaza), as well as the firm's extensive planning and engineering work, including countless parking structures, office interiors, schools alterations, and seismic upgrades. From honoring neoclassical traditions (Ventura County Courthouse) and the Beaux-Arts style (Higgins Building), to Art Deco (Los Angeles City Hall) and Streamline Moderne (May Company-Wilshire), and on to modernist architecture (Saint Basil's Roman Catholic Church) and glass tower blocks (Wells Fargo Bank Building), their professional portfolio is all-encompassing.

AC Martin Partners had their original architectural drawings copied on microfilm and mounted on aperture cards; these aperture cards are in Series I. Not all projects are represented equally within these records; some projects appear to have a complete set of plans, while others may only have one or two plans. The drawings are accompanied by a filing system devised by the firm for the aperture cards, which is represented by Series II. The filing system consists of a set of index cards with typewritten data, with each index card representing a project for which plans were microfilmed and made into aperture cards. Series III contains microfilmed copies of project documentation, including notes, financial statements, client invoices, and correspondence. Series III also notably includes articles for publication written by Albert C. Martin Sr.

regarding architectural practices in California.

Arrangement

This collection is arranged in three series: Series I. Architectural drawings, 1906-2006; Series II. Filing system for drawings, 1906-2006; and Series III. Office documentation and correspondence, 1911-1953.

Series I. Architectural plans, 1906-2006

Physical Description: 74.4 Linear Feet(105 boxes)

Scope and Content Note

Series I is comprised of over 67,000 aperture cards mounted with microfilmed copies of architectural drawings, plans, surveys, and technical drawings for well over 1,000 commercial, residential, and civic building projects by AC Martin Partners. They include drawings for churches, libraries, theaters, universities, high-rise buildings and offices, factories, science laboratories, and aerospace facilities. These projects are predominantly located in the greater Los Angeles area and Southern California, but a small percentage are located in other states, and the countries of Mexico and Singapore.

The container list for this series was generated from a database built by AC Martin Partners to document the copying of the drawings and the creation of the aperture cards. The titles, dates, addresses and locations, "additional work order number(s)," and "number of sheets" (a figure that represents the number of drawings copied for each project) listed here were taken directly from that database and have not been verified against the physical material, so it is important to note that the number of sheets listed for each project may not be accurate. There are also many work order numbers that were not in the database and are not represented here. However, the physical presence of aperture cards for each project that is listed has been verified.

The plans that constitute work order number 38005-01: May Department Stores Company - Wilshire, 1938-1939 are accompanied by a copy of a letter dated February 1968 from Albert C. Martin and Associates informing the client of the firm's "recently instituted program to consolidate files by preparing microfilm copies of all original drawings upon completion of each design project." The letter states that all original drawings will be destroyed unless the client will take them. This letter, and the client's response, offers significant insight into the archival practices of the firm and the logistics of how these records on aperture cards came to be produced.

Arrangement

This material is arranged numerically by work order number, which is the original arrangement imposed and maintained by AC Martin Partners. This also represents a chronological order for the majority of the projects, but there are exceptions. There are also two projects without work-order numbers: HydroBlast Incorporated, 1975, and the Elstad Residence, 1978.

This material represents one hundred years of work produced by AC Martin Partners; a consistent work-order numbering system was not maintained for this entire span of time. To maintain a navigable list for researchers, some work-order numbers have been normalized to adhere to the predominantly-used five-digit numbering system. The changes apply primarily to projects from the late 1970s to the mid-1980s, and for these projects the first digit (either a 7 or an 8) has been added to create a five-digit number. The labels on the aperture cards for these projects will still bear their original four-digit numbers.

*Example:*Original work order number: 9137 (representing a project from the year 1979). Container list will read 79137, and aperture cards will read 9137.

| Box 9 | 04001-01 Hamburger Realty & Trust Company Building, 1906-1943 Physical Description: (78 sheets) Scope and Content Note In 1906, architect Alfred F. Rosenheim was hired to design "Hamburger's Department Store" for client Col. David Asher Hamburger. Rosenheim had previously built the Herman W. Hellman Building (356 South Spring Street), a project on which A. C. Martin worked as both laborer and construction foreman. A. C. Martin was then selected by Rosenheim as the engineer for the Hamburger's Department Store project. When Rosenheim was abruptly fired in the project's early days, Martin became the project architect. This file contains: Three plans (ca. 1906) by Rosenheim, including an annex framing plan for the second, third, and fourth floors, an annex framing plan for the fifth floor, attic and roof, and a column schedule. Twenty-nine of Rosenheim's plans (1906-1907) "revised by A. C. Martin", including framing plans for the attic, annex, and fifth floor; floor plans for the foundation, basement, first through fifth floors, attic, roof, and annex; details of the foundation, footing, and beams; elevations (Hill Street, Broadway, and Eighth Street) and column schedules. Eleven plans (1923) by "A. C. Martin, Architect for Hamburger Department Store" including electrical circuit plans for the basement, 1st-5th floors, and floor plans for the second through fifth floors and mezzanine. One plan (August 26, 1943) of the lot and building dimensions by Albert C. Martin for the May Company Store. Thirty-three sepia drawings (1906-1943) that are of a much poorer quality than other copies. Includes floor plans for the foundation, basement, first floor, fifth floor, attic, and roof; framing plans for the first through fourth floor, attic, roof, and annex; transverse sections of the building; details of the reinforced concrete columns, marble, and stairs; North, South, and Broadway elevations; and a three-quarter scale detail of the first floor's cast iron front. Also includes a site plan and a key plan (August 1943) for the May Company Store. This material is incorrectly dated "1904" on the microfilm title page and transmittal letter. |

Series II. Filing system for architectural plans, 1910-2002

Physical Description: 2 Linear Feet(5 boxes)

Scope and Content Note

Series II contains the filing system used by the office of AC Martin Partners to document the office drawings that were copied on microfilm and mounted on aperture cards. It consists of index cards that are divided into two sets; one set is filed numerically by work-order number, and one alphabetically by project name. The series also includes a set of cards representing 23 projects indicated as Houston Office Projects, and an early client list with accompanying work-order numbers believed to have been produced circa 1950. All titles and dates in this series were taken directly from the material.

Arrangement

The arrangement of this material is indicated at the file level. It includes both numerical and alphabetical arrangements, retaining the original file structures.

Filing by work order number

Scope and Content Note

This file contains a filing system on index cards that records the drawings that were copied to aperture cards. These blue index cards contain basic project information such as the title, date, and client, and can be used to locate the drawings for a project in Series I by the project's work-order number.

This file also contains an early set of index cards organized by work-order numbers that represents a limited amount of drawings produced circa 1950. It is material that was originally arranged separately, and has been maintained here in its original order.

Arrangement

This file is arranged numerically by work order number, retaining the existing file structure.

box 110 Early set of work order numbers, 1910-1960

Scope and Content Note

An early index card filing system produced by Albert C. Martin and Associates. This set was produced before the rest of the material in this series, and includes work order numbers 0 - 1583.

box 106 Work order numbers 100 to 65163-01 1904-1968

box 107 Work order numbers 65167-01 to 77059-01 1966-2002

Filing by client name and Houston Office Projects, 1910-1991

Scope and Content Note

This file contains a filing system on index cards that records the drawings that were copied to aperture cards. These yellow index cards contain basic project information such as the title, date, and client, and can be used to locate the drawings for a project in Series I by the title and/or client name.

File also includes a group of projects that are labelled, "Houston Office Projects", and represent projects executed from a satellite office in Houston, Texas that the firm opened in the late 1970s.

Arrangement

This file is arranged alphabetically by the project title (the client's name is frequently used as a project title), retaining the existing file structure.

Series III. Office documentation, 1911-1953

Physical Description: 6 Reels(1 box)microfilm : negative; 35 mm., 16 mm.

Scope and Content Note

Series III consists of Albert C. Martin and Associates textual records and correspondence copied to microfilm by the firm. It includes project documentation and notes, financial statements, and correspondence with clients and colleagues. It also includes several articles for publication written by Albert C. Martin Sr. regarding architectural practices in California, and concrete as a building material. These copies include both typewritten and handwritten documents.

Titles and dates in this file were supplied by the file separator cards on the microfilm reels. In instances where the original title was repetitive or too ambiguous, a title has been created and the original title has been included in a note in the file.

Conditions Governing Access: All material in Series III is currently unavailable until reformatting is complete.

Arrangement

This material is arranged in three groups: Project documentation, 1911-1952; Correspondence, 1914-1951; and Articles for publication, 1924-1930. Project documentation is arranged alphabetically by client name, and then chronologically within each file, retaining the original file structures. Correspondence is arranged chronologically.
