Biographical / Historical Note

Allan Kaprow was born in Atlantic City, New Jersey, on August 23, 1927, and spent his childhood in Tuscon, Arizona. His family then moved to New York, where Kaprow attended the High School of Music and Art, graduating in 1945. He received his B.A. degree from New York University, where he majored in philosophy and art history and was a principle cartoonist for the college magazine. He then earned a Master's Degree in art history at Columbia University where he studied with Meyer Schapiro, to whom he dedicated his Thesis on Piet Mondrian in 1951. He also studied painting with Hans Hofmann (1947-1948) at Hofmann's school, and musical composition with John Cage at the New School for Social Research (1957-1958).

In the mid-1950s Kaprow began exhibiting his work, expressionist or fauvist-style paintings, at the Hansa Gallery, an East Village cooperative that he co-founded with a group of other young artists including Jan Müller, Felix Pasilis, and Jean Follett. By 1958, Kaprow's paintings had evolved into the interactive installations that he called Environments, at that time a novel concept in the American art scene. From this Kaprow moved to the notion of creating an event determined, like Cage's music, by a score that allowed for chance developments. The elements of these event pieces were always to be everyday objects (tires, cheap mirrors, aluminum foil, plastic strips), people (participants), and often sound (bits of household or workworld dialogue, breathing, industrial noise). He also generally dispensed with the gallery space and utilized urban spaces or sites in nature.

Kaprow had a long career as a professor of art and art history. He taught at Rutgers University (1953-1961), SUNY Stony Brook (1961-1968), California Institute of the Arts (1969-1974) and UC San Diego (1974-1993), and has been a visiting lecturer at numerous museums and universities. He also co-directed an educational program for the Berkeley public schools in 1969, Project Other Ways, and has authored several proposals regarding art education reform in the United States.

Beginning with his prescient article "The Legacy of Jackson Pollock," published in Art News in 1958, Kaprow has consistently produced critical and theoretical pieces that explain his kind of art as the most adequate aesthetic response to contemporary life. Assemblage, Environments, and Happenings (1966) presented the work of like-minded artists through both photographs and critical essays, and is a standard text in the field of performance art. Kaprow's Essays on the Blurring of Art and Life (1993), a collection of pieces written over four decades, has made his theories about the practice of art in the present day available to a new generation of artists and critics. In addition, major catalogs of Kaprow's work have been published in connection with retrospectives in the U.S. and Europe, most notably 7 Environments (1992).

The critical and public acceptance of Kaprow's work may be attributed as much to the polemics of Kaprow's writings and lectures as to his anticipation that American art would move away from the hermetic aesthetic of Abstract Expressionism and return, in certain respects, to the anti-subjective populism of Futurism, Constructivism and Dada. For four decades Kaprow has continued to work within the form of the Environment, Happening, or Activity, and has reinvented certain early works several times, making a total of nearly 250 pieces. His influence on other artists, especially the performance and installation artists of the 1970s and 1980s, has been significant. More than forty years after the first Happening, his work is the subject of continual critical discussion. While the form Kaprow largely invented has lost its shock-value, the quality of his ephemeral pieces continues to resonate through their scores and other surviving documentation.

Acquisition Information

Collection acquired from Allan Kaprow in 1998.

Processing History

435 monographs and serials were transferred to the library 1999 Apr 20.

Peter Kirby created an inventory and reformatted audio cassettes, Super 8 films, video tapes and 1/4 inch audio tapes in 2003. The remainder of audio visual materials were reformatted between 2004 and 2008 by the Getty Research Library. In 2018 graduate intern Jacob Zaborowski added content from audio visual physical use copies to the digital preservation system.

Alternate Form Available

Many audiovisual items have been reformatted. Some are available in the repository as CD and DVD use copies, as indicated in the container list; others have been digitized and are available online to on-site Readers and Getty staff:

Scope and Content of Collection

The Allan Kaprow Papers offer comprehensive documentation of an artistic career that spanned the latter half of the 20th century and continues into the 21st. Arranged chronologically so as to demonstrate the artist's passage from student of art and art history to practicing artist, art theorist and art educator, the collection contains drawings, term papers and notebooks from Kaprow's student days, followed by ca. 250 Project Files, comprising the complete extant documentation of Kaprow's Environments, Happenings, and Activities. These files form the core of the collection and demonstrate the evolution of Kaprow's Happening from a relatively scripted, grand, social event (Chicken; Household) to an austere, inter-subjective experience (Time Pieces; Rates of Exchange). They contain the artist's notes and drafts of the casually poetic scores, along with correspondence and photo-documentation by Peter Moore, Robert McElroy, and Julian Wasser, among other photographers. A variety of Printed Matter, including Scrapbooks, Clippings and Posters, document the work's presentation and reception in the art world. There are also Film, Video and Audio recordings of many Happenings and Activities. Kaprow's writings, arranged chronologically by year, represent the artist's consistent production of articles, essays, books, and lectures about the practice of contemporary art and issues in art education. Teaching files contain correspondence with university officials and colleagues; together with Professional Correspondence they portray the financial difficulties attendant on an unconventional art career that has taken place outside the usual venues and generated few objects that could be sold for profit. Artists' Files comprise texts, objects or photographs sent to Kaprow, and evoke the international community of avant-garde artists to which Kaprow belongs.

Series I. Education, 1940-1996

Physical Description: 3 lin. ft.

Scope and Content Note

Education files include Oversize, and offer evidence of an early inclination toward art, such as an elementary school award for handicrafts and a Christmas card Kaprow designed for his high school. Otherwise, the series documents the intellectual aspect of Kaprow's development as an artist. It consists of notebooks for undergraduate and graduate courses in Art History and Philosophy, along with Kaprow's student essays, including a paper on Jackson Pollock that Kaprow wrote for a course with Meyer Schapiro, whose comments are on the paper. Also included are musical scores Kaprow created for courses with John Cage at the New School for Social Research.

Series III. Project Files, 1946-1999

Physical Description: 14 Linear Feet

Scope and Content Note

Project Files form the core of the collection. Arranged chronologically by year and, where possible, by month, they begin with .5 linear feet of slides and photographs of Kaprow's early paintings, and drafts of early scores. The remaining Project Files document the 231 Environments, Happenings, or Activities in the collection, including some that were never realized. Typically, a file contains a score, often both handwritten and revised typewritten versions; correspondence with the sponsoring institution regarding funding, site specifications, and travel arrangements; photographs of the work; and possibly clippings or press releases. Files for Happenings created between 1967 and 1969 often contain a poster that served as both publicity for a Happening and as its score (see also Series IV.D. Posters). Files for Activities created between 1970 and 1979 often contain Activity Booklets, that is, booklets made to look like training manuals that document a piece with photographs and text and may also serve as scores for future reinventions. Pieces Kaprow reinvented more than once in his career (such as "Yard" or "Words") are listed in the chronological sequence each time they were reinvented, and the entry for the original piece lists all subsequent reinventions for which there is documentation in the collection. (For a more complete list of Kaprow's work, see his Curriculum Vita in the Research file for 980063). The entry for each project begins with the name of the sponsoring institution or, where that is not known, the location. Please note that the dates of projects have been authenticated by reference to announcements or clippings or by discussions with Allan Kaprow and that dates on the versos of photographs are not authoritative. Moreover, research related to the GRI book on Kaprow has led to date reassignments that are noted in brackets next to the title of the Project file, but the files have not been moved. Slides, negatives, minox, and color prints have been physically separated from the Project files for conservation purposes and are listed under the relevant project as Photographic material.
