Scope and Content of Collection

The Ron Wright oral history collection contains two audiotaped interviews, photographs, draft transcripts, and a final manuscript, "Foretellings: A Life History." Wright, who died of AIDS in 1994, was a pioneer in the lesbian and gay parenting community. In telling his life story, Wright also talks about general LGBT history in the San Francisco Bay Area, his relationship with filmmaker Derek Jarman and his childhood in Canada. The interview was conducted by his friend, oral historian Jeff Friedman. Friedman conceived and initiated the Legacy Oral History Program at the Museum of Performance & Design in San Francisco.
