His wife, Hilde Rosenberg Kaumheimer, born November 2, 1901 in Berlin, managed the institute from 1928 until 1932. She and Dr. Kaumheimer were married in 1933. Dr. Kaumheimer was arrested in Munich after the Kristallnacht pogroms of November 1938, and was imprisoned in Dachau concentration camp. He and his wife Hilde emigrated from Germany in 1939. Julius Kaumheimer, a businessman, was an older brother of Dr. Ludwig Kaumheimer. He was born on February 9, 1880 in Munich. His wife, Selma Landauer Kaumheimer was born June 5, 1890 in Ulm, Germany. The Kaumheimers lived in Stuttgart, Germany and emigrated with their four children -- Hans, Fritz and twin daughters Margerita and Ruth to Merano, Italy in 1939 and from there to San Francisco, California. The Kaumheimer family had a valuable collection of porcelain figurines, which were confiscated by Italian authorities when they entered that country in 1939 and assigned to the National Museum in the Castle of Buonconsiglio in Trento. Many years later, the Jewish community of Merano sought restitution for the owners of the porcelain collection and in 2002 the Kaumheimer collection was allocated to the community. Attempts by the Jewish community of Merano to locate the Kaumheimer family were not successful until they contacted HIAS (Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society). HIAS placed an ad in the Aufbau, a German Jewish newspaper, which was answered by Julius's son John (formerly Hans.) Surviving members of the Kaumheimer family visited the museum in Merano, Italy where the porcelains were kept, and were once again reunited with this collection.</td>

<tr>
<td>Scope and Contents note</td>
<td>The collection comprises documents and correspondence relating to the experiences of two German Jewish brothers, Dr. Ludwig Kaumheimer and Julius Kaumheimer, during the period in which the Nazi party rose to power. Included are 1935 certificates documenting the military service of the brothers in the Germany Army during World War I and their receipt of the Iron Cross. The collection includes certificates of citizenship for Dr. Kaumheimer and for Julius Kaumheimer, his wife and one son. These certificates were issued in advance of emigration, as well as a passport for Fritz Kaumheimer, son of Julius. Of particular interest may be a Security Directive dated April 1939 which references a currency law and which restricts the access of the Dr. Ludwig Kaumheimer and his wife Hilde Kaumheimer to the assets in their bank accounts. Correspondence in the collection comprises a postcard sent by Dr. Ludwig Kaumheimer to his wife Hilde during his imprisonment in Dachau concentration camp, after Kristallnacht, in November 1938. Also included is a heartfelt letter sent by Mrs. Kaumheimer to the Gestapo in Munich on November 11, 1938, pleading for her husband's release and in particular noting his military service and his loyalty to Germany.</td>
