Biographical/Historical Note
Anatolii Pavlovich Timofievich was a Russian physician. He was raised in the Kiev Caves Lavra in Russia. Since childhood he dedicated his life to God, and used medicine as a way of serving the Church. While in medical school, Timofievich spent his time studying in the Lavra. During his student years Anatolii Pavlovich was the spiritual son and a member of the Christian commune of Father Adrian Rymarenko (later Archbishop Andrew). When Fr. Adrian founded the New Diveyevo Convent in upstate New York, Anatolii Pavlovich moved into a house next door, and was the personal physician to Fr. Adrian. Being in very poor health, Fr. Adrian would serve at the altar only under Anatolii Pavlovich Timofievich’s personal supervision. Anatolii Pavlovich Timofievich spent his life under Fr. Adrian’s spiritual guidance, and was finally buried by Fr. Adrian in 1976.
Scope and Contents note
The collection consists chiefly of autographed letters from various members of the Romanov family and other Russian dignitaries and nobility received by Timofievich. This private correspondence reveals details about life within the Romanov Imperial family. The collection also includes photographs of the Imperial Family, printed matter, clippings, and the Romanov family memorabilia.
