Biographical Note
Robert Ward was born in San Francisco in 1916. He earned a bachelor's degree from Stanford in 1936. During World War II, Ward was recruited by the Naval Intelligence Service, attended the Navy Language School in Colorado and became a Japanese translator on General Douglas MacArthur's staff. He received the Legion of Merit award for his service. Following the end of the war, Ward returned to his studies and earned a PhD from the University of California at Berkeley in 1948. Dr. Ward joined the faculty of the University of Michigan in 1948, where he taught political science, directed the Center for Japanese Studies, and served terms as President of the American Political Science Association and the Association for Asian Studies. He was also a member of the national council of the National Endowment for the Humanities from 1968-1973. Ward accepted a position at Stanford in 1973, where he founded the Center for Research in International Studies, precursor to the Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies. He served as Director for the Center from 1973-1987. He was also a Senior Fellow of the Hoover Institution. Ward advocated for International Studies and Education, serving on the President's Commission on Foreign Language and International Studies from 1978-1979. He was also Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Social Science Research Council, and of the Japan-United States Friendship Commission. He was a member of the American Panel of the United States-Japan Conference on Cultural and Educational Interchange (CULCON). In 1984 he received the Order of the Sacred Treasure from the government of Japan. Ward retired from Stanford in 1987, and died on December 7, 2009.
Scope and Content of Collection
The Robert Ward papers is comprised of three series: Committees and Associations, Research Materials, and Subject File. The Committees and Associations series contains correspondence, pamphlets, meeting minutes, and reports reflecting Ward's involvement with scholarly associations and his advocacy work for federal funding of International Studies education. Ward held leadership positions in both local and national educational associations and also worked to further connections between the United States and Japan. The files are arranged alphabetically according to association name. The Research Materials and Drafts include notes, correspondence, bibliographies, a card file, preliminary drafts of books, and photocopies of original documents relating the political structure of the Japanese government and the United States occupation of Japan post World War II. The series was maintained in original order. The Subject File contains reports, pamphlets, clippings, correspondence, and other printed matter relating to area studies and foreign language studies in the United States, education to promote international understanding, and American-Japanese cultural relations. It is arranged into published and unpublished material, then alphabetically by subject.
