Biographical Note

An American economist, Annelise Graebner Anderson was a staff member for the Republican 1968 and 1980 presidential campaign committees, and a part of the 1980-1981 presidential transition team. During 1980, she was a senior policy adviser to the presidential campaign of Ronald Reagan, and as Associate Director of the Office of Presidential Personnel, worked on staffing the departments of Treasury, Transportation, and Commerce during the transition to the first Reagan administration.

From 1981 to 1983, Anderson was Associate Director for Economics and Government with the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), where she was responsible for the budgets of five cabinet departments (Treasury, Justice, Commerce, Transportation, and Housing and Urban Development) and over 40 other agencies. While at OMB, she participated actively in the development of the administration's policies with respect to housing and housing finance, deregulation of financial institutions, transportation, and immigration.

In 1983, she became a Senior Research Fellow at the Hoover Institution. In 1987-1988, she served as a member, President's Commission on Privatization. She also advised the governments of Russia, and Romania, and the Republic of Georgia on economic reform and studied the transition process in Poland, the Czech Republic, and Mongolia.

Speeches at Better Business Relations meetings

Physical Description: 1.0 sound tape reel

Scope and Contents note

Part 1: "The Art of Listening" by Dr. Ralph Nichols - President of the University of Minnesota. Speaking at convention of Better Business Bureau People at Gearhart, Oregon around May/June 1960. (Sponsored by Chamber of Commerce?)

Part 2: "Encroaching Control" by Ronald Reagan. Speech at the 10th annual Better Business Relations conference, September 25, 1961.

A talk on the threat of communism in the United States. Reagan concentrates on how trends and events of the recent past point to a passive encroachment of communism. He argues communist control is akin to a fire by arson or accident, that the end result is the same.
