Scope and Content of Collection

Alexandra Yourieff was the first wife of Vidkun Quisling, who collaborated in the German conquest of Norway in 1940 and was found guilty of treason and executed after Norway was liberated in 1945. She was 16 when she met and married him in 1922. During their marriage, Quisling was also involved with Maria Paseshnikova, later Maria Quisling. After years of separation, he ceased contact with Alexandra in 1929. She subsequently traveled to China, where she met and married Russian physician J. P. Ryabin. After Ryabin died in an accident, leaving her with their son, she married architect W. George Yourieff. They immigrated to the United States in 1947.

Among the most significant material in the papers is Alexandra's manuscript describing her life with Quisling, which remains unpublished. The manuscript describes her childhood and the history of her family, but concentrates on the period of her relationship with Quisling, 1922-1929. Quisling was a Norwegian military attaché in Petrograd (Saint Petersburg) in 1918-1919, and a close coworker of Fridtjof Nansen while Nansen was performing international relief work in Russia from 1922 to 1926. Quisling was attached to the Norwegian legation in Moscow from 1927 to 1929, the year the manuscript ends. The container list identifies notes, research materials, manuscript drafts, and other items relating to this work as "Writings--Quisling book."

The manuscript tells the story of Alexandra's first meeting and romance with Quisling, which took place in Russia against the backdrop, broadly painted but fully substantiated, of a country devastated by wars, epidemics, and famine. Quisling's relief work, his actions, opinions, and general views, are described by a close and trusted witness. It continues with their life in Oslo from fall 1922 to spring 1923, describing Quisling's efforts to mold his young wife to his own pattern. Considerable space is devoted to covering their close circle of friends and the largely unknown Quisling clan in Norway. After describing their years of separation, the manuscript ends in 1929.

The manuscript also provides information about Quisling's childhood, habits, and idiosyncrasies, as well as vivid close-ups of his brothers and mother, who is shown to be quite different from the portraits depicted by other Quisling biographers. In addition, the text paints fascinating pictures of spontaneous and concerted measures by both individuals and governments to cover up their tracks in the wake of dealings with Quisling. Beyond the Quisling story, it offers firsthand information about prominent figures, including Soviet poet Vladimir Maiakovskii, Max Reinhardt, Isadora Duncan, Arthur Rubinstein, Pablo Picasso, and other celebrities of Paris and Nice from the period 1923-1929.

The collection also includes many papers of W. George Yourieff, and records of his business as architect and builder. Alexandra always regarded herself as an artist, and insisted that dancing had been her true vocation. She developed into a very able painter, so documentation of her artistic activities is also included.
