Historical Note
The Banning Company was started by Phineas Banning (1830-1885), a transportation leader in the Los Angeles area and founder of the city of Wilmington, California.
Phineas Banning (1830-1885) was born in Wilmington, Delaware. In 1861 he arrived in San Pedro, California, and worked as a store clerk and stagecoach driver before starting his own staging and shipping company, which rapidly expanded throughout California as well as to Arizona and Utah. In the late 1850s, he joined a group of investors who purchased 640 acres of land near San Pedro to expand the port. This land was later named Wilmington after Banning’s birthplace. By the 1860s Banning was heavily involved in most of the operations of San Pedro Harbor. During the Civil War he was given the honorary title of Brigadier General of the California First Brigade, and continued to use the honorarium “General” for the rest of his life. In the 1870s he became a California state senator and campaigned for more elaborate transportation connections between Los Angeles and San Pedro port. Banning’s first wife was Rebecca Sanford, with whom he had three children who survived to adulthood: William, Joseph Brent, and Hancock. After Rebecca’s death he married Mary Hollister, and they had two surviving daughters, Mary Banning Norris (1871-1953) and Lucy Tichenor Banning (1873-1929). By 1880 Banning had scaled back his business ventures, and after several years of illness died in San Francisco.
Following Banning’s death, the consolidated Banning Company was taken over by his sons William Banning (1858-1946), known as “Captain,” Joseph Brent Banning (1861-1920), and Hancock Banning Sr. (1865-1925). In addition to running the Banning Company, the three Bannings developed its subsidiaries, including the Santa Catalina Island Company (following their purchase of Santa Catalina Island in 1891), the Wilmington Transportation Company, and the Wilmington Development Company. They were also involved in a variety of real estate ventures throughout the Southern California area. The Banning Company officially dissolved following Joseph Brent Banning’s death in 1920. Eleanor Brown Thompson Thornton (b.1782) was the daughter of prominent Virginia politician and lawyer Philip Rootes Thompson (1766-1837). She married William Thornton (b.1780) and their daughter Susan Thornton Glassell (1804-1836) married Andrew Glassell (1793-1873). The couple lived in Culpepper, Virginia, before moving to Greensboro, Alabama, in 1834. The Glassells had six children, including Andrew Glassell (1827-1901), who became a lawyer in San Francisco and Los Angeles, and William T. Glassell (1831-1879), who was an officer in the Confederate Navy during the Civil War. Their youngest child, Susan Glassell Patton Smith (1835-1883), married George S. Patton, Sr. (1833-1864), who served with the Confederate Army during the Civil War and was killed at the Third Battle of Winchester in 1864. The widowed Susan and her four children moved to California to live with her brother, Andrew. Her son, George S. Patton, Jr. (1856-1927), married Ruth Wilson, the daughter of prominent California landowner Benjamin Davis Wilson, and became a lawyer, in addition to working as ranch manager for his neighbor Henry E. Huntington. Their son was the famed World War II general George S. Patton (1885-1945). In 1855 Susan Patton married George Hugh Smith (1834-1915). The couple’s daughter, Anne Ophelia Smith (1870-1951), married Hancock Banning (1865-1925). Their son Hancock Banning (1892-1982) later worked with his father in the family business.

Maria de Jesus Wilson (1844-1917), known as “Sue,” was the daughter of Benjamin Davis Wilson and his first wife Ramona Yorba, and sister-in-law of George S. Patton (1856-1927). She married James DeBarth Shorb (1842-1896), whose land was later sold to Henry E. Huntington. The couple had ten children, including Norbert Newland Shorb (1887-1951).
