Acquisition Information

Biographical Note
Octavia Estelle Butler (1947-2006) was an American science fiction writer, and the first black woman in her field. She was born and raised in Pasadena, California by her mother, Octavia M. Butler, a maid. Her father Laurice, a shoeshiner, died when she was a baby. When she was young she was known as Estelle, or Junie (short for Junior), to differentiate herself from her mother. Later, though she used Octavia, she was adamant about including her middle initial in published settings.
A shy, only child, Octavia began writing at 10, and turned to science fiction by 12. She often cited Devil Girl from Mars, a movie she saw on television, as her inspiration: "I thought, I can write a better story than that." (1) Despite being told repeatedly by family and friends that writing science fiction was not a career for a black person Octavia pursued creative writing courses at Pasadena City College, and won a student short story writing contest in 1966. She graduated with an Associate's degree and went on to California State University, Los Angeles, where she studied a variety of subjects, but never completed a degree.
In 1969 Octavia was admitted to the Screen Writers' Guild Open Door program where she caught the attention of Harlan Ellison. Ellison encouraged Octavia to attend the Clarion Writers' Workshop in science fiction and fantasy at Clarion State College in Pennsylvania, which she did in the summer of 1970. There she published her first story, "Crossover," in Clarion, an anthology of student works. She also sold her short story "Childfinder" to Harlan Ellison, to be part of the now infamously unpublished Last Dangerous Visions anthology.
For the next five years Octavia wrote and supported herself with menial jobs, but did not sell any of her writing. Finally, in 1976, Doubleday published Octavia’s first novel, Patternmaster, followed shortly by Mind of my Mind (1977) and Survivor (1978). These three are the first of five related novels known as Butler’s Patternist series, based on her earliest childhood science fiction. Her best known work, Kindred, appeared in 1979, and has become a standard in many high school and college curricula.

As Octavia gained popularity she began to attend and speak at science fiction conventions and at conferences. Though still incredibly shy she challenged herself to public speaking and appeared at many colleges and events. In the late 1980s she published her Xenogenesis trilogy, and then in the 1990s published Parable of the Sower and Parable of the Talents. In 1995, Octavia became the first science fiction writer to receive a prestigious MacArthur “Genius” grant. Her last novel, Fledgling, was published in 2005. In all, Octavia published 12 novels and one volume of short works. She received 2 Hugos and 2 Nebulas.

In 2000 Octavia moved to Lake Forest Park, Washington, fulfilling a longtime dream of living in the Northwest. She passed away suddenly after a fall outside her home in 2006, probably from a stroke or related head trauma, at the age of 58.

Octavia E. Butler Correspondence and Photographs. (Call number: mssHM 80612-80709, FAC 2107)

Scope and Content

This collection includes the extensive manuscripts, correspondence, and working materials of American science fiction writer Octavia E. Butler (1947-2006). The collection consists of five series: Manuscripts, Correspondence, Photographs, Subject Files and Research Materials, and Ephemera. There are 354 boxes, as well as 1 volume, 2 binders, and 18 loose broadside folders.

Manuscripts are subdivided into manuscripts by Octavia E. Butler, notecards, diaries, commonplace books, and manuscripts by others. They are arranged alphabetically by author; then title or chronologically within each subseries. Manuscripts by Octavia E. Butler include drafts of all her published works, as well as numerous drafts of complete and partial short stories, one unpublished novel, Blindsight, and several partial drafts of unfinished novels, including Parable of the Trickster. There are also essays and speeches and notes on various research, writing, and domestic subjects. The notecards include both working notes and research notes, as well as notes used for speaking engagements. The commonplace books are a particularly rich subseries where Octavia compiled working notes for novels and short stories, research, journal entries, notes on daily life and activities, and more. Very little of the contents of the commonplace books are indexed. Manuscripts by others include working copies of short stories from the Clarion workshop of 1970, pre-publication novels, and other short stories, plays, and essays.

Correspondence is arranged alphabetically by the author’s last name, then chronologically. Notable correspondents include Harlan Ellison, Robin Scott Wilson, Toni Cade Bambara, Vonda N. McIntyre, Greg Bear, Suzy McKee Charnas, Tananrive Due, Martin Harry Greenberg, and Ursula K. Le Guin. Important personal correspondents include Marjorie Rae Nadler, Leslie Howle, Lynn Marron, Sandra Y. Govan, Frances Deutsch Louis, and Victoria Rose. In particular correspondence to and from Victoria Rose, Marjorie Rae Nadler, and Lynn Marron offers insight into Octavia life and writing early in her career. Octavia’s correspondence with her agent at Writer’s House, Inc. and her publishers, including Doubleday and Company, inc, Seven Stories Press, Warner Books, St. Martin’s Press, and Four Wall Eight Windows, often contains great detail about works in progress and marketing decisions.

Photographs are arranged chronologically in several groups: loose photos (small), loose photos (large), album pages, and photo album. Highlights include photographs from conventions, speaking engagements, and or book signings, numerous photographs of Octavia’s trip to Peru and the Amazon as part of her research for her Xenogenesis trilogy, and photographs from travels in the Southern California desert and north coast, and Washington.

The subject files represent Octavia’s arrangement of clippings by topic. Subject headings are taken from the envelopes Octavia used for filing in most cases, and the arrangement largely follows a numbering scheme devised by Octavia. The original envelopes are included in each folder when present. The research materials are other clippings and subject materials that have been arranged by the cataloger, using Octavia’s schema where possible. Together the subject files and research materials are a compendium of topics of interest to Octavia, largely scientific, medical, and anthropological in nature.

The ephemera are arranged in 19 subseries, alphabetically. Notable subseries include Awards, Organizations: MacArthur Foundation, Organizations: Science Fiction Writers of America (SFWA), Publicity and Production, Schools (which includes a variety of juvenilia), Speaking Engagements, and Travel.

In addition there are oversize materials, housed separately, for all the above series. Researchers should be sure to search the oversize series for additional materials.

- Ephemera (Boxes 298-342, 2 binders)
- Oversize (Boxes 343-345)
- Extra Oversize (Boxes 346-353)
- Empty Binders (Box 354)
- Broadsides (18 Loose Folders)

Items arranged primarily in alphabetical order by last name.

Cataloger’s Notes

1) Several of the works in this collection have multiple titles. All materials are catalogued by the published, or latest version of the title, where known. There are also a number of incomplete works. Below is a list of variant titles.

   Published/ Final Title [Former Title(s)]

   - Dawn [The Training Floor; Lilith]
   - Imago
   - Adulthood Rites
   - Mind of my Mind [Psychogenesis; Prepattern]
   - Patternmaster [Bondage; The Reign of Mind; Midpattern; Birthright]
   - Wild Seed
   - Clay's Ark [Manna]
   - Survivor [Canaan; Alanna]
   - Fledgling [Memory, Flesh, Bone, Blood; Blood, Flesh, Bone, Memory; Scars; Darkling; Dark Light; Blood Groups; Fireweed]
   - Kindred [To Keep Thee in All Thy Ways; Dana; Guardian; Canaan (early variant of Kindred that also may have been related to Patternist series)]
   - Parable of the Sower [Justice; Judgment; Godshaper; God of Clay; Girasol; Olamina]
   - Parable of the Talents
   - Blindsight [Mindsight; Leavings; The Eternal Flesh]

   Working titles of partial manuscripts:

   - Parable of the Trickster [Trickster, Teacher]
   - Spiritus [O My Soul; Bodhisattva]
   - Asylum (sequel to Fledgling) [Flight]
   - Eden
   - God of Clay (variant of Parable of the Sower/ Parable of the Trickster)
   - Fire, Laughter, Emeralnds, Rain: a Thesaurus of First Names
   - Paraclete [Revelation]
   - Mortal Words

Octavia's earliest science fiction ideas ultimately became her Patternist stories. Notes and fragments for these early Patternist writings have been catalogued in most cases with the novel to which they most closely relate. For example, where Mary and the city of Forsythe are present, the materials have been catalogued as Mind of my Mind.

Many early fragments of the various Parable books are difficult to distinguish, especially those written before Parable of the Sower was completed and published. Butler used many ideas and characters, some of which began as part of Parable of the Sower and were later used in one of the later two manuscripts. "God of Clay" in particular seems to be a very early version of Parable of the Sower that has many elements closer to the later direction of the unfinished Parable of the Trickster.

Where possible the cataloger has catalogued the manuscripts according to the completed (or latest, in the case of Trickster) version of the story. Some manuscripts are catalogued as God of Clay, with added entries for other relevant Parable books.

Earthseed: The Books of the Living is an unpublished manuscript of the fictional book of sayings and religious dictums in Butler's Earthseed series (Parable of the Sower, Parable of the Talents and the unfinished Parable of the Trickster). Butler has culled and collected the sayings used in her two published works from this series, along with others, to form a "thought-provoking" stand-alone monograph.

2) It is often difficult to determine whether a manuscript is a typewritten original or a carbon copy. Butler often used lined paper to make carbon copies, so this affords some clue but is not always definitive. Sometimes manuscripts on lined paper seem to be typewritten originals. The cataloger has attempted to identify originals and carbon copies to the best extent possible, but recognizes that some manuscripts may be misidentified. Further, where typewritten originals and carbon copies are mixed together, as in numerous notes and fragments, the cataloger has often chosen to identify the pages simply as MS. (typewritten).

3) Octavia often grouped notes from disparate things together, labeling them only by one main element. Thus, notes for various novels, as well as apparent journal-like entries, and notes on writing and Octavia's writing in general can be found interspersed throughout the notes in the collection. The cataloger has attempted to include added entries to bring out these additional subjects wherever possible, but due to the expansive nature of Octavia's intermingling not everything is identified. In other cases, dated manuscripts have been catalogued as Journal pages, with added entries for novels where appropriate.

4) Similarly, Octavia frequently reused paper by writing notes or typing on the verso of a page. These items are frequently catalogued in their repurposed form, but notes and drafts of manuscripts and letters, often not easily identifiable, may be found on the versos. Again the cataloger has attempted to include added entries to bring out these additional subjects wherever possible, but due to the extent of these additional notes and fragments, many are not indexed in any fashion. Autograph notes on the verso of typewritten pages are included in the page count. Below is a list of the added entries for manuscripts fragments found within other manuscripts.

5) Butler often reused and repurposed envelopes to organize her manuscripts, in addition to keeping materials in envelopes in which they had been mailed. Where the relationship of the manuscript and the envelope is uncertain, and no other date for the manuscript is available, the postmark of the envelope has been used as a questionable date.
6) Butler used multiple organizational systems at different times. Sometimes the system has been kept intact, other times evidence of the system has been kept while reorganizing individual items to make the collection accessible and easy to use. Items separated will be labeled "Formerly enclosed in. . ."

7) Contracts and royalty statements may be found in two places: the ephemera series and the correspondence series. Contracts with a cover letter have been kept in correspondence; loose contracts are in ephemera.

8) Researchers should be sure to check the oversize series for additional materials, particularly in the Subject Files and Research Materials, and Ephemera series.

OEB 7793 Butler, Octavia E. Photo album: postcard: Main square Cathedral and Jesuit Church, Cuzco. 1985.
1 postcard: color; 15x11cm. Cuzco, Peru. Note: folio 14 verso, upper. "On one side of the Plaza, a patio on which book sellers spread their wares. Indian women with high hats wrapped by colorful ribbons and babies wrapped in shawls sell food on corners. Children + women walk about offering sandwiches, cups of juice for sale. The children should be in school, but they are obviously very poor. Alpaca jackets, rugs, and stuffed animals are offered. One says 'No' without looking after a while."
