Abstract: This collection contains the papers of English comedic actress Dorothy Jordan (1761-1816), chiefly consisting of correspondence from Jordan to William IV (Duke of Clarence) between 1794 to 1812. The letters primarily deal with domestic matters, as well as Jordan's working life performing in London and on tours throughout England and Ireland, her financial affairs, the Peninsular Wars, and the ill-health of George III and the coming Regency.

Language: English.

Preferred Citation

[Identification of item]. Dorothy Jordan Papers, The Huntington Library, San Marino, California.

Provenance

Purchased from William K. Bixby in two large lots, 1918.

Cataloging Decisions

1. This collection of letters remained in the Royal Family for many decades, kept first by Queen Adelaide then passed on to Lord Frederick FitzClarence, who retained the letters until his death in 1854. At some time during his possession of the letters, Frederick made autograph notes as to dates, people and events in the letters; therefore, his handwriting is found throughout the collection but it was decided not to catalog these autograph notes on the folders or in the Finding Aid.
2. Dorothy Jordan had several names during her lifetime: born Dorothy Bland, though her parents were never legally married, she chose to call herself “Dora” and, in 1782, the theatre manager Tate Wilkinson gave her the stage name of “Mrs. Jordan.” She signed her name in various ways including, Dora Jordan, Dora, and most often, DJ; but, the authorized form of her name was used on the folders and in the Finding Aid.
3. Dorothy Jordan addressed her letters to the “Duke of Clarence” but his authorized name of William IV, King of Great Britain,..., was used on the folders and in the Finding Aid.

Biographical Note

Dorothy (Dora) Phillips Bland (1761-1816) was born in London on November 22, 1761, into an acting family. She made her acting debut in Dublin, Ireland in November 1779, and her London acting debut at Drury Lane in October 1785. By this time she had received the stage name of “Mrs. Jordan” which she used for the remainder of her long stage career. Dorothy Jordan was the acknowledged greatest comedic actress of her time, just as Sarah Siddons, Jordan’s not-so-friendly rival, was the acclaimed dramatic actress.

By 1791, when Dora began her 20 year relationship with William, the Duke of Clarence, she already had one daughter with Richard Daly and two daughters with Richard Ford. Over the next two decades, Dora would have 10 more children with the Duke before he ended their relationship in 1811. Theirs was, for many years, a happy, domestic relationship which helped William be the most settled of George III’s oldest sons.

After 1811, Dora acted for four more years in increasingly failing health and spirits. In 1815, she sailed to France, probably to escape the debts and creditors caused by her sons-in-law who fraudulently signed her name to their debts. She took the name of Mrs. James and finally settled in St. Cloud, France, where she died on July 5, 1816, attended only by a female companion.

Bibliography
Sources used to catalog the Dorothy Jordan Papers:

Scope and Content
The Papers consist of letters, two manuscripts and ephemera; approximately 500 letters are from Dorothy Jordan to William IV (Duke of Clarence), covering the years 1794 to 1812. The letters deal with domestic matters: the health of their children, renovations to their principle home, Bushy House, and the lives of their family and friends. The letters also deal with Dora's working life as she performs in London and on tours throughout England and Ireland, her financial affairs, the Peninsular Wars, and the ill-health of George III and the coming Regency.

There is also a small number of letters and two manuscripts by other family members: Sophia (Baroness De L'Isle and Dudley), Lord Frederick FitzClarence, Elizabeth (Landgravine of Hesse-Homburg), George FitzClarence (Earl of Munster), and William IV; also, business related letters from William Adam, John Philpot Curran, John Philip Kemble, Henry Siddons, and George Grey (Earl of Warrington).

The ephemera consists of two folders containing misc. autograph notes, an envelope, printed material and misc. cover sheets.

The Hair box is a hide-covered box originally used by Lord Frederick FitzClarence to store the letters of his parents. Please see the Finding Aid (DJ 6) for an explanation of this box and its use. The box is in very fragile condition and curator approval must be obtained before paging.

Some People Mentioned in the Letters:
• Barrington, Jonah, Sir (1760-1834) -- Irish Anglophile lawyer, judge & theatre lover.
• [Hatt? Hott? Hutt?], Thomas -- a servant who travelled with Dora on tour.
• Dalrymple, William, Colonel -- a neighbor at Bushy, advisor to the Duke & friend to Dora.
• Hayes, John Macnamara, Sir (1750-1809) -- first Baronet, military physician; appointed physician-extraordinary to the Prince of Wales in 1791 (DNB).
• Jemmett -- a favourite & trusted servant at Bushy.
• Keats, [?], Admiral -- was Henry’s first captain at sea, a good reputation.
• Lloyd, Thomas, Rev. -- Chaplain to William, came to Bushy to live with his family; sometimes travelled with Dora on tour.
• McMahon, John, Sir, (Colonel) (d. 1817) -- advisor & private secretary to the Prince Regent.
• Robin -- was a farmer at Bushy House, oversaw haymaking and the harvest.
• Sinclair, Mrs. -- an aunt of Dora’s on her father’s side, helped look after the children (1802).
• Sketchley, Mrs. -- a companion to Dora, with her at the end in Saint-Cloud, France.
• Wilkinson, John -- manager of the Northern Theatre Circuit after his father, Tate Wilkinson, died in 1803.
• Wroughton, Richard (1748-1822) -- new manager of the Drury Lane Theatre (1796).

Arrangement
Organized in the following manner: 1. Correspondence (Boxes 1-12); 2. Ephemera (Box 12); 3. Hair Box (original storage for letters); arranged alphabetically.
