[Item title, Call number]. Jay T. Last Collection of Food Prints and Ephemera, The Huntington Library, San Marino, California.

Provenance
This collection forms part of the Jay T. Last Collection of Graphic Arts and Social History, which was donated to the Huntington Library by Jay T. Last in 2005 as a gift in progress. The bulk of the food prints and ephemera were transferred to the Library between 2010 and 2013.

Background
The Jay T. Last Collection is an unparalleled archive of printed paper artifacts that documents American lithographic, social, and business history. The collection began in the early 1970s when physicist and Silicon Valley pioneer Jay Last moved to Southern California and started collecting citrus box labels he found at local flea markets and rummage sales. As his collection grew, Last realized that these labels conveyed important information about commercial printing, graphic design, and social history, and he expanded his collection to include other forms of American visual culture. Today this collection contains more than 200,000 lithographic prints, posters, and ephemera of mostly nineteenth- and early twentieth-century American origin and represents works by more than five hundred lithographic companies.

Scope and Content
The Jay T. Last Collection of Food Prints and Ephemera contains approximately 4,950 printed items advertising food products and related businesses in the United States from the 1840s to the 1960s, with the bulk of the items dating from 1875 to 1950. The collection consists largely of ephemera produced for American businesses affiliated with the growth, manufacture, packaging, distribution, and sale of food and food products. Most of these items are color lithographs, but hand-colored and uncolored engravings and woodcuts are also included.

Materials are arranged in two series: small-size items (11 x 14 inches or less) and large-size items (more than 11 x 14 inches). Small-size items are described broadly at the series level; large-size items and select small-size items are fully inventoried and all printers, artists, and publishers are indexed by name. The collection includes over 45 large-size items comprised mainly of lithographed advertising prints and product labels. Small-size items number approximately 4,900 and... contain a variety of promotional materials, including trade cards, product labels, and printed billheads and letterheads with manuscript text.

The collection highlights food production, merchandising, distribution, purveying, and consumption, and the images provide a rich resource for studying the history of such American industries as canning, packaging, and manufacturing along with the evolution of their advertising in the 19th and early 20th centuries. As graphic materials, the prints and ephemera offer evidence of developing techniques and trends in commercial printing, and of the artists, engravers, lithographers, printers, and publishers involved in the creative process.

Please note that food starch can be found in the Jay T. Last Collection of Household Goods Prints and Ephemera (in process). Food starch and laundry starch are grouped together because both were often made or distributed by the same companies and advertised together.

Note
The Jay T. Last Collection is a gift in progress. Container numbers may change as the collection expands.

Series I. Food Prints and Ephemera (small size) approximately 1850-1945 (bulk 1870-1920)

Physical Description: approximately 4,900 items in 38 binders and in 1 flat-top box

Scope and Content
This series contains approximately 4,900 small-size printed promotional ephemera items that pertain to food industries and related products in the United States from approximately 1850-1945.

The food-affiliated entities represented in this series include growers, packers, distributors, merchants, manufacturers, grocers, and restaurants and eateries. Item types include mainly trade cards, product labels, and printed billheads and letterheads with manuscript text. Many of the images depict food, though the collection also contains a wide variety of other images, including women; animals; children; flowers; and views of industrial buildings, farms, orchards, and vineyards.

Arrangement
This series is grouped into 8 subseries:

• Subseries A. Baby Food (small size)
• Subseries B. Confections (small size)
• Subseries C. Fruit and Vegetable Products (small size)
• Subseries D. Grain Products (small size)
• Subseries E. Ingredients (small size)
• Subseries F. Meat and Meat Products (small size)
• Subseries G. Purveyors (small size)
• Subseries H. Seafood (small size)

Items smaller than 8 x 10 inches are housed in binders. These items are grouped by business type and/or subject as indicated by the binder names and then alphabetically according to company name.

Items that are between 8 x 10 inches and 11 x 14 inches in size are sleeved and arranged numerically by call number in folders in one box, and select items have been fully cataloged. These items are described in the following format:
