Provenance
Documents in these records were created or collected by departments within American President Lines (APL) and its predecessor and subsidiary organizations. No evidence has been found of a records management program before the 1980s. The bulk of these records were assembled and organized as the APL Historical Archives by the APL Archives. Before the APL Archives was created, a variety of offices or individuals functioned as corporate repositories. For many years, the General Passenger Department retained records as part of its promotional and public relations activities. During the 1950s and 1960s, the Research & Development Department used and retained historical material in the preparation of research reports, many prepared by W. G. MacDonald, Assistant Passenger Traffic Manager in San Francisco. MacDonald, who began his career with Dollar's Admiral Oriental Line in 1924, also collected historical materials for a personal collection, which he sold to the company in 1983.

Most of these records appear to have been held by their respective creators or by the General Passenger Department until a corporate archives project was begun in 1979, probably in conjunction with the inventory and appraisal of APL's corporate art collection. Around 1981 the project was designated as the APL Archives, within the Office Services Department. Pamela Petersen supervised the APL Archives until 1983, when Colette Carey assumed the role.

In 1979 Pamela Petersen inventoried the archival records and produced the "APL Archives Bibliography." This inventory was updated in 1981 as "APL Archives Description and Arrangement." Both documents are found in Subgroup III, Series 5, Folder 2. W.G. MacDonald inventoried the collection he sold to APL in 1983 (Subgroup IV, Subseries 11.2, Folder 5). Neither the order nor the contents of the records transferred to San Francisco Maritime NHP in 1995 corresponded to these inventories. Materials were boxed, moved, and placed in storage between 1983 and 1995, and staff continued to use them. Some items were borrowed but not returned or were removed by collectors within the company. To the extent possible, the order of the records in the APL Archives has been reconstituted. Some records simply have been lost, probably due to moves of the corporate headquarters (1961, 1976, 1984, and 1991).

Agency History
American President Lines, for many years the largest American shipping company in the Pacific, was formed in 1938 from the remnants of the Dollar Steamship Company. Organized in 1900, Dollar spent its first two decades in the transpacific trade as "essentially a tramp operator, whose main cargoes were bulk, low-value merchandise not suitable for the larger and faster passenger-cargo liners of the Pacific Mail Steamship Lines." [1] Both APL and Dollar traced their corporate origins to the famous Pacific Mail Steamship Company (PMSS) formed in 1848.

Pacific Mail dominated stateside transpacific trade from 1867 to 1915. The Southern Pacific Railroad Company took control of the company in 1893. After the passage of the Panama Canal Act of 1912 and the LaFollette Seamen's Act of 1915, Southern Pacific Railroad began to liquidate the Pacific Mail fleet and withdraw from the transpacific trade. International Mercantile Marine purchased four Pacific Mail transpacific steamers; the remainder of the PMSS fleet and the company name were acquired by W.R. Grace & Co. As a subsidiary of Grace, Pacific Mail continued to operate coastwise service under its own house flag and purchased three new vessels with which it resumed transpacific service (and, briefly, round-the-world service) between 1916 and 1921. Pacific Mail Steamship Company officially ceased to exist in 1925 when Dollar acquired the company's name, house flag and goodwill from Grace.

As PMSS withdrew from transpacific service, Dollar expanded steadily in a slow build-up to the creation in 1924 of its own permanent round-the-world service. Dollar, and later APL, based its claim to PMSS as a direct predecessor company on its assumption of the "shell" of the old company--its name and its unused transpacific and round-the-world routes. This service, along with profitable intercoastal cargo business, gave Dollar and its American Mail Line (AML) [2] subsidiary a near monopoly on U.S. shipping in the Pacific Coast.

This dominance did not come without a price. As its debt grew through the 1930s, Dollar's fortunes declined. In August 1938, faced with insurmountable debt and probable foreclosure, the company entered into an agreement that its creditors felt was the best alternative to bankruptcy. The U.S. Maritime Commission acquired the 93% stock interest in the Dollar
Line held by the Dollar family. As payment, the U.S. Maritime Commission assumed all debts and personal obligations of the Dollar family in the line, began to pay off the debts and to rebuild the deteriorated Dollar fleet. Based on this arrangement and a large loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the revitalized company, renamed American President Lines (APL), played a significant part in the war effort of the U.S. merchant marine during World War II. The end of the war coincided with the repayment of the old Dollar Line's last creditors and with the initiation of the Dollar Line Case, a lawsuit brought by the Dollar family in an attempt to force the government to return the now profitable company to Dollar control. The litigation dragged on until 1952, when the government sold its stock in APL, keeping half of the proceeds and giving the other half to the Dollar family.

APL returned to private ownership under APL Associates, a group of venture capitalists headed by Ralph K. Davies, a former executive of Standard Oil of California. Davies had been acquiring blocks of APL stock since 1944, and helped influence the 1947 appointment of former Democratic National Committee treasurer George Killion as APL president. The two men shaped the company's direction for nearly thirty years. Killion left APL in 1966, and Davies was a major figure in the APL organization until his death in 1971. APL Associates was originally formed as a holding company but was converted to a public corporation through its 1956 merger with the Natomas Company, a mining organization. Natomas was APL's parent company until 1983, and many of APL's chief executives were selected from the Natomas ranks.

In 1947, when George Killion became president of APL, the company built its two flagships of the postwar era: the PRESIDENT CLEVELAND (II) and PRESIDENT WILSON (II). These P2 type vessels, each capable of carrying 550 passengers and some 194,000 cubic feet of cargo, figured prominently in the company's promotions and corporate image. They are probably the best-documented vessels in the current APL collection. Both vessels were retired within six months of each other:

“The PRESIDENT CLEVELAND reached her statutory retirement age late in 1972, and the PRESIDENT WILSON completed her last voyage, a round-the-world cruise, in April 1973. This brought to an end the trans-Pacific passenger ship service that had been carried on by the American President Lines and its predecessors without interruption except during World War I and World War II since 1867.” [3]

Other issues figured prominently in APL’s story during its first few decades. American Mail Line (AML), the Dollar subsidiary with the first ships named for American presidents, had suspended operations in June 1938 and gone into bankruptcy proceedings. Tobacco magnate Richard J. Reynolds bought the Dollars’ AML stock and invested additional funds to rebuild the company. Reynolds sold his controlling share of the AML stock in 1951. In 1954 it was acquired by Ralph K. Davies. There were internal and legal challenges to a merger of AML and APL, and the two companies were not truly consolidated until 1973, when APL absorbed AML and the latter company officially ceased to exist.

The postwar era also saw much activity in APL’s vessel replacement program. The first and most notable new vessel class was the Mariner, designed by the U.S. Maritime Commission as the successor to the Victory and C3 class vessels. After 1950, the Maritime Administration (MARAD) administered the construction program. Of twenty-nine Mariners MARAD sold to U.S. firms, eight were APL ships. The Mariners were the biggest freighters in existence during the 1950s. APL modified the design to create the Master Mariner class--three Master Mariners were built in 1965-1966--and also used the Mariner design as the basis for their five Seamaster vessels built in 1967-1968. APL’s Seamasters were converted to full containerships in 1972.

For APL the 1950s were a period of expansive plans that didn't always come to fruition. An atomic-powered ship was contemplated but never built. In 1958, APL planned to construct the PRESIDENT WASHINGTON, a gigantic transpacific liner that would carry 1,450 passengers. It would have been the fourth largest liner built in the United States and the largest operating from the West Coast. Despite meticulous planning and intensive lobbying efforts, the company was unable to obtain a special appropriation from Congress for the ship's construction differential subsidy, and the PRESIDENT WASHINGTON was never built. The name was used in 1983 for a C9 containership.

Containerization was the major development with which the company coped in the 1950s, 1960s, and 1970s. APL had considered containerization since the mid-1950s. The idea of containerization had its roots in the wartime expedient of shipping mixed cargoes in palletized boxes, instead of traditional bulk form. In 1956, APL executives in the operations and freight departments proposed a containerization plan to Ralph Davies, but the plan was overshadowed by the ill-fated PRESIDENT WASHINGTON project. Following Sea-Land’s 1957 introduction of commercial container service, APL set up a containerization group in its Operations Department. This group’s round-the-world fact-finding trip was an important step in APL’s transition to container cargo operations. The 1961 development of the Searacer class vessels was another tentative step in the transition:

“Some hatches of the Searacers were fitted out for containers, others conformed to traditional methods of stowage and off-loading. It was a costly error to attempt a compromise design when it was clear that the industry was in a state of such uncertainty. The Searacers, named the PRESIDENT LINCOLN (II) and the PRESIDENT TYLER (III), never operated efficiently. Two systems of freight carriage that were not compatible existed side by side on one vessel. They simply got in the other's way, slowing down rather than speeding up the loading and unloading process."[4]

Another interim technology related to containerization was the LASH (lighter aboard ship) concept. Three such vessels—the C8s PRESIDENT GRANT (V), PRESIDENT HOOVER (III) and PRESIDENT TYLER (IV)—were built for the company in 1971 and 1972. APL management was split on the need for these vessels. Ralph Davies was committed to the fading passenger service, while others were interested in moving toward full containerization. The controversy led in 1968 to the resignation of Raymond W. Ickes, who had succeeded George Killion as president of APL.

If APL did not lead the container revolution, it made other innovations that affected not only its own survival but the direction of the industry as a whole. In the 1970s, APL quickly adopted intermodalism, the movement of containers using mixed forms of transportation (ships, trucks, and railcars). Intermodalism had become a standard element in container service with Seatrain's 1971 introduction of the "landbridge" concept—transcontinental shipping of containers via rail using specially chartered flatcars, with the cargo remaining the responsibility of one company for the entire trip. By 1984, APL had begun piling containers two high on its flatcars, an important refinement called "double stacking" that signaled a shift in the company's market niche from a strictly maritime base to a container base.

Dramatic changes came in the early 1970s. The company suspended ocean liner passenger service in 1973 and accelerated the trend to containerization. It placed three new Pacesetter containerships in service and took final delivery on three converted Master Mariner ships with increased container capacity. In 1973, round-the-world break bulk service was suspended and replaced by full container service to Southeast Asia, India, Pakistan and Sri Lanka. A fourth Pacesetter containership entered service in 1974, bringing the fleet to 15 full containerships and five container/break bulk ships. In 1973 APL also moved its home port/terminal from San Francisco to Oakland. Corporate headquarters remained in San Francisco until 1976, when executive offices at 1950 Franklin Street in Oakland became the company's headquarters. In 1976, because of increased activity in intermodal shipments by the landbridge concept, APL discontinued its Atlantic/Straits service (New York to the Philippines via the Panama Canal.) It moved the five ships thus freed up to serve in transpacific operations. "Although APL prematurely rushed to claim that the all-water route across the Panama Canal was obsolete, there was no doubt that double-stacked trains had tremendously changed the nature of ocean transportation and affected the railroads as well."[5]

In the late 1970s APL intensified its focus on Pacific Basin business. In 1977, with "feeder" operations and changes in cargo flows shifting importance toward its transpacific routes, APL finally suspended its round-the-world services and redeployed all its vessels to the Pacific market. In the same year, Natomas executive W. Bruce Seaton began a fifteen-year tenure as president of APL. Seaton instituted cost-cutting measures in the ocean transportation segment of the business, cutting back some routes and building the larger, more economical C9 containerships. Acknowledging the importance of the land-based areas of the container business, Seaton also presided over the creation of two subsidiaries (American President Intermodal Company, Ltd. and American President Domestic Transportation Company, Ltd.) to operate and manage these important segments of APL's business. Another significant development during this period was the company's computer network, which continues to affect safety, operating efficiency, traffic, customs clearance, container yard and terminal control, equipment tracking, preplanning and a variety of other logistical issues.

In 1983, as a result of the hostile takeover of Natomas Company by Diamond Shamrock Corporation, APL was spun off and established as American President Companies, Ltd. (APC), an independent company and the only U.S. steamship company with shares publicly traded in the stock market. Following the spin-off, APC took measures to avoid the ever-present threat of a hostile takeover, first under the stewardship of Bruce Seaton and, from January 1992, under Seaton's successor John M. Lillie. These measures included unifying operations, refocusing marketing emphases, and considerable management restructuring in all phases of the business. The most notable initiative taken among APL's maritime operations during Lillie's tenure was a major vessel construction program that upgraded the fleet to include five new C11 class containerships.

Restructuring, which continued after John Lillie's resignation in October 1995, revealed changes in the company's direction. The naming of two longtime executives as President/Chief Executive Officer and Chairman of the Board—28-year veteran Timothy J. Rhein and Joji Hayashi (an APL employee since 1964), respectively—indicated a decentralization of the management structure. This approach carried over into the company's world view of its markets. APC refined its corporate mission to give all transport modes equal status:

"American President Companies, Ltd. provides container transportation and related services in Asia, the Americas, Europe and the Middle East through an intermodal system combining ocean, rail and truck transportation.... Our vision is to be one of the very best containerized surface transportation companies in the world."[6]

Under Rhein's and Hayashi's executive direction, cost reducing measures at all levels marked the company's reorganization efforts. APC restructured operations and management along twelve market lines that recognized the primacy of routes between North America and Asia. Another major development begun in 1995 was APC's formation of strategic alliances... with competitors like Orient Overseas Container Line, Mitsui OSK Lines, Ltd., Matson Navigation Company, Inc., Nedlloyd Lines B.V. and Malaysian International Shipping Corporation BHD. Soon after, in early 1996 the company announced its intention to stop using Bay Area ports, citing economic factors. The APL eagle has not completely disappeared from San Francisco Bay; APL containers continue to be a worldwide presence on the vessels of many other shipping lines.

On April 13, 1997, the company announced the proposed sale of American President Lines to Singapore's Neptune Orient Lines for $825 million in cash. As in the spin-off from Diamond Shamrock, the company retained its separate corporate name and its Oakland headquarter offices. In announcing the epochal deal, President and CEO Timothy Rhein continued to look forward: "The future of the shipping industry belongs to those who have a global vision, and the strategy and critical mass to realize that vision." [7]

But for the most telling aspect of APC's reorganization prior to the Neptune Orient merger, one must look to the launching of the company's fifth C11 in January 1996. Like her four sister ships, the APL PHILIPPINES was built overseas for reasons of cost-effectiveness and overall convenience (two of the C11s were built in Germany, three in Korea). Significantly, because of this foreign construction, none of these ships was christened with the name of a U.S. president. Thus, as American President Lines entered the 21st century--and its sixtieth year of continuous operation--it reasserted the significance of its transpacific routes but abandoned the tradition of American president ship names, simultaneously strengthening and relinquishing its ties with the past.

Endnotes
2. Formerly known as the Admiral Oriental Mail Line, AML was formed out of the 1922 merger of the Admiral Line with Dollar. The first five "President" ships were 535s operated by AML.
4. Niven, 211.
5. de la Pedraja, 44.

Scope and Content Note
Collection Summary: Approximately 575 linear feet including folders of textual materials, ledgers and logbooks, oversize folders of textual or graphic material, scrapbooks, photographic prints in standard and oversize formats, negatives, transparencies, motion picture film, audiotape and objects. The collection is comprised of two large acquisitions. The first portion, accessioned in 1983 and processed in 1987, consists of approximately 308 linear feet of logbooks and other corporate documents (bulk 1927-1943). The second portion (bulk 1938-1988), with which this finding aid is primarily concerned, was transferred from American President Lines (APL) to the San Francisco Maritime NHP Historic Documents Department in February 1995.

Scope: These records document operations, administration, promotion, and corporate history of American President Lines and some of its subsidiaries. Also included are some original documents created by its predecessor companies--Dollar Line and Pacific Mail Steamship Company (PMSS)--and subject files of information about them compiled by the APL Archives.

Organization
Materials in the 1995 accession have been organized into three collections: textual records and marine architectural drawings, visual materials, and artifacts. Although a number of images remain interfiled with the textual records (particularly in the company and ship subject files in boxes 292-315), the bulk of the photographs have been placed in photograph collection P96-007. Container lists for both collections should be consulted to locate all photographs. Photographs in the textual records have not been cross-referenced with photographs in P96-007. The first two collections were organized into eleven subgroups with separate series. The series arrangement follows as closely as possible the original order created by the succession of repositories within APL eventually consolidated as the APL Historical Archives by the APL Archives. The series of logbooks received in 1983 were integrated into the subgroup of operating records.

   III. Subject Files, 1909-1988, 26.32 linear feet.
IV. Department Files, 1922-1988, 37.38 linear feet.
V. American Mail Line, 1927-1976, 1.36 linear feet.
VI. Niven Files, 1982-1984, 3.3 linear feet.

   I. Alfred T. Palmer Collection, c.1930-c.1965, 44.14 linear feet.
   III. Bowen Scrapbooks, 1972-1988, 0.66 linear feet.
   IV. Audiovisual Materials, c.1950-c.1980, 85 motion picture reels (approximately 69,595 feet) plus 41 videocassettes and one audiotape.

   I. Objects, 1922-1988, 1016 items.

Scope and Content Note
HDC 279 contains the bulk of the records, consisting of a wide variety of materials such as logbooks, publications, office files, publicity materials, photographs, and marine architectural drawings. Materials described are in the 1995 accession unless otherwise noted.

Physical Description: 334.7 linear feet.

I.1 Logbooks of Dollar and APL Vessels, 1925-1944.
   Physical Description: 305.6 linear feet.
   Arrangement
   Arranged alphabetically by ship name, thereunder by log type, thereunder chronologically.
   Scope and Content Note
   Deck logs, port logs, engineer’s logs, War Shipping Administration bridge logs, and chief officer’s logs for Dollar and APL ships. Most of the early President ships are represented, plus a good number of the Dollar-named vessels. This series was part of the 1983 accession. Inventory lists (by vessel name and by container number) were created during the 1987 processing.

I.2 Miscellaneous Dollar and APL Operating Records, 1924-1935, 1940-1944.
   Physical Description: 2.74 linear feet.
   Arrangement
   Arranged chronologically.
   Scope and Content Note
   Repair records, Maritime War Emergency Board Bulletins, allowance list, contract trial data for wartime charter vessels, Engineering Department orders, and miscellaneous documents dated 1930 and 1935. This series was part of the 1983 accession.
I.3 Dollar Form 149 (Bill of Lading), 1924.

Physical Description: 0.25 linear feet.

Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.

Scope and Content Note
Eight items, carbon/pressure copies from multiple originals, probably the company's copies of bills of lading. The form notes that two copies were generated at time of shipping: "... the Agent of said STEAMER has signed two BILLS OF LADING, one of which Bills of Lading being accomplished the others to stand void. And the Shipper has also signed this Bill of Lading." These examples were collected by W. G. MacDonald of APL's Research and Development Department.

I.4 Dollar Form GPD17 ("Summary of Passenger Waybill"), 1924-1936.

Physical Description: 1.5 linear feet.

Arrangement
Arranged chronologically, thereunder by vessel name and voyage number.

Scope and Content Note
Dollar created this two-sided spreadsheet form to document revenues generated by taking on passengers at specific points of specific voyages, and to compare this with data for the same or a comparable voyage one year earlier. Information noted includes sailing date; port of embarkation; number, class and destinations of passengers taken aboard; revenue generated and agency responsible for bringing passengers to Dollar. Data on this form has as much to do with corporate marketing as with administration of Dollar's round-the-world route. Form GPD17 reflects the dual nature of the General Passenger Department, at that time responsible for marketing as well as administration of passenger service.

I.5 Passengers/Revenue Recap Reports, 1924-1947.

Physical Description: 0.66 linear feet.

Arrangement
Arranged by subject, thereunder chronologically.

Scope and Content Note
Recapitulations of data in form GPD17, found in binders labeled by service (Round-the-world, transpacific, etc.) and by subject (ports, ships). This form summarizes the information in form GPD17: passengers/revenues embarked, and where these were generated. Because of the recapitulatory format, it is probable that these forms were distributed to and used by a variety of officers, for the purposes of planning and decision-making in the areas of scheduling, deployment of vessels, sales/marketing, promotions, administration and vendor relations.

Physical Description: 0.66 linear feet.

Arrangement
Contents of four binders, arranged chronologically.

Scope and Content Note
"General Instructions" was the basic operations document for vessels at sea, covering in detail nearly every phase of the company's passenger services, policies and procedures. These instructions were kept aboard ship in three-ring binders, with revisions issued by the General Passenger Department at frequent intervals. Two of the four binders represented here are marked with the ship names PRESIDENT WILSON and PRESIDENT TYLER.

Physical Description: 4.62 linear feet.
Arrangement
Thirty-six volumes, arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Volumes contain data on traffic (arrivals, departures, dates, times, terminal facility/pier number occupied, next port destination) and ship activity compiled by managers of APL's San Francisco terminal. Include occasional notes regarding specific labor and wartime events.

Physical Description: 18.31 linear feet.
Arrangement
Fourteen volumes, arranged in roughly chronological order.
Scope and Content Note
Ledgers of various dimensions and formats, mostly from the late Dollar-early APL period of the 1930s-early 1940s. There is no information about the creation, retention, or use of these ledgers. The last three ledgers are especially confusing. At least one item, "Dollar Steamship Lines Inc., Ltd. Sterling Account Ledger," documents transactions involving overseas offices, and is recorded in pounds sterling. The first ledger has accounts relative to the 1929-1931 construction of the PRESIDENT HOOVER and PRESIDENT COOLIDGE as well as to the 1932 improvements to the "white waiter crews quarters" of seven President ships. Some of the Transfer Ledgers include such diverse information as pier rental and dock expenses in New York, advertising agency fees in San Francisco, fuel oil in Manila and lifeboats in Shanghai.

Physical Description: 0.25 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically by form type.
Scope and Content Note
Examples of note paper, supply forms, and an AML bell book.

I.10 Manuals, Directories, Organizational Charts, 1930-1981.

Physical Description: 0.33 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically by first issue date.
Scope and Content Note
Dollar instructions to staff/crew ("General Circular," "General Orders"), APL industrial relations manuals, organizational charts, management guide, procedural documents, listings of offices, agents and terminals. Some manuals were periodically revised and individual page revisions distributed. Most items appear to have been distributed for use by both management and rank and file employees, and cover operational as well as policy issues. For an outsider's description and assessment of the Dollar organization shortly before its reorganization into American President Lines, see also the "Organization Survey Report" that appears in the Dollar subject files.

Physical Description: 12.68 linear feet.

Physical Description: 1.33 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Brochures and pamphlets produced by APL, its predecessor companies, and its subsidiaries. Most promote passenger services and related products. Other promotional items distributed to consumers include election handbooks with information on American presidents and past elections, guidebooks on specific ports, information on corporate art, and information on the U.S. space program. Consumer brochures were available through travel agencies or distributed directly at APL offices or events. An oversize publication, American President Lines South Asia, is located in oversize box #422.

II.2 Deck Plan Brochures, 1922-1970s.

Physical Description: 0.66 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Consumers, travel agents, and company sales staff used deck plans to plan and select accommodations aboard specific vessels. Other departments used them to assess and project requirements for new construction projects. Some examples highlight accommodations aboard new vessels and appear to have been prepared for consumers or members of the travel trade who visited the new vessels.

II.3 Trade Brochures, 1917-1980s.

Physical Description: 0.66 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Travel trade-oriented brochures, pamphlets and mailings produced by APL, its predecessor companies, and subsidiaries. These were distributed directly to travel agencies, often via mass mailings. Items distributed in this manner were called "stuffers". Trade-oriented brochures were important links in communication between APL and the agencies that generated bookings and special co-operative programs, services, and promotions. Changes in service or traffic were usually accompanied by special mailings to the travel trade. Perhaps more than any other corporate publication, trade brochures reflect important trends in how the company marketed its products. From an emphasis on luxury and exotic destinations in the early days, through the focus on value and co-operative and packaged services in the 50s and 60s, to the eventual decline of passenger services in the 1970s, the company's positioning and evolving direction is evident in these documents.

Physical Description: 2.8 linear feet.

Arrangement
Arranged by company, thereunder by document type, thereunder by route, thereunder by date.

Scope and Content Note
These publications were the basic form for describing schedules and costs of services, and for informing both consumers and the travel trade about changes in services. They are useful for tracking specific voyages. The Dollar Line paid close attention to detail and accuracy in its schedules; APL carried over this trait from the Dollar operation. PMSS documents date from 1906 to 1925. Documents from the Admiral Line, an AML predecessor, date from 1921 to 1932. Dollar documents date from 1920 to 1938. AML items date from 1926 to 1977. Many of these were jointly issued with Dollar or APL items. APL documents exhibit the broadest date range (1938-1989) and the widest variety, including passenger, cargo, and cargo liner schedules and fare brochures. Folder #42, approximately thirty larger format Dollar Schedules for Dollar-named ships, may be found in oversize box #422.

Physical Description: 3.33 linear feet.

II.5.2 Menus, 1928-1986.

Physical Description: 2.0 linear feet.

Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.

Scope and Content Note
Printed menus and jackets or forms into which daily menus were printed or inserted. These items often contain not only information on the food service aboard Dollar and APL ships, but also the ship’s position for the day. In these menus may also be seen a reflection of changes in corporate image; both companies were very careful about commissioning and selecting the artwork for their onboard menus. Much of the original artwork for these menus has become part of APL's corporate art collection. Some groups of menus have been bound into souvenir packets.
II.6 APL Periodicals, 1940-1995.

Physical Description: 1.0 linear foot.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Newsletters, house organs, and magazines produced by APL and distributed to employees, the travel trade, and the general public. The publications in Series 6 through 13 in the Corporate Publications subgroup are more about the organization than of the organization. The magazines in this series present the image that APL wanted to communicate to its employees as well as to the general public. Documents published during George Killion's presidency (1947-1966), which was an era of uncertainty regarding political, labor and subsidy issues, are interesting for the persuasiveness with which Killion addressed APL employees regarding political and labor issues affecting the company. House organs from the 1970s onward are notable for their demonstration of the rise of the corporate communications approach to public information and investor relations, and an increasing incorporation of promotional imagery.

In addition to organizational charts, administrative analyses, route maps, and statistics on revenue and payroll activities, the report contains candid discussions of operations, personnel conditions, and interdepartmental tensions. APL Archives staff created series for "APL Subjects," "General Subjects," "Captains/prominent crew members," "Executives," and "Presidents." Series distinctions among these subject files have been maintained as found, but contents overlap among these series, particularly between the "APL Subjects" and "General Subjects" series. Users are advised to look in both series.

Physical Description: 2.91 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Lists, memoranda, correspondence, telegrams, clippings and other documents created or compiled by the Executive Departments of APL Ltd., APL Associates, and Natomas Company. These documents were created by the Executive Departments of three important eras in APL’s history. The first group, from APL, Ltd., reflects the transition from Dollar to APL; the second group documents the era of Ralph K. Davies and APL Associates; the third group reflects the first deliberations of the Natomas Company regarding the possible sale of APL. A few additional items, found in oversize file D1.4.3, are ceremonial items presented to Ralph K. Davies/George Killion in 1960 and to W. Bruce Seaton in the 1980s.

Physical Description: 0.15 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Two items. A spreadsheet comparison, 1922, of different vessel types in New York-Manila service created by department head M. J. Buckley compares such data as speed, days at sea, revenues, costs of operation and supplies, to Panama Canal tolls, wages, stores and supplies. As early as 1922, executives were planning expansion of the fleet and its services. The 1965-1966 items consist of memoranda and a clipping regarding reconsideration of APL’s participation in U.S. bulk fleet activities.

Physical Description: 0.58 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Ad slicks, tearsheets, space recaps, presentation for travel agents. These materials reflect GPD’s role as in-house advertising agency. The Lord & Thomas agency functioned primarily as a media buying service for Dollar, although it did some creative assignments. Later GPD operated more as a marketing entity to the travel trade. Approximately sixty oversize items—ad slicks, presentation boards, mechanicals/composites, brochures, etc. mostly from 1968-1969—are located in oversize box #424, and an additional thirteen larger items from the same period are located in oversize folder D1.4.4.

Physical Description: 1.0 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged in reverse chronological order.
Scope and Content Note
Memoranda, sample brochures, forms, drafts, and notes relating to production and revision of brochures. Some files (folder 24, folder 25) deal with multilingual versions of brochures. These files were found in reverse chronological order, coinciding with descending brochure numbers. There are gaps in the sequence.

Physical Description: 5.91 linear feet total.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically by subseries.
Scope and Content Note
This series consists of three subseries: Chicago Office Scrapbooks, Eugene F. Hoffman Files and Press Releases.

IV.6.1 Chicago Office Scrapbooks, 1931-1941.

Physical Description: 2.58 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged in loosely chronological order.
Scope and Content Note
Two scrapbooks created by longtime Chicago Sales Manager Leo A. Matthews: "Letters-New Literature-News Items-Publicity" 1931-1932, and "Newspaper Tearsheets" 1937-1941 contain clippings, mailings, promotional materials, and correspondence documenting APL Chicago office sales and promotion activities. Most of the promotional items displayed were created by the Chicago office, so these materials are a valuable source of locally-produced promotional material; they also provide a glimpse of newsworthy events affecting APL Chicago sales operations.

Physical Description: 1.33 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Interim and final drafts of speeches, feature articles, brochures, correspondence, memoranda, notes, some subject materials. As head of public relations for Dollar and then APL, Hoffman bore primary responsibility for shaping the company's public image, articulating its corporate mission, and disseminating its needs and intentions to stockholders, investors, and decision-makers in government and the media. The finished products--speeches, brochures, feature articles--demonstrate Hoffman's role in these areas, but some of the peripheral items--cover notes, draft revisions, etc.--give some insight into how he fulfilled those duties and, more importantly, what he thought about his own work.

Physical Description: 2.0 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Mostly as-distributed copies of press releases and announcements; some draft or multiple-market versions. Several ranges are from binders kept by specific executives. Later files (1973-1988) include announcements distributed internally and usually released to the media with minimal revisions. Overall arrangement is chronological, but some ranges are reverse chronological. Along with advertising and corporate communications, press releases may be considered the primary product of the Passenger Department before its functions were reassigned to other departments and outside agencies. Considered in a linear fashion, the press releases provide a historical continuum of what the company considered its most notable activities and the events affecting those activities.

Physical Description: 2.1 linear feet.

Scope and Content Note
The APL Archives was part of the Office Services Department.

Physical Description: 1.6 linear feet.

Arrangement
Arranged alphabetically by patron name.

Scope and Content Note
Correspondence, notes, images, clippings, and other documentation of reference transactions handled by the APL Archives, which was part of the Office Services Department. Items in this series show how the company's historical collections were used, and illuminate source relationships with APL veterans, collectors and researchers.

IV.7.2 "We Were There" Exhibit, 1985.

Physical Description: 0.5 linear feet

Arrangement
Arranged in roughly chronological order as found.

Scope and Content Note
Planning documents, notes, sketches, memoranda, photographs, forms, publicity materials, clippings, and memorabilia documenting APL’s role in an exhibit commemorating the 40th anniversary of the end of World War II. These files were created by Colette Carey, Office Services Department.

IV.8 Office Services Corporate Art Collection Administrative and Documentation Files, 1976-1988.

Physical Description: [9.46 linear feet total]

Arrangement
Arranged alphabetically by subseries title.

Scope and Content Note
This series consists of four subseries: Corporate Art Collection Documentation Files, Selection Books, Ship Models Administration Files and Theme Board Files.

Physical Description: 3.49 linear feet.

Arrangement
Arranged in roughly chronological order; transparencies arranged by item number.

Scope and Content Note
Case files on repair jobs, correspondence, memoranda, notes, forms, color transparencies, slides and photocopies of paintings, prints and objects from the corporate art collection. Oversize box #425 contains original art and oversize prints of items from the corporate art collection, and oversize folder D1.4.5 contains a 1979 poster made from a color lithograph of the PMSS Co. ship CHINA. Transparencies and photocopies were found loose and in binders. Information on one of the original slide sheets indicates that the slides and transparencies were made by "Tom Tracy, 115 Sansome Street, Suite #812, San Francisco, CA 94104 (415) 340-9811." Created in 1980 as part of a company-wide inventory, the transparencies appear to have been made first, with the slides then duplicated from them. The transparencies were used by Dr. Joseph A. Baird, who appraised the art collection in 1981; Dr. Baird wrote descriptions and comments for each piece, but his report has not been found in this collection. Uses of the color photocopies are not known; they may have comprised the beginnings of a subject-based selection binder. Serial numbers found on transparencies and slides correspond to asset identification tags applied to individual pieces during the inventory.

Physical Description: 2.0 linear feet.

Arrangement
Arranged in roughly chronological order.

Scope and Content Note
Photographs, transparencies, forms and photocopies found in binders. Titles found with some binders ("Selection of photographs for reproduction of laser canvas images used for office murals," "A selection of photographs from APL Archives," "Master APL color photo murals") indicate the function of these binders. Use of images as office decoration appears to have been distinct from the development of theme boards (see subseries 8.4).

Physical Description: 0.33 linear feet.

Arrangement
Arranged in chronological order.

Scope and Content Note
Lists, inventories, memoranda, photographs and other documentation of corporate ship models collection. Like paintings and other pieces from the corporate art collection, ship models were used for decoration or other exhibition within APL's offices. One of the responsibilities of the Office Services Department was to maintain the ship model collection and track the locations of ship models using a database that was periodically updated.
IV.8.4 Theme Board Files, 1979-1986.

Physical Description: 3.64 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged in chronological order.
Scope and Content Note
Notes, memoranda, sketches and other items documenting the planning and creation of theme boards. These theme boards, a conceptual outgrowth of the onboard displays dealing with American presidents, were placed in lobbies, conference rooms and other common areas. Since materials used were held and administered by the Office Services department, responsibility for their creation fell under this department. Series includes seven 11”x14” black & white photographic prints assembled, according to notation on the reverse of three of the prints, for the July 1981 theme board titled "Shipbuilding and Launching Through the Years." Oversize prints are found in oversize box #425.

IV.9 Operating Department Files, 1926-1984.

Physical Description: [6.22 linear feet total]
Arrangement
Arranged in roughly chronological order by subseries
Scope and Content Note
This series consists of eight subseries: Circulars and Private Code, Voyage Cards, Operating Department Staff Meeting Minutes, Containerization Report, Engineering/Construction Files, Terminals Files, Personnel Files and Miscellaneous Operating Department Files.

IV.9.1 Circulars and Private Code, 1926-1941.

Physical Description: 0.10 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Two binders containing, respectively, department circulars 1926-1941 and "Private Code Second Supplement" apparently from 1941. These binders were evidently distributed to ships' crews and were used in the discharge of their duties. The circulars covered service standards; the code was apparently used in communications.

Physical Description: 2.5 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged alphabetically by ship name, wherein by voyage number in reverse chronological order.
Scope and Content Note
Two file boxes containing 5x7 index cards with data on movements during individual voyages of APL ships. It is not clear how these were used.

IV.9.3 Operating Department Staff Meeting Minutes, 1956-1965.

Physical Description: 0.33 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Photocopied minutes provided by Capt. T.C. Conwell, who was head of this department during this date range. Documents in this subseries reflect policy, planning and administration of company operations.

Physical Description: 0.16 linear feet.
Arrangement
One report.
Scope and Content Note
Report on 1958-1959 fact-finding trip to study readiness of ports on APL's round-the-world route to implement containerization. This report demonstrates APL's early interest in what ultimately became the single most important postwar development in merchant marine history. It's significant that, as early as 1958, APL was devoting staff time and energy to planning for change in cargo operations. Most of the report is given over to analyses of existing port conditions on round-the-world routes, but, as pointed out on page 2 of the report, the potential and feasibility of containerization in round-the-world service was made obvious to APL management.

Physical Description: 1.29 linear feet.
Arrangement
One album
Scope and Content Note

Physical Description: 0.5 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically and by ship name.
Scope and Content Note
Correspondence, memoranda, specifications, photographs and progress files relative to specific ship construction projects. These files document the Engineering Department's shepherding of various construction projects to conclusion. These are primarily specifications and construction progress files on Master Mariner vessels, constructed in the mid-late 1960s.

IV.9.6 Terminals Files.

Physical Description: 0.33 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged alphabetically by terminal location.
Scope and Content Note
Memoranda, presentations, clippings, photographs and slides of APL cargo terminals. General information on certain cargo terminals is available in these files. The files on the Oakland terminal document the Port of Oakland's pitch to APL which may have influenced the company's eventual decision to relocate its headquarters and home port from San Francisco to Oakland.

Physical Description: 1.0 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically (employment applications) and alphabetically (crew cards).
Scope and Content Note
Correspondence, employment applications and crew cards. Applications and correspondence are fragmentary files of uncertain provenance; it is not known why these items were kept or what secondary uses they may have had. Crew cards are arranged in an index card file and labeled "Crew cards for Liberty & Victory ships & other ships operated by APL in World War II 1941-1945." Each crew card contains an individual's name, license number, position, ship assignment(s) and dates served.

IV.9.8 Miscellaneous Operating Department Files, 1922-1924, 1934, 1940.

Physical Description: 0.01 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Memoranda, reports, photograph, shipping document of Dollar and APL companies. Found among miscellaneous folded marine architectural drawings. 1922 and 1923 items are in regard to small vessels being considered for purchase by Dollar. 1924 item is carbon copy of Dollar form regarding refrigerated cargo. 1934 item is carbon copy of Dollar form Report of Personal Injuries or Illness. 1940 item is APL memorandum and mimeographed contract specifications regarding construction of models of C3 and P4P vessels.

IV.10 Passenger Traffic Department, 1945-1957.

Physical Description: [4.23 linear feet total]
Arrangement
Arranged in roughly chronological order by subseries.
Scope and Content Note
This series consists of two subseries: "N-7. New Ships. V-2000" and J. M. Diggs "C-51" files re: vessel replacement. Other than the letter/number designations "N-7" and "C-51," there is no information on how these record groups were created or kept.

Physical Description: 0.66 linear feet.
Arrangement
Scope and Content Note
Studies, reports, projections, analyses, specifications, correspondence, memoranda, cable and telex messages, notes and other records relative to planning and implementation of vessel replacement programs. Department executives whose activities and areas of responsibility are documented here include J. M. Diggs, Hugh Mackenzie and W. L. Johnstone. Expansion of passenger services was the prime intention of APL during the postwar years. Of the subjects treated in this subseries, most prominent is the development of three V-2000 class ships [PRESIDENT ADAMS (III), PRESIDENT HAYES (III), PRESIDENT JACKSON (III)], the immediate precursors to the important Mariner class vessels.

Physical Description: 3.57 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Clippings, correspondence, memoranda, notes, reports, data, spreadsheets and other records documenting vessel conversion/replacement plans and activities relative to the operation and sale of the ship LA GUARDIA in service to Hawaii, and later the consideration of operating charter troop ships, constructing an atomic-powered vessel, and the development of Mariner class ships. Oversize folder D1.4.1 includes seven large colored chalk drawings dated 1958 which were created for APL by Anshen & Allen, Architects; six depict proposed designs for the PRESIDENT WASHINGTON transpacific liner, and one shows a proposed redesign of the Veranda Lounge aboard the PRESIDENTS CLEVELAND and WILSON.

Physical Description: 0.16 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Lists, data, reports created primarily by W. G. MacDonald. There are also two subseries: Agency Vessel Contract Reports and W. G. MacDonald Collection. This was not a typical research & development department, in that its primary product evidently consisted of research reports. Its primary function appears to have been the compilation and packaging of data and research, but its reports appear to have been carefully considered by decision-makers within the organization.

Physical Description: 0.25 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically by fiscal year.
Scope and Content Note
Mimeographed, carbon copy and photocopied reports showing activity and operational status of vessels operated by APL under contracts with U. S. Maritime Commission, later MARAD. These apparently were created by Finance Department, Accounting Section. Some later reports in the series evidently were created by W. G. MacDonald from voyage cards, copies of which are occasionally attached. While the primary use appears to have been accounting to the federal government, these copies were held by APL's Research & Development Department for their compilation of data.

Physical Description: 0.25 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Notes, reports, memoranda, correspondence, clippings, photographs relating to W.G. MacDonald's collection of APL-related historical research and materials. For some forty years at APL, W. G. MacDonald, Assistant Manager of Passenger Traffic, collected historical materials--most notably ephemera--and compiled reports on a number of topics for the Research & Development Department. Mr. MacDonald had been retired for nearly twenty years when he sold his collection back to APL in 1983. Papers documenting this sale indicate that the company intended to maintain a separate W. G. MacDonald Collection, but the collection was quickly dispersed and reabsorbed into APL's historical collection, and a number of items were lost or removed from the collection altogether. Mr. MacDonald prepared inventories prior to selling his collection to APL (Folder 5, Subseries 11.2), but they do not reflect the collection as received from APL.

V.1 American Mail Line Documents, 1939-1943.

Physical Description: 0.54 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged roughly in reverse chronological order.
Scope and Content Note
Telegrams, incoming and outgoing correspondence, board minutes, clippings, forms, notes, draft documents, and other items mostly relevant to AML's bankruptcy and reorganization during this period. This record series may have begun life as a chronological file created by AML management to document the company's reorganization, since a letter dated Oct. 4, 1940 from John Cormode notes, "... the company went through bankruptcy, was reorganized the early part of this year, and all the old records were destroyed." The documents reflect activities of Executive Assistant John Cormode, AML president Lawrence Calvert, General Manager A. R. Lintner (later president of the company) and attorney John Ambler. The files were found, nearly intact, among the four cartons of material provided by APL to John M. Niven and returned to the company in somewhat different condition following the creation of his book The American President Lines and its Forebears 1848-1984.

V.2 American Mail Line Department Files, 1927-1974.

Physical Description: 0.16 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged alphabetically by department name.
Scope and Content Note
Bulletins, circulars, supplements, correspondence, crew cards, prospectus, and fragments of minute books found loose among AML photographs, W. G. MacDonald collection and John Niven materials. Though only fragments, these files--particularly the pre-1940 items--afford a glimpse at the activities of AML departments.

Physical Description: 0.66 linear feet.

Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.

Scope and Content Note
Notes, planning documents, invitation lists, invoices, photographs, clippings, and other materials about promotional events assembled by R.C. Lawrence, AML District Manager in Portland, Oregon. These files give a good indication of AML's customers, vendors and other associates in the Portland area during this time, as well as the kinds of promotional events the company sanctioned.

Physical Description: 3.3 linear feet.

VI.1 Research Files, 1982-1984.

Physical Description: 1.98 linear feet.

Arrangement
Minimally arranged as found.

Scope and Content Note
Files used by John Niven in the preparation of the book The American President Lines and its Forebears 1848-1984, and comprised primarily of photocopied materials from a variety of sources: Dollar materials from The Bancroft Library and AML materials from collector Allan Yost. Mr. Yost's reminiscences of his AML employment are also found. Original file folders containing notes and other information regarding their use have been kept. Dr. Niven's notes are found throughout this series, on the documents themselves and on yellow ruled paper. The last two folders contain a typed manuscript of the book, plus correspondence to and from Dr. Niven regarding the project.

Physical Description: 1.32 linear feet.

Arrangement
Arranged alphabetically by interview subject.

Scope and Content Note
Textual records are draft transcripts with corrections by Dr. Niven and, in some cases, by the subjects themselves. Audiocassette tapes are unedited recordings of the oral history interviews; they are found in box #364 (APL records center carton HIST-167), located in the Rare Vault, and are arranged alphabetically by subject in three trays labeled "A -G," "H -N," and "O -Z."

Physical Description: 85.21 linear feet.
Scope and Content Note
Folded marine architectural drawings depicting profiles, diagrams, arrangements, rigging, details, wiring and generic U.S. Maritime Commission (USMC) and Maritime Administration (MARAD) designs. Primarily blueprints and diazos, but also some offset copies. Except for the COOLIDGE/HOOVER marine architectural drawings and the "Miscellaneous" series, these marine architectural drawings document post-World War II cargo vessel designs or their precursors. This subgroup was part of the 1983 accession. These drawings, all copies mostly from shipyard sources, were evidently kept by an APL department, possibly an office of the Operations Department. The postwar drawings appear to have been used as reference copies for maintenance, and/or possibly for planning of new vessels. The COOLIDGE/HOOVER drawings and the miscellaneous drawings apparently were kept for their historical interest; the miscellaneous drawings were obtained from various sources, and some bear evidence of having been stored near machinery, possibly aboard a ship.

VII.1 PRESIDENT COOLIDGE/HOOVER Marine Architectural Drawings, 1929-1931.
Physical Description: 24.82 linear feet
Arrangement
Minimally arranged as found.
Scope and Content Note
423 blueprint copies of drawings created by Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Company's Engineering and Hull Departments. The original inventory accompanying these marine architectural drawings states that the COOLIDGE/HOOVER marine architectural drawings include some views of "3 inch gun mountings on Sun Deck," but were not found during processing.

Physical Description: 1.46 linear feet
Arrangement
Minimally arranged as found.
Scope and Content Note

Vessels depicted: PRESIDENT JACKSON [II], PRESIDENT MONROE [II], PRESIDENT HAYES [II], PRESIDENT GARFIELD [II], PRESIDENT ADAMS [II], PRESIDENT VAN BUREN [II], PRESIDENT POLK [II].

VII.3 P4P Vessels Marine Architectural Drawings, 1939-1940.

Arrangement
Minimally arranged as found.

Scope and Content Note
119 items; diazo process copies of drawings created by Consolidated Steel Corporation Los Angeles Shipbuilding Division. Also bound group of mimeographed inventory receipts SS CAPE MENDOCINO. VII.6 Miscellaneous Marine Architectural Drawings and Other Documents, 1906-1934 and undated.

Physical Description: 3.45 linear feet
Arrangement
Minimally arranged by size.

Scope and Content Note
Twenty items; blueprint, diazo and offset process copies of marine architectural drawings, equipment drawings, charts, building floor plans. Rehoused in flat file drawers B2.23-8, -9 and -10, and roll #377.

Arrangement
Scope and Content Note
Photographic negatives, prints, transparencies, motion picture films, and videotapes documenting Dollar, APL, and AML passenger and cargo services and fleets.

Physical Description: 44.14 linear feet.

Physical Description: [12.07 linear feet total]

Arrangement
Arranged into two format groups by size, and then roughly chronologically by subject.

Scope and Content Note
Approximately 3,460 black & white negatives plus some contact prints, created for Dollar and APL between 1929 and the late 1960s by Alfred Palmer or his associates. Negatives are organized into two format groups by size: 3,365 4” x 5” negatives and 95 8” x 10” negatives. The small negatives are arranged by subject, roughly following the Palmer photographers’ original numbering system to maintain the apparent original order within subject groups. Most of the Palmer images do not appear to have been cataloged under serial numbers until they were ordered or bought. Since different photographers appeared to have used different ranges of serial numbers at different times, it has been impossible to strictly adhere to this number/subject system. Chronological order within the seven basic subject groups has taken priority over numerical order, though it will be noted that most consecutive ranges of image numbers tend to be in ascending chronological order. Subject groups include cargo/engineering operations and facilities exterior shots of passenger vessels interior shots of passenger vessels/shipboard life images created in the course of special promotional shoots third class interiors/shipboard life miscellaneous images—including celebrity passengers destinations graphics & displays--company events personnel portraits.

Twenty-three items are identified as nitrate negatives, eight 4” x 5” and fifteen 8” x 10”.

Some non-Palmer images are found in this subgroup, dated in the late 1960’s, as Mr. Palmer withdrew from his status as APL’s primary photographer. Several of the photographers who took over from Palmer were drawn from the ranks of his associates; foremost among these were Tom Vano and Henri van Wandelen.

Images have been rehoused where necessary, but the original negative sleeves often contain useful information regarding provenance, identification, or technical specifications. Many sleeves contain contact prints either inserted into the sleeve or mounted on the outside. Minimal notations on these sleeves usually include a date and the photographer’s initials. Following is a list of photographers’ initials identified during processing:

TAD T______ A. D[ahlstrom?] (Ture A. Dahlstrom was in the Steward’s Dept.)

WEW
Physical Description: 1.88 linear feet.
Arrangement
Minimally arranged by subject as found
Scope and Content Note
Mostly unlabeled, undated images of break bulk cargo loading/unloading, documentation of specific types of cargo, operation of equipment, cargo activities once underway, activities & facilities in various world ports (including Mission Rock Terminal in San Francisco), documentation of accident damage. Except for damage documentation (probably created for insurance or other claims) and cargo-specific depictions, these images are for the most part minimally identified.

Physical Description: 2.63 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged by alphabetically by vessel name, thereunder chronologically; agency and unidentified ships appear after President ships.
Scope and Content Note
These ship portraits consist of "formal" views, usually views of docked vessels, or shots underway taken from set vantage points, and "candid" shots, usually depicting a date-specific event such as trial runs, or transition from Dollar to APL stack. Uses for these ship exterior images were mainly promotional; many found their way into newspaper and magazine accounts. Images depicting events like the CLEVELAND or WILSON maiden voyages show the Palmers' multiple-photographer procedure for covering significant photo opportunities: shots were made from a launch, from points on shore, and from the Golden Gate Bridge.

Physical Description: 3.38 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged alphabetically by vessel name; thereunder chronologically; agency and unidentified ships appear after President ships.
Scope and Content Note
Images in this subseries document accommodations and activities aboard Dollar and APL ships. Most are candid photographs, shot during actual voyages, but several sequences are obviously posed tableaux featuring models. Notations on envelopes suggest that some sequences (such as the images, numbered #701-713, of a "Sukiyaki Night" aboard the PRESIDENT CLEVELAND) were created at the request of APL executives. Similarly, the small number of unpopulated images of accommodations--mainly aboard Dollar vessels, but also aboard APL ships--were clearly intended for promotional uses. The bulk of the images in this subseries depict APL's flagships PRESIDENT CLEVELAND and PRESIDENT WILSON.
I.1.4 "A Dream and a Memory" Photographs, 1948-1949.

Physical Description: 0.75 linear feet.

Arrangement
Arranged by serial number.

Scope and Content Note
Approximately 150 black & white photographs from a cruise aboard the new PRESIDENT CLEVELAND (voyage 6, August 30 -October 2, 1948) during which Alfred and Alexa Palmer photographed two models, Walter Kelly and Wanda W., for a film project. The models are seen strolling the deck, dining and drinking, swimming, attending private and ship-wide parties, playing deck games, modeling clothes and visiting tourist sites in Manila, Shanghai, Tokyo, Kobe and Hong Kong. Several images shot in San Francisco during December 1948 and January 1949 are included in this subseries since they depict the same models wearing designer sports clothes (Koret of California) and are evidently continuations of the A Dream and a Memory shoot. These photographs are notable as a discrete group of images from a Palmer shoot. Several remarkable images show Alfred and Alexa Palmer at work, and some show the Palmers dining and partying with Walter, Wanda and other associates. APL held the San Francisco premiere of A Dream and a Memory ("Four Exciting Reels in Color") aboard the PRESIDENT CLEVELAND at Pier 44 on Wednesday, January 19, 1949. An incomplete print of the film is found in Subgroup XI, Series 1, item SAFR-891-.2.10.

Physical Description: 0.75 linear feet

Arrangement
Arranged by serial number.

Scope and Content Note
Approximately 150 photographs depicting accommodations and activities in the third class sections of APL vessels. Since third class fares were vigorously promoted among Asian consumer segments, most shipboard shoots appear to have included sequences featuring third class services. Many of these images are candid shots (some envelopes note whether releases have been obtained), but there are sequences of posed photographs. Most notable are those from voyage 61 (1955) of the PRESIDENT CLEVELAND (roughly items SL-376 through ASL-427), which show several young Filipinos posing at various locations aboard ship.

Physical Description: 0.38 linear feet

Arrangement
Roughly arranged by serial number.

Scope and Content Note
Celebrity shots were apparently made for documentation, not for specific promotions. The five destination shots found here must have been used in a specific project; these negatives may have been taken from the "Destinations" subseries (3.6) found below. The graphics and display images appear to have been used in planning, development or documentation of promotional and training events.
I.1.7 Events/Ceremonies/Parties, 1938-1954,

Physical Description: 1.13 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged by serial number in roughly chronological order.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately 200 images documenting specific shipboard and corporate events, from the transition from Dollar to APL to company picnics. Company-sponsored luncheons and parties are included, as are media events and other special ceremonies. If the envelope inscriptions in this subseries are accurate, most images appear to have been printed up and delivered as prints to APL executives, with no further activity evident. Event documentation may have been considered a loss leader for the photographers; certainly this policy indicates how firmly established Palmer's shop was within the APL organization.

Physical Description: 0.75 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged alphabetically by subject.
Scope and Content Note
Candid and posed shots of APL personnel, from shipboard and office staff to managers and department heads. While many images lack serial numbers, inscriptions like "APL Portrait" and "APL Personnel" indicate the company's interest in having current images, particularly of captains and executives, on file for publication or other publicity uses. Most of these negatives--and there are frequently multiple shots for any given subject--show signs of retouching, indicating that these images were indeed used in published materials.

I.1.9 8"x10" Black & White Negatives, 1930-1934, 1946-1948 and undated.

Physical Description: 0.42 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately ninety 8"x10" black & white negatives. Images from the early 1930s mostly depict the PRESIDENT HOOVER and a few Dollar 502s and 535s. Some are nitrate negatives, some with damage. Images from the late 1940s mostly depict the PRESIDENT CLEVELAND [II] and a few APL C3s. Most of these images appear to have been made by Palmer photographers; a number of the later ones are credited to Tom Vano. Negatives in this subseries are individually housed in envelopes.

Physical Description: [6.23 linear feet total]

Arrangement
Arranged into six subseries according to subject ("K-S" Ship Exteriors, "K-SL" Ship Interiors/Shipboard Life, Destinations, Personnel) or format (Slides, Larger Transparencies), and then in roughly chronological order, by serial number where possible, otherwise minimally arranged as found.

Scope and Content Note
Approximately 1,000 color transparencies and slides created by Alfred Palmer or his associates. These consist primarily of unmounted color transparencies, mostly 4" x 5", or 5" x 7", plus unmounted and mounted slides (mostly standard 2" x 2" 35mm and some 2" x 3"). Subseries divisions correspond to subject divisions, which include ship exteriors ("K-S"), ship interiors/shipboard life ("K-SL"), destinations and personnel; a fifth subseries has been designated for items in the slide format. Original order of these transparencies has been maintained as found. The first two subseries have been arranged according to Palmer's numbering system, which follows a roughly chronological order; the few unnumbered items appear at the end of each subseries. Condition of these transparencies varies widely; for the most part the images are in fairly good condition.

Physical Description: 1.13 linear feet

Arrangement
Arranged by serial number.

Scope and Content Note
Approximately 290 color transparencies, mostly 4"x5" but also 5"x7" and smaller. Images in this subseries resemble those in subseries 1.2, though more interior shots labeled "K-S" are included in this series. Since Palmer's photographers used the "K-S" prefix to indicate color transparencies, this and the following subseries have been deemed discrete groupings.

Physical Description: 1.10 linear feet

Arrangement
Arranged by serial number.

Scope and Content Note
Approximately 230 color transparencies, mostly 4"x5" but also 5"x7" and smaller. Images in this subseries resemble those in subseries 1.3, though these are distinct images and there does not appear to be any overlap between the two subseries.

I.2.3 Destinations, circa 1954.

Physical Description: 0.13 linear feet

Arrangement
Minimally arranged as found.

Scope and Content Note
Twenty-four color transparencies, mostly 4"x5" and smaller formats, but also some 5"x7". Most are unlabeled, but locations are generally recognizable. Image quality and color preservation vary widely. These images may have been alienated from a "K-" series of transparencies depicting destinations.
I.2.4 Personnel, 1955.

Physical Description: 0.01 linear feet
Arrangement
Minimally arranged as found.
Scope and Content Note
Two 5"x7" color transparencies of Kenneth H. Finnessey, APL's Vice President of Freight Traffic and a member of the company's Board of Directors, who frequently appeared as an official representative of upper management. Although a number of APL executives were subjects of photographic portraits during the mid-1950s, these are the only color transparency versions of such portraits.

I.2.5 Slides, 1948-1954.

Physical Description: 0.4 linear feet
Arrangement
Minimally arranged as found.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately thirty 35mm slides mounted in metal and glass, and approximately twenty 2" slides mounted in glass. Images depict mainly destinations and ship interiors/shipboard life. The slides' subjects as well as their sturdy mountings indicate that these slides saw heavy use in passenger-oriented presentations.

I.2.5.1 “Sales Slide Show”, 1956?

Physical Description: 0.8 linear feet
Arrangement
Minimally arranged as found.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately 134 standard paper-mounted 35mm slides (a few are unmounted) found loose and in a small box labeled “Sales Slide Show” among APL videotapes. These slides appear to have been compiled around 1956 as an image pool for a slide presentation.

I.2.5.2 Slides of Hong Kong, late 1950s?

Physical Description: 2.5 linear feet
Arrangement
Minimally arranged by subject.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately four hundred 2,” paper-mounted color transparencies, captioned but minimally identified, arranged under subject headings. These images were created in and around Hong Kong, evidently by Alfred Palmer or an associate in the late 1950s. A very few images of Manila and Kobe, Japan appear to be misfiled, though format similarities indicate that they may have been created by the same photographer on the same assignment.
I.2.6 Larger Transparencies, mid-late 1950s.

Physical Description: 0.16 linear feet
Arrangement
Minimally arranged by subject.
Scope and Content Note
Twenty-nine 8" x 10" color transparencies depicting ship exteriors and posed interiors. Image quality and color preservation vary widely. There is no documentation of how these larger transparencies were used, but registration marks, photographer's hands or equipment out of focus in the foreground on the periphery of the posed images that would have been cropped, indicate at least some of the processing intended for these images.

Physical Description: [25.84 linear feet total]
Arrangement
Arranged into six subseries; therein minimally arranged as found.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately 800 images, primarily 8" x 10" unmounted prints, plus approximately fifty much larger prints, many mounted on heavy board. The 8" x 10" prints are arranged as found, chronologically or in subject groupings, as kept by APL's Archives Department. Many of the 8" x 10" prints bear Alfred Palmer's original number identifications, which correspond to the serial numbers assigned to the core collection negatives. Some of the mounted oversize prints have been autographed by Alfred Palmer. Eight 11"x14" album pages containing mounted 4"x5" black & white prints of interiors and some exteriors of APL ships from the mid-1950s to mid-1960s (PRESIDENTS CLEVELAND, WILSON, HOOVER, POLK, MONROE, COOLIDGE, HAYES, and generic interiors of Master Mariners) are found in oversize box #425. Many 8" x 10" Palmer prints are found throughout the collection, particularly in the ship and subject files.

Physical Description: 0.16 linear feet
Arrangement
Minimally arranged by ship name as found.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately 140 images, mostly 8" x 10" unmounted black & white prints but also a few smaller prints depicting exterior views of the PRESIDENTS CLEVELAND [II] and WILSON [II], APL's flagships during the 1950s. Most of the prints are inscribed with Palmer's serial numbers, which correspond to the negatives core collection. These files appear to have been created as reference files for images of these two vessels.

I.3.2 Miscellaneous Photographs, 1930s-1980s.

Physical Description: 0.16 linear feet
Arrangement
Minimally arranged by subject as found.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately sixty-six images, mostly 8"x10" unmounted black & white prints but also a few smaller prints (ship photographer candid photographs?) depicting APL passengers, staff, events, "mood" shots, heavy weather, and APL displays & promotions. Many prints are inscribed with Palmer's serial numbers, which correspond to images in the negatives core collection.
I.3.3 Interior Photographs by Vessel Type, 1930-1970.

Physical Description: 0.82 linear feet
Arrangement
Minimally arranged by vessel type as found.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately 600 images, mostly 8"x10" unmounted black & white prints but also a few smaller prints depicting APL vessel interiors, candid and posed shipboard activities, and operations. The "Master Mariner" folder (folder 12) also contains a few color prints and folders 10 and 12 contain some contact sheets. Beginning with folder 9, photographers other than Alfred Palmer are credited, and by folder 12 no Palmer photographs are noted. Some prints in the later folders are mounted on the same type of green board as are the "Destinations" prints (see below). This characteristic, along with the conceptual divisions written on blue sheets of paper in folder 9, indicate that these prints were kept by the APL Archives staff as reference files or image pools similar to the other prints in this series. Folders 4 and 5--smaller prints numbered and mounted on brown paper envelopes--indicate an earlier form of such reference files. Some of the earlier images of the PRESIDENTS COOLIDGE and HOOVER (folders 1-5) may not be Palmer photographs; a print in folder 3 of a much-reproduced swimming pool shot with models is stamped "L. C. Beringer Photographer 177 Post Street San Francisco."

Physical Description: 0.73 linear feet
Arrangement
Minimally arranged by subject as found.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately 600 images, mostly 8"x10" black & white prints, but also a few smaller prints. Some prints are found with corresponding negatives. Many images are inscribed with Palmer's serial numbers which correspond to images in the negatives core collection. As with earlier subseries of prints, conceptual divisions written on blue sheets of paper, indicate this subseries' function as a reference file or an image pool (folders 2 and 3). Folders 9 through 12, cargo photographs arranged by subject, are undoubtedly a later form of reference file; they contain some non-Palmer images.

I.3.5 Destination Photographs, 1950s.

Physical Description: 2.64 linear feet
Arrangement
Minimally arranged by subject as found.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately 450 images, almost entirely 8" x 10" black & white prints mounted on green board, inscribed with Palmer's identification and subject code numbers and arranged roughly by subject. A handful of color prints--evidently special orders for specific uses, probably for display or presentation--are also found. Several loose duplicate prints have been found adjacent to some mounted items. No corresponding negatives have been found for this series. Multiple prints of many images were found, indicating that the subseries was used as an image pool or ready resource for frequently requested destination images.

Physical Description: 21.33 linear feet
Arrangement
Minimally arranged as found.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately sixty-five photographic prints ranging in size from 8 "x14" to 16+"x20". Most of the images are of ship exteriors in recognizable settings--Hong Kong, San Francisco Bay--but there are also a few images of destinations, "shipboard life" shots, and at least one large portrait. A variety of processing and mounting styles have been used for these prints, indicating a variety of uses. A number of these prints have been inscribed by Alfred Palmer, suggesting their use in displays or presentation. Some prints may also have hung in APL corporate offices or public areas.

II. American President Lines Photographs, late 1950s-1980s.
Physical Description: 15.96 linear feet.
Arrangement
Scope and Content Note
This consists mainly of materials not attributed to Alfred T. Palmer.

Physical Description: [1.13 linear feet total]
Arrangement
Arranged in roughly chronological order by subseries.
Scope and Content Note
This series consists of seven subseries: PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT Exteriors, Aerial Shots of International Building, AML Ship Constructions Shots, PRESIDENT WILSON Exteriors, "PRESIDENT CLEVELAND rescues Navy fliers off Guam 3-6-69," Negatives Produced by or for APL-Japan and 1980s Cargo Negatives.

II.1.1 PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT Exteriors, 1962.
Physical Description: 0.16 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged by negative number.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately 115 color negatives, mostly 2-1/4"x2-1/4" but also 4"x5". Some negatives are attached to small pieces of paper noting what appears to be data on exposures or processing.

II.1.2 Aerial Shots of International Building, 1962.
Physical Description: 0.04 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged by negative number.
Scope and Content Note
Twenty-five color negatives plus 1 color contact sheet and notes. Two rolls identified, both evidently shot on January 9, 1962. Aerial photography focuses on International Building (601 California Street, San Francisco), APL's then-new corporate headquarters. Photographer unknown.

Physical Description: 0.04 linear feet.
Arrangement
Two groups arranged numerically by ship name.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately seventy-six numbered 4"x5" black & white negatives, construction progress pictures of AML ships created by Todd Shipyards, Los Angeles Division, San Pedro, California. In two envelopes labeled as follows: "APR--1962. SS JAPAN MAIL. Completion. Midship. Eng. Rm. On Deck. Underway." "JUL--1962. SS PHILIPPINE MAIL. Completion. Midship, On Deck, Hatches, Engine Rm. & Underway." These images were apparently created as part of contract fulfillment.

II.1.4 PRESIDENT WILSON Exteriors, 1966?

Physical Description: 0.06 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged by negative number.
Scope and Content Note
Thirteen color negatives, evidently from two different rolls, depicting the PRESIDENT WILSON in what may be Glacier Bay, Alaska. Similar images in the non-Palmer prints series are dated 1966.

II.1.5 "PRESIDENT CLEVELAND Rescues Navy Fliers Off Guam 3-6-69", 1969.

Physical Description: 0.12 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged by roll & frame number.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately 220 black & white images, 35mm and 120mm negatives, depicting the above-captioned event. These appear to have been shot from the deck of the PRESIDENT CLEVELAND. An accompanying page of notes found with the negatives indicates that a selection was made of 51 images from these negatives for the use of the Seattle office.

II.1.6 Negatives Produced by or for APL-Japan, 1960s.

Physical Description: 0.42 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged by subject.
Scope and Content Note
Several hundred undated black & white 35mm negatives in plastic & paper sleeves. Many of the paper sleeves are inscribed in Japanese and/or English. These images were shot and processed in Japan, and depict operations and events on APL vessels or presented by APL staff in Japan. Some APL vessels depicted include PRESIDENT CLEVELAND [II], PRESIDENT HOOVER [III?], PRESIDENT LINCOLN [II], PRESIDENT MONROE [III], PRESIDENT POLK [III], PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT [I], PRESIDENT TYLER [III], PRESIDENT VAN BUREN [III], PRESIDENT WILSON [II]. There are also a number of images of unidentified events and locations.
II.1.7 1980s Cargo Negatives, 1980s.

Physical Description: 0.29 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged by negative/envelope number, as found.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately 150 4"x5" color negatives depicting APL vessels, container operations, or terminals in the mid-1980s. Negatives are enclosed in glassine sleeves and contained in APL imprinted #10 envelopes that have been stamped "Property of: Office Services - Archives / American President Lines Ltd." Both glassine sleeves and paper envelopes contain data on loan or reproduction of images; some sleeves or envelopes identify the photographers. Empty envelopes have been retained as found because of the inscribed data. This subseries is an example of an image pool from the company's later period.

II.2 Color Transparencies and Slides, 1955-1980s.

Physical Description: 0.75 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged in roughly chronological order by subject.
Scope and Content Note
Several hundred color transparencies (8"x10", 5"x7", 4"x5" and smaller) and 35mm color slides depicting APL vessels and shipboard life. Exteriors appear to have been used in presentations and to illustrate published materials. Interiors (images of accommodations as well as posed depictions of shipboard life) were used in promotional materials. In this time period, after Palmer, the company appears to have favored more stylized imagery in its promotional materials. Photographers credited include many who had worked with Alfred Palmer, such as Tom Vano and Henri van Wandelen. Slides tend more toward generic imagery that could be reused in different settings, indicating their frequent use in presentations to trade and sales groups, as well as in motivational or informational presentations within the company.

Physical Description: 0.79 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged in roughly chronological order by subject.
Scope and Content Note
Several hundred color and black & white prints and contact sheets, mostly 8"x10" but also snapshots and Polaroid images. These images were also used to promote APL's passenger services. Prints were supplied to publications to accompany and illustrate copy in articles and items regarding APL. Repetitive images, such as those seen on contact sheets, were created at specific promotional shoots. Contact prints and sheets were submitted to APL for purchase, selection and final printing. Many later groups of snapshot-type photographs were created by Archives or Office Services staff to document company events or employee gatherings. All photographs were kept by the Office Services/Archives staff, and apparently comprised part of an image pool for corporate publication, display, or promotional uses. Folder 20 contains photographs of people or events which the Archives staff wished to identify; most are Palmer prints and bear evidence of having been circulated among APL old-timers to solicit identifications. Large format prints are in oversize box #425 and in oversize folder D1.4.2.
II. American President Lines Photographs, late 1950s-1980s.

II.3.1 Categorized Exterior and Interior Photographs, 1960s.
Physical Description: 1.98 linear feet.
Arrangement
Minimally arranged by subject, as found.
Scope and Content Note
This subseries consists of approximately two hundred black & white 8"x10" prints and contact sheets mounted on heavy green board. Images depict mostly posed interiors and shipboard activities aboard the PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT [I], PRESIDENT CLEVELAND [II] and PRESIDENT WILSON [II], categorized and labeled by subject, photographer and negative number. Some subject divisions contain extra prints. These photographs were probably used to select images for promotional pieces or generic service shots for publication.

II.3.2 Destinations and Ports, late 1960s-early 1970s.
Physical Description: 0.42 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged alphabetically by destination name.
Scope and Content Note
Approximately 120 images depicting APL destinations and ports. Mostly silver-gelatin and a few color prints, but also some color negatives and transparencies. This series appears to have been created by the APL Archives Department for D'Arcy Advertising. Many of the items in this series were found in production folders or job dockets labeled "D'Arcy Advertising." Images are by Palmer and non-Palmer photographers.

Physical Description: 0.42 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged in roughly chronological order by vessel name.
Scope and Content Note
Construction progress photos from Ingalls shipyard documenting construction of Pacesetter ships PRESIDENT JEFFERSON [III], PRESIDENT MADISON [IV], PRESIDENT PIERCE [III], PRESIDENT JOHNSON [V]. Also a group of images labeled "SS PRESIDENT JEFFERSON interferences" and a spiral-bound album depicting container bracing or lashings aboard an unidentified ship, probably around 1972.

Physical Description: [6.56 linear feet total]
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically by subseries.
Scope and Content Note
This series consists of two subseries: American Mail Line Shipyard Presentation Albums and American Mail Line Slides/Contacts/Prints.
II. American President Lines Photographs, late 1950s-1980s.

Physical Description: 5.90 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically by subject.
Scope and Content Note
Three large albums and three 3-ring binders of 8"x10" mounted black & white and color photographs created by Todd Shipyards San Pedro, National Steel & Shipbuilding and Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, depicting brand-new exteriors and interiors of AML ships JAPAN MAIL, OREGON MAIL, HONG KONG MAIL, ALASKAN MAIL, INDIAN MAIL and KOREAN MAIL just prior to delivery. The first three larger albums also depict keel-laying ceremonies and later phases of construction. These binders, apparently the final groups of contract-mandated "progress" photographs, were presented to AML by the respective shipyards at delivery of these vessels.

II.4.2 American Mail Line Slides/Contacts/Prints, bulk late 1960s-early 1970s.

Physical Description: 0.66 linear feet
Arrangement
Arranged in roughly chronological order.
Scope and Content Note
Several hundred slides, contact sheets and some prints, most depicting AML container operations and facilities. These were created by AML and later transferred to APL's Archives office in 1985 (folder 6 contains transfer documentation.

Physical Description: 0.66 linear feet.
Arrangement
Arranged chronologically.
Scope and Content Note
Photographs, notes, ephemera and other contents of six scrapbooks created and kept by Katherine and Judge Alfred W. Bowen, a retired couple who enjoyed traveling via freighter during the 1970s. Also contains correspondence and other documentation of Mrs. Bowen's 1988 presentation of the scrapbooks to APL's Archives. The scrapbooks offer a subjective look at shipboard life during the final years of APL's passenger service.

IV. American President Lines Motion Picture and Videorecordings, late 1950s-1980s.

Physical Description: 15.96 linear feet.
IV. American President Lines Motion Picture and Videorecordings, late 1950s-1980s.

IV.1 American President Lines Motion Picture, bulk 1951-1969.

Physical Description: 80 reels (approximately 67,495 feet)
Arrangement
Arranged by item accession number.
Scope and Content Note
Seventy-three films, 16mm on reels except as noted on container list. Most titles have multiple copies, indicating their circulation among various APL offices, trade vendors, or other agencies. In addition to Alfred Palmer productions, there are informational films created by government or travel offices, and promotional films created by other companies. Also of note is the group of five episodes of Oh Susannah, the television series starring Gale Storm that used the PRESIDENT CLEVELAND [II] in its opening credit sequence. The presence of motion pictures created by production companies other than Alfred Palmer's indicates that Palmer's 1980 sale lot was assimilated into an existing group of motion pictures at the APL Archives office.

IV.2 American Mail Line Motion Pictures, 1964; 1968.

Physical Description: 5 reels (approximately 2,100 feet)
Arrangement
Minimally arranged as found.
Scope and Content Note
Five 16mm films on reels. Four concern 1968 AML ship launchings, while a fifth is labeled "Pacific Missile Range ... Pt. Mugu, CA." Uses of these films is unknown, though the inscription "Continuous projection" on one reel indicates promotional exhibition. Like the AML photographs and slides, these materials appear to have been transferred to APL Archives at some point following the 1973 consolidation of AML and APL.

Physical Description:
Arrangement
Minimally arranged as found.
Scope and Content Note
Forty-one videotapes, VHS/NTSC format except as noted on container list, plus one 1/4" audio tape. Unarranged. Marked with sequential numbers by APL Archives Department. In two records center cartons numbered 69 (originally APL #HIST-212) and 70 (originally APL #HIST-213).

Physical Description: 1016 items.
Arrangement
These items were transferred to object storage. Minimally arranged as found.
Scope and Content Note
Operations-related items, promotional and commemorative items, and service awards, given to the APL Archives Department by a variety of APL departments as the respective objects became obsolete, by individual employees after they had left the company's service, and by customers or friends of the company in the interest of historical preservation. A set of four 16"x22-1/2" posters dated March 1941 were found in a large scrapbook and feature Japan, China, Hawaii and the Philippines as destinations in the "Orient via Hawaii and the Sunshine Route."

SERIES 4: C1-B Cargo Vessels Marine Architectural Drawings, 1942-1943.

Physical Description: 119 items, none APL ships.

Additional Note
These plans were used by Consolidated Steel Corp. Los Angeles Shipbuilding Division, 1942-43, for the U.S. Maritime Commission. Some later C1-B plans in this series also cite CSC hull nos. 276-279 and 331-360, which are mainly more "CAPE" ships plus a few hospital ships like the HOPE and the MERCY. None are APL ships; almost all were taken over by U.S. Maritime Commission following construction in 1942-43
