The logbook records the exercises Sorensen did to practice navigation calculations. In the first section, each page is headed by "exercise," a number and a heading such as amplitude, mercators sailing, azimuth, chronometer and latitude by meridian. The second part consists of notes on board and timber measurements, clubhauling, boxhauling, finding circumference, and contents of cisterns. The last part, headed by "examples," begins on March 15, 1982 and ends January 1, 1924. This section mentions a vessel and its voyage at the bottom of each page.
