Abstract: The James K. Carr Papers document the life and work of a civil engineer and key public official involved in the development of utilities, water resources and airports in California and the Central Valley during a time of rapid growth and expansion. Mr. Carr served as Under Secretary of the Interior in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations from 1961-1964 and was employed by numerous agencies such as the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, Sacramento Municipal Utility District (SMUD), the San Francisco Public Utilities Commission and the Sacramento City and County Airports Commission. Papers include personal and business correspondence from agencies that Mr. Carr worked for, speeches, scrapbooks with newspaper clippings, reports on various projects relating to work at multiple agencies, family and business photographs, books, yearbooks and ephemera.

Processing Information

Biography / Administrative History
James Kennedy Carr was born in Redding, California on January 15, 1914 to Francis C. and Mary Agnes Kennedy Carr. His father, Judge Francis C. Carr (1875-1944) was a prominent lawyer in the Redding area, who worked on some of the legal issues surrounding the Central Valley Project. His grandfather, Professor Francis Carr (1833-1896) came to California in 1874 to be a principal and teacher at Shasta Grammar School in Shasta, CA. Professor Carr studied law and was admitted to the Bar of the District Court in Shasta in 1880.

James K. Carr was the fourth of seven children and had two older brothers and a sister as well as two younger brothers and a sister. His two younger brothers died during World War II within days of each other in April of 1945. Mr. Carr received his Bachelor of Science Degree in Civil Engineering, in 1934, at the age of 20. Mr. Carr married Katherine Kergan in 1939 and had four daughters: Mary, Ann, Susan and Margaret. James K. Carr died on September 4, 1980. Katherine Kergan Carr died in 1995.

James Kennedy Carr came from a family of devout Irish Catholics, who were very active in local, state and national Democratic politics and contributed much to the Central Valley Project through two generations. James’ father Francis was on the State Water Resources Commission that would perfect plans for the Central Valley Project during his tenure on the commission. James would later serve as an engineer and administrator on key parts of the Central Valley Project during his years of work in the U.S. Department of the Interior, Bureau of Reclamation from 1936-1951. James would also follow in his father’s footsteps by serving as Chairman of the State Water Resources Commission from 1959-1961, while working at the Sacramento Municipal Utility District (SMUD) as an Assistant General Manager from 1953-1961. From 1961-1964, Mr. Carr once again served in the U.S. Department of the Interior as Undersecretary of the Interior in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

The collection is not currently open for research, but contains more than 40 boxes of materials that Mr. Carr donated to his Alma Mater, Santa Clara University. Many of the gaps that exist in the collection at the Center for Sacramento History (CSH) are most likely contained in the collection at Santa Clara. There were several container lists that were found in the collection at the Center for Sacramento History (CSH) that show that Mr. Carr kept scrapbooks, correspondence and speeches from many of the positions that he held. A letter dated April 27, 1970 addressed to head librarian at Santa Clara’s Orradre Library, in the Carr Papers at CSH, shows evidence that Mr. Carr had donated papers that were being held in the libraries’ document section and that Mr. Carr was going through the scrapbooks for his time as Undersecretary of the Interior during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

Physical Description: 11 folders

Subseries Scope and Content Summary

The first scrapbook contains journals with lists of property owned as well as financial balance sheets, expenditures and money due for Professor Carr’s legal practice. In addition, the scrapbooks contain newspaper clippings regarding family members and other items of interest in the community. There are a series of election cards from the November 1894 elections in Shasta County. The second scrapbook contains some similar journals that show financial information from the legal practice of Judge Francis C. Carr’s early career, but may have been kept originally by Professor Francis Carr before his death in 1896.

Subseries Scope and Content Summary

Mr. Carr kept scrapbooks for each position he worked in from references to inventories contained in this collection. However, this is the only scrapbook contained in the collection that the Center for Sacramento History holds. Presumably, other scrapbooks for other positions held by Mr. Carr are in the holdings of Santa Clara University Special Collections. *Correspondence from this position was kept with the scrapbooks as well as newspaper clippings that were mixed in by date. Photos have been separated from the collection and filed separately.
