History

As the San Francisco Bay Area's oldest trade union, Bay Area Typographical Union Local No. 21 can trace its roots back to the Gold Rush when, in 1850, printers in San Francisco first organized the Pacific Typographical Society to protest wage cuts. In 1855, the Union obtained a charter from the National Typographical Union and became Local No. 21. The local survived in various forms and was instrumental in the formation of the short-lived San Francisco Trades Union. It fought a constant battle against deflation and falling wages, but a strike in 1870 against the San Francisco Call and Bulletin crushed the local. No union for printers existed in San Francisco for two years until the local reorganized as the San Francisco Typographical Union and secured a charter from the International Typographical Union (ITU) in 1872. During the 1890s, women printers won the right to become union members and to equal pay in union shops. Local 21 was one of the first unions, locally as well as nationally, to do so.

During the first two decades of the 20th century, the local successfully fought open shop campaigns and attempts at wage cuts, and preserved the eight hour day. In the post-war years, Local 21 faced the challenges all unions endured under the Taft-Hartley Act and offered vigorous resistance against it, as did the entire ITU. The 1950s began an era of expansion in contract bargaining as Local 21 negotiated broader health and life insurance benefits. The sixties and seventies were characterized by major strikes and Local 21's printers walked picket lines repeatedly to protect working conditions, wages, benefits and the very right to have a union. Despite the strikes, the local continued to expand through the seventies and eighties, and merged with other locals such as Local 729 in San Rafael, Local 389 in Vallejo, and Local 577 in Santa Rosa. In 1998, Local 21 merged with The Northern California Newspaper Guild to form the Northern California Media Workers Guild/Typographical Union, Local 39521 of The Newspaper Guild sector of Communications Workers of America. Following several more mergers, the Guild is now called Pacific Media Workers Guild, Local 35921.

Scope and Contents

The Bay Area Typographical Union (BATU) collection contains organizational records and materials donated by the San Francisco Typographical Union Local 21, the bulk consisting of the records of Local 21, Oakland Local 36, Palo Alto Local 521 and San Jose Local 231. The records include organization histories, historical documents and memorabilia, administrative records, files on contracts and negotiations, International Typographical Union material, membership documentation, apprenticeship and journeyman records, financial ledgers and records, samples of printing art and technology, printed materials, commemoratives and medals, photographs, and an addition of records from the office of the president.

The earliest piece in the collection is an 1842 British union card of a San Francisco Typographical Union member who immigrated from Liverpool, England. Many records prior to April 1906 were destroyed in the earthquake and fire of that year, and the San Francisco Typographical Union was relocated shortly thereafter. The BATU office has retained most files from 1980 onward.

The BATU Local 21 minutes span 1906-1996. Minutes prior to 1906 were destroyed in the fires caused by the 1906 Earthquake. Beginning in 1916, the minutes were bound and contained the San Francisco Typographical Union Local 21 Official Bulletin mailed to members. The Bulletin announced the date and time of the next union meeting, gave a monthly account of union financial transactions, listed union officers, delegates to other bodies and local committee members and published a directory of San Francisco union printing shops. Standard minutes included Report on the Committee on Membership, Secretary's Report, Treasurer's Report, a detailed Executive Committee Report, Reports of other committees (Label Committee, Scale Committee, etc.), Reports of delegates to other bodies, and visiting delegates. This format continued until 1948 when the minutes were printed in the Typographical Union Bulletin, a newsletter which also included stories about the local and its members. The minutes are a lively and detailed record of history of Local 21.

The History Series Group contains many single items collected by Morris Goldman, BATU's first Vice President. Most of these items date from the 1880s and include notices for social events, working and traveling cards, articles on the union and on individual members, election notices, lists of officers, and union pamphlets. All material in this series is from SF Local 21.

The largest series, and most recent addition to the collection, President's Records (1962-1998), contains contracts and negotiation records, grievance and discharge reports, arbitration records, merger documents, and miscellany. The bulk of the records were produced or collected by the office of Local 21 President, Charles Tobias (1990-2001).

Of particular interest is the documentation of the San Rafael Independent Journal Strike (1970s), which includes arbitration files, public relations materials, correspondence, newspaper clippings, advertising boycott campaigns, and clippings documenting the tragic murder of San Rafael Independent Journal executive Allan W. Daly.
