Abstract: The Tom Law San Francisco Bay Area Punk and Rock Handbill and Poster Collection features over 1100 posters collected in San Francisco between 1981 and 1986. This street art chronicles the musical and cultural history of the San Francisco Bay Area in the mid-eighties. The majority of fliers are advertisements for local and touring bands, but posters for readings, screenings, plays, art openings, political protests, and even lost pets are also present.

Biography
Thomas James Law was born in 1943 and was in his forties when he collected these posters. Originally from St. Paul, Minnesota, Law moved to San Francisco in about 1981. He lived in the Tenderloin in 1983 and relocated to the Upper Haight a year later. On his regular walks around the city, he began to take notice of the distinct and vibrant posters stapled and taped to virtually every public surface. Curiously, Law never went to any of the events advertised, only recognizing a certain aesthetic value in the fliers themselves. "I liked the images. I liked the names. They suggested something different. They were new concepts: lyrical and wild. I never heard their music or saw them perform. I didn't care to: I just wanted their posters."

Law began carefully removing the frequently worn and weather-beaten fliers and handbills from telephone poles and kiosks. "Usually it was possible to remove them with a knife, a key, a piece of glass." In this manner, Law gathered posters representing many kinds of activity in San Francisco, unbound to one scene or another. "Despite their variety they all have one thing in common: they caught my eye." Law was admittedly more of a classic rock fan. Among his favorites were the Rolling Stones, David Bowie, and Dire Straits. Nevertheless, he became increasingly systematic in gathering fliers by particular bands. "After awhile I looked forward to finding additional posters of certain groups."

Some posters also bear evidence of having been reposted; like other collectors, "my room on Haight Street had been covered from floor to ceiling with these posters." In 1986 he moved to Berlin and ceased all collecting activity, outside of a few he gathered in Minneapolis in 1989. Tom Law passed away in 2002.

All quotes are taken from his text accompanying a small exhibition in Germany in 1999.

Scope
The collection contains over 1100 posters, fliers and handbills, several in multiple copies in varying colors and condition. Often they are stuck together, fragmented, or partially illegible. Most posters conform to the standardized paper sizes of 8.5x11, 8.5x17 or 11x14 inches. Some are professionally typeset and designed, others are hand drawn and cheaply photocopied. Very few of the fliers are credited to an artist or designer, but it can be assumed they were often made by the artists or bands themselves. If there are listings for other events at the same venue, however, it is likely that the club produced the poster. The work of notable illustrators such as Raymond Pettibon, Marc Rude and Shawn Kerri (as well as gay erotic artist Tom of Finland) is used on a handful of fliers. Any credits when present have been transcribed, but many are initials or abbreviations.

The earliest poster in the collection can be dated to 1981, but the majority are from between 1983 and 1986. There are also a small number of fliers from Minneapolis in 1989. Although there are many kinds of posters here, the majority are gig fliers for independent music. These bands for the most part played alternative rock, punk, metal, goth/death rock, garage, psychedelia, experimental, worldbeat, reggae, or a hybrid of different styles. There are fliers from relatively well-known groups early in their careers, including Faith No More, Primus, Camper Van Beethoven, American Music Club, The Ophelias, and Chris Isaak. However, the following list of local bands, more or less in order of frequency, are most represented in the collection:

Some of the more colorful and provocative fliers come from the many punk, hardcore and skate rock shows during this period, with bands such as D.R.I. (Dirty Rotten Imbeciles), The Dicks, M.D.C. (at the time, Millions of Dead Cops), Social Unrest, The Afflicted, Christ On Parade, Condemned To Death, Clown Alley, Crucifix, Morally Bankrupt, Black Athletes, Noize Boyz, The Slugglords, Special Forces, and Verbal Abuse. Fliers for metal bands such as Sacrilege, Mordred, Death, and Possessed, and goth rock groups Altar De Fey, Fade To Black, and Our Lady Of Pain are equally eye-catching. In general, there are fewer fliers from touring bands, perhaps because they were less able to post fliers in advance of shows. Due to more active promoter involvement, many touring fliers are for punk shows featuring bands such as Black Flag, Redd Kross, R.R.L., The Butthole Surfers, The Offenders, and Toxic Reasons (who actually lived in San Francisco during the time). The more established San Francisco punk bands were also frequently on tour throughout this period, and the collection contains unexpectedly few fliers from the Dead Kennedys, Flipper, and M.D.C. Of course, their popularity also meant that fans would have removed their posters before Law had a chance. Some of the more offensive bands and fliers may have been also been taken down quickly.

These clubs were most frequently listed on fliers: Mabuhay Gardens, On Broadway, Stone, Club Vis a Vis (i.e. the VIS), 16th Note, Full Moon Saloon, Club 181, Graffiti, I-Beam, Nightbreak, Oasis, Farm, Club Foot, and Sound of Music. There are four rarely seen fliers for hardcore shows at Valencia Tool & Die. Venues in the East Bay that advertised in San Francisco include Oakland's Ruthie's Inn and the New Method Warehouse in Emeryville.

Other spaces for public art events include the Martin/Weber Gallery, San Francisco Art Institute, Artists Television Access, The Lab, Beef Gallery, Valencia Rose, and Theatre Rhinoceros. These fliers belong to a critical period of development in multimedia and video art, performance and comedy, and should not be overlooked despite the title of the collection.

The collection also contains two small San Francisco music magazines, "Wiring Department" and "O+"O, with coverage of many of the same groups on the fliers.

Collection Contents

Item-level description has been provided in the form of a spreadsheet hosted by Stanford University's Digital Repository. Here one may find controlled data on the names, places, and dates printed on every flier in the collection. The spreadsheet, along with informal photographs of selected fliers, can be viewed or downloaded here: http://purl.stanford.edu/yx763wc107.

Arrangement

Outside of grouping most duplicates, the collection's original order (more or less randomly by size) has been retained.
