Preferred Citation

[identification of item], Jack Owicki photographs of the Black Lives Matter movement at Stanford University (PC0226).

Department of Special Collections and University Archives, Stanford University Libraries, Stanford, Calif.

Scope and Contents

Includes photographs of the Black Lives Matter memorial installation on the Oval by the entrance to Stanford University, created July 10, 2020 by the student-led group Abolish Stanford. These photos were taken on July 12, two days after the installation was created, and on July 22, after flowers had been added to each memorial photograph.

Biographical / Historical

Abolish Stanford is an autonomous formation fighting for police abolition and total liberation at Stanford University and across the peninsula.

Jack Owicki is the founder of Pro Bono Photo, which connects social and environmental justice organizations with photographers and videographers who wish to donate their expertise.
