Overview
Call Number: V0072
Creator: Stanford University
Title: Stanford centennial roundtables [videorecording]
Dates: 1991
Physical Description: 1 Linear feet
Language(s): The materials are in English.
Repository: Department of Special Collections and University Archives
Green Library
557 Escondido Mall
Stanford, CA 94305-6064
Email: specialcollections@stanford.edu
Phone: (650) 725-1022
URL: http://library.stanford.edu/spc
Information about Access
This collection is open for research.
Ownership & Copyright
All requests to reproduce, publish, quote from, or otherwise use collection materials must be submitted in writing to the Head of Special Collections and University Archives, Stanford University Libraries, Stanford, California 94304-6064. Consent is given on behalf of Special Collections as the owner of the physical items and is not intended to include or imply permission from the copyright owner. Such permission must be obtained from the copyright owner, heir(s) or assigns. See: http://library.stanford.edu/depts/spc/pub serv/permissions.html.
Restrictions also apply to digital representations of the original materials. Use of digital files is restricted to research and educational purposes.
Cite As
Stanford Centennial Roundtables (V0072). Department of Special Collections and University Archives, Stanford University Libraries, Stanford, Calif.
Biographical/Historical Sketch
As part of the Finale Weekend of Stanford University's Centennial, a series of roundtables were held, featuring noted leaders in the arts, politics, public service, academia, and business.
Description of the Collection
Access Terms
Aspe Armella, Pedro.
Bok, Derek Curtis.
Boskin, Michael J.
Clinton, Bill, 1946-
Enthoven, Alain C., 1930-
Friedman, Milton, 1912-2006
Hayes, Denis, 1944-
Honig, Bill.
Koppel, Ted, 1940-
Parker, Maynard.
Rice, Condoleezza, 1954-
Sellars, Peter.
Townsend, Robert, 1957-
Valenti, Jack.
Varnedoe, Kirk, 1946-2003
Wirth, Timothy E.
Stanford University--Centennial
Videorecordings.

Box 1  Video
Forging New Alliances: Competition, Cooperation, and Survival 1991

Scope and Content Note
Participants: Thomas J. Peters, Pedro Aspe Armella, Michael J. Boskin, David Brady, Milton Friedman, Carla Anderson Hills, Robert D. Hormats, William F. Miller, and Kenichi Ohmae.

Facilitator
Thomas J. Peters

Thomas J. Peters is Founder of The Tom Peters Group, four training and communication companies located in Palo Alto, California, and the not-for-profit Palo Alto Center for Management Studies. He is also co-author of In Search of Excellence, which was on The New York Times non-fiction list for 130 weeks from 1982-86; it topped the list for a year. Peters speaks to numerous public- and private-sector organizations each year. He also writes a weekly syndicated newspaper column for Tribune Media Services, and has authored more than 100 magazine and journal articles. He appears on two business-news television programs, "Nightly Business Report" and "The Wall Street Journal Report," and has hosted eight PBS television shows. Peters was at McKinsey & Company from 1974-81, becoming a partner in 1977. He served in the White House as a drug abuse advisor from 1973-74, and was on active duty in the Navy in Vietnam and Washington from 1966-70. He has engineering degrees from Cornell (BCE, MCE) and business degrees from Stanford (MBA, PhD). His other best-selling books include Passion for Excellence, and Thriving on Chaos. Peters is now at work on a book about the end of hierarchy and the futility of most corporate renewal efforts.

Rountable Participants
Pedro Aspe Armella

Pedro Aspe Armella is Mexico’s Secretary of Finance and Public Credit. Hereceived his BA in economics in 1974 at the Instituto Tecnologico Autonomo de Mexico. In 1978, he received his PhD in economics from the Massachusetts Institute for Technology, where he was also an instructor of macroeconomics. After completing his degree, he became Director and Professor of the Department of Economics at the Instituto Tecnologico Autonomo de Mexico and began, simultaneously, his distinguished career as a financial advisor in the public sector. He has held a variety of posts within the Ministry of Planning and Budgeting, including service as Undersecretary and then Minister of Planning and Budget. Aspe assumed his present position as Minister of Finance in 1988. As the author of numerous economic studies in a variety of distinguished journals, Aspe brings his scholarly background to bear on the current economic realities of Mexico.

Michael J. Boskin

As chairman of the President’s Council of Economic Advisors, Michael Boskin provides economic analysis and advice directly to the President and assists in formulating national economic policies. He is the President’s chief economic advisor, and participates in policy formulation and consultation on a wide range of domestic and foreign issues, including fiscal policy, trade policy, regulatory policy and interaction with the Federal Reserve. Boskin is on leave from Stanford University, where he is the Burnet C. and Mildred Finley Wohlford Professor of Economics, and the 1988 recipient of the Distinguished Teaching Award. He is also a Research Associate of the National Bureau of Economic Research. Prior to his appointment to the Council, Boskin served as a consultant and advisor to the White House and numerous other federal agencies, including the Department of Health and Human Services, the Treasury Department, and the Department of Labor, as well as members of Congress, the House Ways and Means Committee and the Joint Economic Committee. Boskin received his BA with highest honors in 1967 from the University of California-Berkeley, where he also received his MA in 1968 and his PhD in 1971.

David Brady

David Brady is the Bowen H. and Janice Arthur McCoy Professor of Political Science, Business and Environment, and Ethics at Stanford University, where he holds appointments in the Graduate School of Business and the Department of Political Science in the School of Humanities and Sciences. He received his PhD in 1970 from the University of Iowa and, before coming to Stanford, was Herbert Autry Professor of Social Science at Rice University. His most recent book is Critical Elections and Congressional Policy Making, which won the Richard Fenno Prize and was runner up for the Woodrow Wilson Prize in 1989. His major areas of interest are elections, institutions, and public policy in democracies. In 1974, Brady was on the staff of the administration commission for the U.S. House of Representatives. In addition, he has testified before numerous congressional committees.
Timothy E. Wirth

Walter Falcon is Director of the Institute for International Studies and Helen Farnsworth Professor of International Agricultural Policy at Stanford. He has also directed the Food Research Institute since 1972. He previously served as Deputy Director of the California Development Advisory Service. Falcon’s recent research includes co-authored volumes on rice and cassava in Java, and on food policy in developing countries. His other research and writing has dealt with agricultural planning, the training of foreign graduate students, American agricultural policy, hunger, and foreign aid. Falcon is a Trustee of Winrock International and Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the International Rice Research Institute. He is a consultant for the World Bank and the government of Indonesia. In 1989 he was awarded a Distinguished Achievement ( Citation by Iowa State University, and in 1990 he was selected a Fellow of the American Agricultural Economics Association. In 1985, he became Senior Associate Dean of Humanities and Sciences, with particular responsibilities for international studies and the social sciences. Falcon teaches in the fields of international agricultural policy and serves as Editor for Food Research Institute Studies.

Denis Hayes

Denis Hayes is President and CEO of Green Seal, a nonprofit organization that seeks to mobilize American consumers on behalf of environmental values. He also co-chairs the Valdez Principles for corporate environmental responsibility, and serves on the governing board of the Federation of American Scientists. In 1989 and 1990, Hayes was the International Chairman of Earth Day 1990, an unprecedented international campaign that enlisted 200 million active participants in 141 nations. In 1970, he was the Executive Director of the first Earth Day, which involved 20 million Americans and is often credited with launching the modern environmental movement.

Physical Description: 1 videotape(s) (VHS)

Scope and Content Note

Biography/Organization History
Facilitator
Maynard Parker

As Editor of Newsweek, Maynard Parker is in charge of a magazine with a worldwide circulation of more than 4 million and a readership of more than 21 million. Parker was named Editor of Newsweek in November 1982. He assumed total responsibility for editorial operations of the magazine in March 1991, after nine years as Chief Deputy to the Editor-in-chief. From his New York vantage point, Parker personally directed the magazine's steam covering the Gulf War and the more recent Soviet coup. Joining Newsweek as a Hong Kong correspondent in 1967, Parker has held a series of progressively more responsible editorial positions. Parker has directed Newsweek's coverage of many of the major stories of the past two decades. Distinguishing himself as a foreign correspondent, Parker has crossed the Asiatic Ocean and chronicled stories of global significance, and served as the magazine's bureau chief in Saigon for the war years. Parker graduated from Stanford University, where he was editor of the Stanford Daily, in 1962, and from Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism a year later. He began his career as a reporter for Life magazine and served two years as a U.S. Army officer in northeast Thailand. In addition to Newsweek, he has contributed to Foreign Affairs, Foreign Policy, and the Atlantic.

Roundtable Participants
Winston Lord

The Honorable Winston Lord served as U.S. Ambassador to China from 1985 to 1989. Between 1977 and 1985, he was President of the Council on Foreign Relations, also serving as Senior Counselor of the President's National Bipartisan Commission on Central America in 1983 and 1984. He was Director of the State Department Policy Planning staff from 1973 to 1977. Prior to that, he served as Special Assistant to the National Security Advisor at the NSC and in the Defense and State Departments. Lord received his BA magna cum laude from Yale University, and his MA from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy. He has received the Outstanding Performance Award, Department of Defense; Distinguished Honor Award, Department of State; the National Committee on U.S.-China Relations Award, and four honorary doctorates. He is currently Vice Chairman of the Board of Directors for the International Rescue Committee, and a member of the boards of the National Endowment for Democracy and the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy.

Richard W. Lyman

Richard W. Lyman is President Emeritus, J. E. Wallace Sterling Professor Emeritus in the Humanities, and former Director of the Institute for International Studies, Stanford University. He became a member of the Stanford faculty in 1958 and held positions as Professor of History, Associate Dean of the School of Humanities and Sciences, and Vice President and Provost before serving as Stanford's President from 1970 to 1980. From 1980 to 1988 he was President of the Rockefeller Foundation. Lyman holds a BA in history from Swarthmore College, and an MA and PhD in history from Harvard University. From 1951 to 1952, he studied at the London School of Economics as a Fulbright Fellow. Lyman has served as a Director of the Council on Foundations, chairing the board of Independent Sector, and he is a past Chairman of the Association of American Universities. He currently serves as a Director of the National Committee on United States-China Relations, the International Business Machines Corporation, and the Chase Manhattan Corporation. He is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the Royal Historical Society, an Honorary Fellow of the London School of Economics, an officer of the (French) Legion of Honor, and a member of the American Historical Association and the Council of Foreign Relations.

Guide to Stanford Centennial Roundtables [videorecording]
Condoleezza Rice

Condoleezza Rice, former Special Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs and Senior Director of Soviet Affairs for the National Security Council, returned to Stanford University in March. Ricersumed her post as Associate Professor of Political Science at Stanford after serving as the White House Soviet Specialist for the Bush administration through the period of the war in the Persian Gulf. Rice has been deeply involved in the formulation of U.S. policy toward the emerging political situation in the former Soviet Union.
Moving the 21st Century Into the Classroom, 1991

Physical Description: 1 videotape(s) (VHS)

Scope and Content Note

Participants: Derek Bok, Bill Clinton, James F. Gibbons, Sam L. Ginn, Bill Honig, Alan C. Kay, LaVoneia C. Steele, Marshall S. Smith, Lester C. Thurow, and Yori Wada.

Biography/Organization History

Facilitator

Derek Bok

Derek Bok is a Fellow at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Stanford University and President Emeritus of Harvard University. He was president of Harvard University from 1971 to June 30, 1991, and now holds the title of the Three-Hundredth-Anniversary University Professor at Harvard. He rejoined the law faculty in 1958, became Professor of Law in 1961, and Dean of Harvard Law School in 1968. Bok's original field was labor law, and he has long-standing interests in the teaching of ethics and improving the quality of teaching. Another abiding concern of his is the role of public service. He is the author of books and articles on these subjects. Among his published works are the following: Universities and the Future of America (1990), Higher Learning (1986), Beyond the Ivory Tower: Social Responsibilities of the Modern University (1982), Labor and the American Community (with John T. Dunlop) (1970), and Cases and Materials on Labor Law (edited with Archibald Cox), 9th edition (1981). Bok earned a BA from Stanford, a JD from Harvard Law School, and an MA in economics from George Washington University. He was a Fulbright Scholar at the Institute of Political Science, University of Paris.

Roundtable Participants

Bill Clinton

Bill Clinton is the 42nd Governor of Arkansas. In a June 1991 Newsweek survey, his fellow governors ranked Clinton the most effective governor in the country. Improvements in Arkansas public education programs under his five terms have been nationally recognized. They include increases in test scores, high school graduation and college enrollment rates, and reductions in racial gaps in student achievement. Clinton served as Co-chair of the President's Education Summit with Governors and played a major role in drafting the National Education Goals. In 1991, he and the Arkansas Legislature enacted one of the most sweeping legislative programs in the state's history, including major education, health, and environmental packages; a highway program; tougher child support and domestic abuse laws; and tax cuts for low- and middle-income Arkansans. He also represented the nation's governors in working with Congress and the White House to restructure the nation's welfare laws in 1987 and 1988. Clinton is former Chairman of the Democratic Leadership Council, and past Chairman of the National Governors' Association and the Education Commission of the States. Clinton received his bachelor's degree from Georgetown University and his law degree from Yale University. He was also a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford University.

James F. Gibbons

James Gibbons is the Frederick Emmons Terman Dean of the School of Engineering and the Reid Weaver Dennis Professor of Electrical Engineering at Stanford University. His principal research interests are in the fields of semiconductor device analysis, process physics and technology, and solar energy. In 1972, he invented the Tutored Video Instruction technique, which he and his colleagues at Stanford and Hewlett-Packard have since developed into a highly regarded model for in-plant education of engineers. He is presently concerned with the use of this technique for improving educational productivity and quality at all levels, including particularly basic education for juvenile offenders and the children of migrant farm workers, and in-service teacher training for science and mathematics teachers at the elementary (K-6) school level. He has directed thesis research for 50 PhD students and 6 engineer's degree candidates. Gibbons has been author or co-author of four textbooks in semiconductor electronics, four research monographs in the fields of implantation and beam processing of semiconductors, and has published 257 papers. Gibbons received his BS from Northwestern University in 1953, his MS and PhD from Stanford in 1956. He is an elected member of the National Academy of Sciences, the National Academy of Engineering, and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He has won a number of major prizes for his research and teaching.

Sam L. Ginn

Sam Ginn is Chairman and CEO of Pacific Telesis Group. He oversees the operations, planning, and development of the entire Telesis organization (Pacific Bell, Pacific Bell Directory, Nevada Bell, and the PacTel Companies') diversified businesses. He is also

Guide to Stanford Centennial Roundtables [videorecording]
Box 1

Physical Description: 1 videotape(s) (VHS)

Scope and Content Note

Biography/Organization History

Facilitator

Fred W. Friendly

Fred W. Friendly is the Edward R. Murrow Professor Emeritus of Broadcast Journalism at the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism, and Director of the Columbia University Seminars on Media and Society. In 1974, in response to growing conflict in oursociety, Friendly initiated a series of conferences on the media, the law, and public policy. At the time, he was at the Ford Foundation, where he was an advisor on telecommunications for 13 years. Often co-sponsored by major news organizations, foundations, and corporations, these innovative seminars engage journalists, judges, lawyers, business executives, and government officials in stimulating dialogues. Friendly considers it his job to make the agony of decision-making so intense that one can escape only by thinking. Over 500 conferences have been conducted to date on such subjects as business and the media; investigative reporting; terrorism; libel; and medical, military, legal, and personal ethics. Friendly’s long academic career spans 25 years on college campuses such as Yale, Columbia, Bryn Mawr, and the University of Utah. His broadcasting career began on radio with a biographical series called “Footprints in the Sands of Time.” He went on to produce “See It Now” with Edward R. Murrow, and was President of CBS News from 1964 to 1966. He has also published five books, as well as numerous magazine and newspaper articles.

Roundtable Participants

Andrew I. Batavia

Andrew I. Batavia is currently an Associate Director of the White House Domestic Policy Council and an Adjunct Assistant Professor at Georgetown University School of Medicine. Hereceived a bachelor’s degree in economics and sociology from the University of California, a master’s degree in health services research from Stanford Medical School, and a juris doctorate from Harvard Law School. Batavia served for two years as an attorney for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. He left that position when he was awarded the Mary E. Switzer Distinguished Research Fellowship in Medical Rehabilitation Finance from the National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research (NIDRR) of the U.S. Department of Education. He served for four years as Associate Director for Health Services Research at the National Rehabilitation Hospital Research Center in Washington, D.C. He has authored two books and over 20 other publications on issues of disability and health care policy. In 1988, he was awarded the Distinguished Disabled American Award from the President’s Commission on Employment of People with Disabilities. In 1990, he was appointed a White House Fellow by President Bush, and served as special assistant to Attorney General Thoburngh at the U.S. Department of Justice.

Paul Berg

Paul Berg is the Willson Professor of Biochemistry at the Stanford University School of Medicine, and Director of the Beckman Center for Molecular and Genetic Medicine. Berg, one of the principal pioneers in “gene splicing,” and his colleagues, Drs. Walter Gilbert and Frederick Sanger, were honored with the 1980 Nobel Prize in Chemistry for developing methods that make it possible to map the structure and function of DNA. Work on the genetic apparatus that directs the synthesis of proteins earned Berg the Eli Lilly Award in Biochemistry in 1959, and the California Scientist of the Year Award in 1963. He has twice been honored with the Henry J. Kaiser Award for Excellence in Teaching at the Stanford University School of Medicine. Berg received his BS in 1948 from Penn State, and his PhD in 1952 from Western Reserve University. He joined the faculty of the Stanford University School of Medicine in 1959, and was Chairman of the Department of Biochemistry from 1969 to 1974.

Pierre DuMaine

Pierre DuMaine, first Bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of San Jose (coterminal with Santa Clara County) since 1981, is former Chair of the U.S. Bishops’ Committee on Science and Human Values and currently chairs its Commission of Bishops and Scholars. Hereceived his PhD in education from the Catholic University of America and was Superintendent of Catholic Schools for the Archdiocese of San Francisco. Since 1968,

Physical Description: 1 videotape(s) (VHS)

Scope and Content Note

Participants: Ted Koppel, Carol Burnett, Wanda M. Corn, Michael Kimmelman, Amalia Mesa-Bains, Peter Sellars, Robert Townsend, Kirk Varnedoe, and Stephen E. Weil.

Biography/Organization History

Facilitator

Ted Koppel

Ted Koppel, anchor of ABC News "Nightline," is the principal on-air reporter and interviewer for television's first latenight network news program. Cited by the Wall Street Journal as "the premier TV interviewer in America," Koppel has been with ABC News for 28 years. He has won numerous awards and honors including three George Foster Peabody Awards, eight duPont-Columbia Awards, one Overseas Press Club Award, 18 Emmys, two George Polk Awards, two Ohio State Awards, and two Sigma Delta Chi Awards—the highest honor bestowed for public service by the Society of Professional Journalists. Koppel was honored with the first Gold Baton in the history of the duPont-Columbia Awards for "Nightline"'s March 1985 week-long series originating from South Africa, and was the first recipient of the Sol Taishoff Award. From 1971 to 1980 he was ABC News's Chief Diplomatic Correspondent, and for a two-year period beginning in 1975, he anchored "The ABC Saturday Night News." While on the State Department beat, Koppel co-wrote the best-seller, "In the National Interest," with colleague Marvin Kalb, formerly of CBS News. On the political beat, he had a major reporting role in every presidential nominating convention since 1964. Koppel holds a BA in liberal studies from Syracuse University and an MA in mass communications research and political science from Stanford.

Roundtable Participants

Carol Burnett

Carol Burnett, winner of five Emmy Awards and eight Golden Globe Awards, is noted for her combination of musical, comedic and dramatic talents. In the course of her career, Burnett has performed in seven stage productions, nine feature films, and 28 television programs. She earned appearances on "The Jack Paar Show," "The Ed Sullivan Show," and "The Garry Moore Show," her first lead in an off-Broadway musical, "Once Upon a Mattress," moved to Broadway and earned her a Tony Award nomination for Best Actress. Burnett performed the first off-television specials with Julie Andrews, entitled "Julie and Carol at Carnegie Hall." Other television specials included "Carol + 2" with Lucille Ball and Zero Mostel, and "Carol and Company" with Rock Hudson. In 1967, Burnett began "The Carol Burnett Show," the longest-running musical comedy variety show in television history. In addition, Burnett headlined in Las Vegas with Jim Nabors and made her stage debut in Neil Simon's comedy "Plaza Suite." She appeared in television movies such as "The Grass Is Always Greener Over the Septic Tank" and "Friendly Fire," for which she received an Emmy nomination for a dramatic role. She has been honored with UCLA's gold medal for achievements and contributions to the university, the LA Times Woman of the Year Award, the Variety Club's and March of Dimes' Humanitarian Awards, the San Sebastian Film Award as Best Actress, induction into the Television Hall of Fame, and multiple wins of the People's Choice Award in several categories.

Wanda M. Corn

Professor of Art at Stanford since 1980, Wanda Corn has been Chair of the Art Department and Acting Director of the Stanford Museum of Art for the past two years. She has just stepped down from both of those positions to take a year's sabbatical leave and complete a book on American modern art in the early years of this century. When she returns to campus in the fall of 1992, she will assume the Anthony P. Meier Family Professor and Directorship of the Stanford Humanities Center. Author of Grant Wood: The Regionalist Vision, Corn is well-known for organizing the Grant Wood Exhibition that traveled nationally from 1983 to 1984. At Stanford, she has taught courses entitled "American Art and Culture in the Gilded Age," "Paris and New York: Transatlantic Exchange in Early Modernism," and "American Art After World War II." She has been a visiting curator and consultant for several museums and currently serves on the National Museum of American Art Commission for the Smithsonian.

Michael Kimmelman

Michael Kimmelman joined the New York Times as an Art Critic in 1988 and became Chief Art Critic of the Times in 1990. Kimmelman graduated summa cum laude in 1980 from Yale University, where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. He received a master's degree in art history from Harvard University in 1982, and until 1984 remained at Harvard as an instructor in art history. At the New York Times, Kimmelman has been a regular contributor to the Times' international edition and has written for the New York Review of Books, The New Republic, the Wall Street Journal, Rolling Stone, and other publications. Kimmelman was a consultant for the recent exhibition "The Eye of the Beholder," which traveled from Mexico City to the Whitney Museum of American Art and the Museum of Modern Art, New York. Kimmelman has lectured on art history in the United States, Canada, Mexico, and Europe, and has contributed a number of articles to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, The Times Literary Supplement, and the New York Times. Kimmelman has been the recipient of several awards, including the National Endowment for the Arts grant for museums and art institutions, the New York Times' art criticism award, and the Rome Prize for art writing from the American Academy in Rome. Kimmelman is currently working on a book on the history of American art.
Collection Contents
Belva Davis joined KRON-TV in March 1981. As Newscenter-4’s San Francisco Urban Affairs Specialist, she covers topics ranging from political issues and fiscal concerns to city planning visions. She also co-hosts “California This Week,” KRON’s Sunday morning news and public information program. Davis has covered many of the major stories of the past two decades in a personal way that provides insight into the people who make news. While with KPDC-TV, she hosted and was instrumental in creating “All Together Now,” one of the first prime-time public affairs programs about ethnic communities in the country. Davis has won several dozen awards for her journalism, including national recognition from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, Ohio State, San Francisco State, and the National Education Writers Association. She has also won five local Emmys. Davis is a nationally respected labor activist, a Vice President of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, and is extremely active in the community.

Clayborne Carson

Clayborne Carson, professor of history at Stanford and senior editor of the papers of Martin Luther King Jr., attended UCLA as a student and received his doctorate there in 1975. During his undergraduate years, Carson was active in the African-American Freedom Struggle, and his scholarly publications have focused on the protest movements and political thought of the period after WWII. His writings have appeared in historical journals, encyclopedias, and popular periodicals. His first book, In Struggle: SNCC and the Black Awakening of the 1960s (1981), won the Frederick Jackson Turner Award of the Organization of American Historians. More recently he published Malcolm X: The FBI File. Carson served as an advisor for a fourteen-part, award-winning, public television series on the civil rights movement entitled “Eyes on the Prize.” Carson has lectured at many colleges and universities on a wide range of topics including King, Malcolm X, the Black Panther Party, Black-Jewish relations, and the need for multicultural curricula. In addition to teaching at Stanford since 1974, Carson has been a member of the faculties at UCLA, University of California-Berkeley, and American University. In 1985, Coretta Scott King invited Carson to direct along-term project to edit and publish the papers of Martin Luther King Jr. The Martin Luther King Jr. Papers Project, sponsored by the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Nonviolent Change in Atlanta and conducted in association with Stanford, Emory University, and the University of California Press, will publish the first two volumes of a fourteen-volume comprehensive edition of King’s writings and speeches in 1992.

William P. Madar

William Madar is President and CEO of Nordson Corporation. Nordson’s business is the manufacture and worldwide marketing of industrial equipment, along with the software and application technologies that enhance its use. He spent 20 years with the Standard Oil Company (now BP America) before taking his current position at Nordson in 1986. Madar is a 1961 graduate of Purdue with a degree in chemical engineering. He received an MBA from Stanford University in 1965. He is currently on the Advisory Council of the Graduate School of Business of Stanford University and is Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Greater Cleveland Growth Association, the Greater Cleveland Roundtable, the Cleveland Initiative for Education, the Cleveland Clinic Foundation, the Playhouse Square Foundation, and Hawken School. Madar is also Director of National City Bank, Brush Wellman, Inc., and the Van Dom Company. Madar is also past Chairman and long time trustee of the Cleveland Education Fund and first Chairman/founder of the Cleveland Collaborative for Mathematics Education, an entity within the Education Fund. In 1990, Madar was named International Business Executive of the Year by the Cleveland Fed.}

Guide to Stanford Centennial Roundtables [videorecording]

Box 1

Physical Description: 1 videotape(s) (VHS)

Scope and Content Note

Biography/Organization History

Facilitator

Belva Davis

Belva Davis

Belva Davis joined KRON-TV in March 1981. As Newscenter-4’s San Francisco Urban Affairs Specialist, she covers topics ranging from political issues and fiscal concerns to city planning visions. She also co-hosts “California This Week,” KRON’s Sunday morning news and public information program. Davis has covered many of the major stories of the past two decades in a personal way that provides insight into the people who make news. While with KPDC-TV, she hosted and was instrumental in creating “All Together Now,” one of the first prime-time public affairs programs about ethnic communities in the country. Davis has won several dozen awards for her journalism, including national recognition from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, Ohio State, San Francisco State, and the National Education Writers Association. She has also won five local Emmys. Davis is a nationally respected labor activist, a Vice President of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, and is extremely active in the community.

Roundtable Participants

Clayborne Carson

Clayborne Carson, professor of history at Stanford and senior editor of the papers of Martin Luther King Jr., attended UCLA as a student and received his doctorate there in 1975. During his undergraduate years, Carson was active in the African-American Freedom Struggle, and his scholarly publications have focused on the protest movements and political thought of the period after WWII. His writings have appeared in historical journals, encyclopedias, and popular periodicals. His first book, In Struggle: SNCC and the Black Awakening of the 1960s (1981), won the Frederick Jackson Turner Award of the Organization of American Historians. More recently he published Malcolm X: The FBI File. Carson served as an advisor for a fourteen-part, award-winning, public television series on the civil rights movement entitled “Eyes on the Prize.” Carson has lectured at many colleges and universities on a wide range of topics including King, Malcolm X, the Black Panther Party, Black-Jewish relations, and the need for multicultural curricula. In addition to teaching at Stanford since 1974, Carson has been a member of the faculties at UCLA, University of California-Berkeley, and American University. In 1985, Coretta Scott King invited Carson to direct a long-term project to edit and publish the papers of Martin Luther King Jr. The Martin Luther King Jr. Papers Project, sponsored by the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Nonviolent Change in Atlanta and conducted in association with Stanford, Emory University, and the University of California Press, will publish the first two volumes of a fourteen-volume comprehensive edition of King’s writings and speeches in 1992.

William P. Madar

William Madar is President and CEO of Nordson Corporation. Nordson’s business is the manufacture and worldwide marketing of industrial equipment, along with the software and application technologies that enhance its use. He spent 20 years with the Standard Oil Company (now BP America) before taking his current position at Nordson in 1986. Madar is a 1961 graduate of Purdue with a degree in chemical engineering. He received an MBA from Stanford University in 1965. He is currently on the Advisory Council of the Graduate School of Business of Stanford University and is Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Greater Cleveland Growth Association, the Greater Cleveland Roundtable, the Cleveland Initiative for Education, the Cleveland Clinic Foundation, the Playhouse Square Foundation, and Hawken School. Madar is also Director of National City Bank, Brush Wellman, Inc., and the Van Dom Company. Madar is also past Chairman and long time trustee of the Cleveland Education Fund and first Chairman/founder of the Cleveland Collaborative for Mathematics Education, an entity within the Education Fund. In 1990, Madar was named International Business Executive of the Year by the Cleveland Fed.

Vilma S. Martinez

Vilma S. Martinez focuses her expertise and energy on issues such as wrongful termination and employment discrimination as Litigation Partner for the Los Angeles law firm of Munger, Tolles & Olson. Martinez has built her career defending the rights of minorities, as a Staff Attorney for the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, as Equal Employment Opportunity Counsel for the New York State Division of Human Rights, and as President and General
Box 1

Values: How Are They Imparted to the Next Generation? 1991

Physical Description: 1 videotape(s) (VHS)

Scope and Content Note

Participants: Charles Ogletree, Calvin Butts, Peggy Charren, Sanford M. Dornbusch, Candy Lightner, Richard "Pete" Mesa, Edwin Schlossberg, and Jack Valenti.

Biography/Organization History

Facilitator

Charles Ogletree

A Harvard Law School Professor and prominent legal theorist, Charles Ogletree has made his reputation by taking a hard look at complex constitutional issues of law and ethics. He is known for his work to secure the rights guaranteed for everyone equally by the Constitution. Ogletree was a public defender in Washington, D.C., for seven years, and he has moderated several forums and panels on legal issues including Fred Friendly's "Ethics in America" series and "Hard Drugs, Hard Choices," which both aired on PBS. He is the founder and Director of the Criminal Justice Institute at Harvard Law School and Director of Harvard's Trial Advocacy Workshop.

Rountable Participants

Calvin Butts

As the Pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist Church in New York, Butts is well-known for the impact this church has had on community development issues such as homelessness, senior citizen and youth empowerment, ecumenical outreach, and cultural awareness. Under his direction, a 26-unit apartment building for the homeless was acquired; a 100-unit apartment building for seniors was constructed; and programs such as "Health Watch," an AIDS prevention program for youths, and "Education 2000," a course to enhance math and science skills for children, were initiated. Butts serves on the boards of a number of nonprofit organizations and foundations. He is active in the life of African American people in New York City and has received numerous awards for his efforts. He currently delivers a weekly sermon on the radio each Sunday morning and continues to be invited to preach to distinguished pulpits nationally and internationally.

Peggy Charren

Peggy Charren is founder and President of Action for Children's Television (ACT), a national child advocacy organization founded in 1968. Located in Massachusetts, this 10,000-member nonprofit organization works to encourage program diversity and eliminate commercial abuses in children's television. Charren is also a Visiting Scholar in Education at Harvard University's Graduate School of Education. Prior to founding ACT, she was Director of the Creative Arts Council of Newton, Massachusetts, where she worked with theater and dance groups, musicians, and artists to develop programs for classroom enrichment. Charren has owned and operated two businesses: Quality Book Fairs, a company that organized children's book fairs; and Art Prints, a gallery specializing in graphics. Prior to moving to New England, she served as the Director of the Film Department at WPDC-TV in New York City.

Sanford M. Dornbusch

A Professor at Stanford University since 1959, Sanford Dornbusch is currently Reed-Hodgson Professor of Human Biology as well as Professor of Sociology and Education. In addition, he serves as Director of the Stanford Center for the Study of Families, Children, and Youth. He is the first sociologist to be Chairman of three different sections of the American Sociological Association, and has just been elected President of the Society for Research on Adolescence, the first non-psychologist to receive that honor. A recipient of the Walter J. Gores Award for Excellence in Teaching at Stanford, he has been elected to the Faculty Senate and the Advisory Board. Professor Dornbusch is the author of numerous articles and the author or editor of books. His most recent volume is Feminism, Children, and the New Families, which was published in 1988.

Candy Lightner

In 1980, four days after her 13-year-old daughter, Cari, was killed by a drunk driver, Candy Lightner formed Mother Against Drunk Driving (MADD). Created as a grassroots organization, MADD has become a national and international corporation. Lightner and MADD have been credited with promoting a nationwide change in attitude towards drunk driving as well as enacting stiff new legislation against offenders. During Lightner's tenure with MADD (1980-1985), over 500 laws were passed at the state and federal levels dealing specifically with drunk driving. Lightner is also co-author of Giving Sorrow Words: How to Cope with Grief and Find Your Life (1990). The recipient of numerous awards including the Volunteer Action Award from the President of the United States, Lightner has achieved international prominence as the organization's foremost spokesperson.

Guide to Stanford Centennial Roundtables [videorecording]