Abstract:
The Pioneering Punjabi Digital Archive is the most extensive collection of archival material documenting the first significant South Asian community in the United States. The collection includes over 1,300 photographs, rare archival films, letters, newspaper articles, songs, and audio interviews of South Asians who arrived in California from the Punjab region of north India beginning in the 1890s.

Scope and Contents
The Pioneering Punjabi Digital Archive is the most extensive collection of archival material documenting the first significant South Asian community in the United States. The collection includes over 1,300 photographs, rare archival films, letters, newspaper articles, songs, and audio interviews of South Asians who arrived in California from the Punjab region of north India beginning in the 1890s. The materials in this repository will be enhanced by visiting pioneeringpunjabis.ucdavis.edu, a more heavily curated subset of these materials that includes contextual scholarship and classroom tools.

Arrangement
In this finding aid, the materials are arranged by contributor and items are listed chronologically within each group.

Related Materials

D-621, Ted (Tejinder Singh) Sibia Collection on Sikhs in California, 1970-2000. Ted Sibia (1937-2008) was a Biological and Agricultural Sciences Librarian at UC Davis. The collection includes his research files on Sikhs in California as well as a small amount of correspondence and documentation of travel expenses. Finding aid: https://oac.cdlib.org/findaid/ark:/13030/c8cf9w85/
SikhPioneers.org. Created and originally curated by Ted Sibia, this site is now managed by the Punjabi American Heritage Society (PAHS).

Access
Collection is open for research.

Processing Information
Liz Phillips developed this finding aid from data supplied by Dr. Nicole Ranganath.

Immediate Source of Acquisition
The collection is curated by Dr. Nicole Ranganath, a historian, filmmaker, and faculty member in the UC Davis Middle East/South Asia Studies Program. The materials were contributed by Yuba City's Punjabi American Heritage Society, Mrs. Manjeet Sibia, and numerous Punjabi American families and individuals. Mrs. Sibia's contributions reflect the work by her late husband who was a UC Davis librarian, Tejinder (Ted) Sibia.

George W. Pierce Jr.’s Diary undated
Scope and Contents
Selection of diary entries related to Punjabi workers between 1907-1918. George Pierce Jr relied heavily on Punjabi agricultural laborers for their services as farmhands on his almond orchard in Davisville, CA. The first Punjabi farmers arrived in the spring of 1907 to work on his farms. One of the Punjabi laborers, Munsha Singh, became the linchpin of the Pierce farms, recruiting Punjabis from all over northern California and in helping to manage the farm operations. Munsha Singh also served as the Secretary for the Gadar Party, the revolutionary party that sought to overthrow British rule in India that was headquartered in San Francisco, CA.
