Biography
Steven Mailloux is a critical theorist and Professor Emeritus of English at the University of California, Irvine. He is currently President's Professor of Rhetoric at Loyola Marymount University.
Mailloux was born in La Jolla, California on March 23, 1950. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree in English from Loyola University, Los Angeles in 1972, his Master of Arts in English from the University of Southern California (USC) in 1974, and his Ph.D. in Rhetoric, Linguistics, and Literature, also from the USC, in 1977. He is married to Mary Ann (Molly) Mailloux and has three children, Mary, Roman, and Theresa.
Mailloux began his academic career as Assistant Professor of English at Temple University from 1977-1979. He also taught at the University of Miami from 1979-1986 and Syracuse University from 1986-1991. He became Professor of English from 1991-2010 and Chancellor's Professor of Rhetoric from 2001-2010 at the University of California, Irvine, where he taught rhetoric, critical theory, and U.S. cultural studies. For the latter position, he received on-the-job training from 1986-1989 as Chair of English at Syracuse University when that department initiated a comprehensive reform of its literature curriculum in the direction of critical theory and cultural studies. He became the President's Professor of Rhetoric at Loyola Marymount University in 2009.
Mailloux is the author of six books, including Disciplinary Identities: Rhetorical Paths of English, Speech, and Composition (2006), Reception Histories: Rhetoric, Pragmatism, and American Cultural Politics (1998, reissued in 2009), and Rhetorical Power (1989, reissued in 2009), as well as numerous essays, shorter publications, and conference papers.
