Title: Joseph M. Carrier collection on the Chieu Hoi program and Vietnamese conflict
Identifier/Call Number: MS.SEA.001
Contributing Institution: Special Collections and Archives, University of California, Irvine Libraries
Language of Material: English
Physical Description: 26.8 Linear feet (67 boxes)
Date (bulk): Bulk, 1960-1967
Date (inclusive): 1958-1992
Abstract: This collection contains interview transcripts, published and unpublished reports, research notes, working papers, maps, clippings, correspondence, memoranda, and statistical data gathered by Joseph M. Carrier primarily while he was employed as a Rand Corporation counterinsurgency specialist with the Chieu Hoi Program in Vietnam. The bulk of the materials pertains to the Chieu Hoi Program, which was operated by the Republic of Vietnam from 1963 to 1973 to encourage civilian and military defections from the communist-controlled South. The collection contains materials documenting the administration of the Chieu Hoi program in addition to transcripts of interviews conducted with defectors (or “ralliers”), prisoners of war, and refugees. English and Vietnamese interview notes, translated Viet Minh (or “Viet Cong”) documents, and preliminary interrogation reports are also included. The collection also contains administrative materials produced by the Rand Corporation, the United States government, Republic of Vietnam government, the National Academy of Sciences, and other agencies documenting such topics as Viet Cong and U.S. military activities; counterinsurgency movements; the use of herbicides and their toxicological and environmental effects; and Vietnamese socio-economic conditions, social history, politics, and demographics. A small group of files contain Carrier’s research materials for the San Francisco Center for Southeast Asian Refugee Resettlement’s 1991 study of AIDS knowledge, attitudes, beliefs and behaviors in San Francisco Southeast Asian communities, as well as personal letters by a Rand colleague named Leon Goure. The majority of materials are in English. Some materials are in Vietnamese.
Language of Collection Materials: Collection materials are in English and Vietnamese. Some materials from the Chieu Hoi Program are in the original Vietnamese, with English translations.
Creator: Carrier, Joseph M.

Processing History
Biography
Joseph Michel Carrier was a counterinsurgency specialist for the Rand Corporation. He conducted fieldwork in South Vietnam in 1962 and again from 1965 through 1967. During the last half of 1966 and in the spring of 1967, this fieldwork focused on the Chieu Hoi Program. In the early 1970s, Carrier joined the National Academy of Sciences as a staff officer on the Herbicide Committee. At this time, he conducted more field investigations in Vietnam, gathering data on the effects of U.S. defoliation programs. The spraying, code named Operation Trail Dust and Operation Ranch Hand, was used to defoliate forests to expose Viet Minh (or “Viet Cong”) compounds. In addition, the U.S. military sprayed Viet Cong food supplies with defoliants such as Agent Orange, which contained high levels of a poisonous contaminant known as dioxin. Carrier produced a National Academy of Sciences working paper on the effects of herbicides in 1974. He received his Ph.D. in Social Sciences from the University of California, Irvine in 1972.
The Chieu Hoi Program, also known as the Open Arms Program or the Great National Solidarity Program, was a ten-year campaign started by Republic of Vietnam (RVN) President, Ngo Dinh Diem, in April 1963. Operated by the RVN Government's Chieu Hoi Ministry, the program sought to persuade Viet Cong troops and supporters of the North Vietnamese cause to rally to the RVN cause. To accomplish this, the RVN and its allies used family contacts, radio and loudspeaker broadcasts, and propaganda leaflets. Provincial Chieu Hoi centers harbored these defectors, or "ralliers," who underwent reeducation and rehabilitation. RVN and U.S. military forces also employed ralliers, some in the well-known American Kit Carson Unit. Other ralliers were used for intelligence work against the Viet Cong infrastructure throughout South Vietnam. In addition, over forty Chieu Hoi villages were constructed to provide free housing for ralliers. From 1963 to 1973 the Chieu Hoi Program attracted nearly 160,000 defectors, of whom 30,000 were identified as Viet Cong.

Collection Scope and Content Summary

This collection contains interview transcripts, published and unpublished reports, research notes, working papers, maps, clippings, correspondence, memoranda, and statistical data gathered by Joseph M. Carrier primarily while he was employed as a Rand Corporation counterinsurgency specialist with the Chieu Hoi Program in Vietnam. The bulk of the materials pertain to the Chieu Hoi Program, which was operated by the Republic of Vietnam from 1963 to 1973 to encourage civilian and military defections from the communist-controlled South. The collection contains materials documenting the administration of the Chieu Hoi program in addition to transcripts of interviews conducted with defectors (or "ralliers"), prisoners of war, and refugees. The collection also contains administrative materials produced by the Rand Corporation, the United States government, Republic of Vietnam government, the National Academy of Sciences, and other agencies documenting such topics as Viet Cong and U.S. military activities; counterinsurgency movements; the use of herbicides and their toxicological and environmental effects; and Vietnamese socio-economic conditions, social history, politics, and demographics. A small group of files contain Carrier's research materials for the San Francisco Center for Southeast Asian Refugee Resettlement's 1991 study of AIDS knowledge, attitudes, beliefs and behaviors in San Francisco Southeast Asian communities. The majority of materials are in English. Some materials are in Vietnamese.

The translations of rallier and POW interviews provide extensive documentation of the experiences of people involved in the Viet Cong insurgency. The interviewers used open-ended questions to elicit narrative descriptions of the subjects' reasons for joining the Viet Cong, the activities they were involved in, as well as more personal aspects of their personal lives, such as living conditions, family relationships, sexual practices, and religion. These interviews provide an invaluable record of Vietnamese lives and Vietnamese views of the war. Administrative papers provide insight into how the Chieu Hoi Program was organized and operated, including information on standard operating procedures, government policies, and statistical data pertaining to the number and locations of ralliers. Published and unpublished reports, government documents, newspaper clippings, and magazine articles document the political climate of the time and evolving U.S. policies on pacification and militarization in Vietnam.

In addition, one series consists of personal letters sent by Leon Gouré to an unidentified female colleague at the Rand Corporation branch in Santa Monica, California, from 1964 to 1968. The letters, in Gouré's hand, describe the social scientist's experiences as part of Viet Cong Motivation and Morale Study. Gouré's study is cited in the Chieu Hoi Program memorandum written by Carrier and C.A.H Thomson. Additional information about the project and Gouré is available in Mai Elliott's book RAND in Southeast Asia: A History of the Vietnam War Era (2010).

Chieu Hoi Program materials Series 1. 1964-1968

Physical Description: 1.2 linear feet.
Language of Collection Materials: The collection is in English and Vietnamese.

Series Scope and Content Summary
This series includes materials collected by Carrier documenting the work, policies, and operations of the Chieu Hoi Program. This series also contains some of Carrier's personal correspondence and memoranda. This series primarily consists of statistical notes, charts, and graphs created or collected by Carrier in support of his research on the Chieu Hoi Program and other topics relating to Viet Cong activities, the U.S. use of ralliers, and Vietnam in general. The bulk of these items are weekly and monthly statistical data and statistical summaries on ralliers from various regions of North Vietnam, some derived from Quy Chanh rallier identification cards. Other files contain organizational charts, maps, a budget for "rural reconstruction," and propaganda leaflets distributed among the Viet Cong. These files also contain detailed lists of ralliers and an extensive collection of rallier identification cards. Documents are in Vietnamese and English.

Chieu Hoi Program interviews Series 2. 1962-1968

Physical Description: 19.2 linear feet.
Language of Collection Materials: The collection is in English and Vietnamese.

Series Scope and Content Summary
This series includes transcripts of interviews with North Vietnamese ralliers, civilians, and military prisoners applying for amnesty under the Chieu Hoi Program. The interviews, primarily conducted by Rand and the Simulmatics Corporation specialists, cover a wide range of topics such as residence, family background, religion, and occupation, as well as information about villages and attitudes toward the French, Republic of Vietnam, and the Viet Cong. Viet Cong civilian and military prisoners were also queried about their specific activities, how and why they became involved with Chieu Hoi, and their feelings toward the program. There are also what Carrier labelled as as "Quy chanh" interviews that contain all of the above information in Vietnamese and English translation with black and white photos and fingerprints of the interviewees. Also included are sample and completed questionnaires and interrogation reports. A detailed collection of rallier identification cards collected between 1965 and 1966 can be found in Series 1. Chieu Hoi Program materials.

Series Arrangement
This Series is arranged in 4 Subseries:
Subseries 2. Simulmatics interviews, 1965-1967

Rand Corporation interviews, Subseries 2.1. 1964-1967

Subseries Scope and Content Summary
This subseries consists of typed transcripts in English of interviews conducted with civilians, military personnel, and refugees by Rand Corporation specialists. They include brief biographical information concerning residence, occupation, military rank, and duties. Information regarding the bureaucratic structure of hamlets, feelings toward Americans, French, Southern Vietnamese, and Viet Cong, and reasons for becoming a rallier was also solicited. Viet Cong prisoners were questioned about military rank and duties as well as their experiences. Interviewer commentary is also provided.

Subseries Arrangement
This subseries is arranged by type of rallier and then by interview date.

Quy Chanh interviews, Subseries 2.3. 1965-1968

Language of Collection Materials: The collection is in English and Vietnamese.

Subseries Scope and Content Summary
This subseries consists of interviews in Vietnamese stapled to an English translation. The Vietnamese copy includes a 2” x 2” black and white photo of the interviewee taken on the day of the interview, their thumb prints (and sometimes other finger prints) and official stamps and signatures. These interviews are arranged by year, but there was some evidence of previous arrangement by place of interview or interviewee’s last name. The relationship between the Rand or Simulmatics interviews is not clear.

Miscellaneous publications and research materials, Subseries 4.2. 1965-1992

Subseries Scope and Content Summary

This subseries includes various published and unpublished materials, including reports, working papers, journal articles, and newspaper clippings collected by Carrier as background for his research on insurgency movements, the general political climate of the late 1960s, the war, and Vietnamese society and culture. Journal articles and newspaper clippings were taken from a variety of sources, including academic publications and popular publications such as The New Yorker. Of particular interest are a number of journal articles, including two undated works by Vietnamese authors, and a National Academy of Science (NAS) working paper series titled The Effects of herbicides in South Vietnam (1974) relating to the U.S. use of herbicides during the war. These NAS working papers include Carrier's publication The location of herbicide missions and Hickey's informants in South Vietnam: an appraisal. This subseries also contains Carrier's research materials for the San Francisco Center for Southeast Asian Refugee Resettlement's 1991 study of Southeast Asian communities and AIDS, published by Kenji Murase as AIDS knowledge, attitudes, beliefs and behaviors in Southeast Asian communities in San Francisco (San Francisco: Center for Southeast Asian Refugee Resettlement, 1991).

Scope and Content Summary
This series consists of personal letters sent by Leon Gouré to an unidentified female colleague at the Rand Corporation branch in Santa Monica, California, from 1964 to 1968. The letters, in Gouré's hand, describe the social scientist's experiences as part of the Viet Cong Motivation and Morale Study. Gouré's study is cited in the Chieu Hoi Program memorandum written by Carrier and C.A.H Thomson. Additional information about the project and Gouré is available in Mai Elliott's book RAND in Southeast Asia: A History of the Vietnam War Era (2010).

Note on Redacted Information
The name of the recipient of the letters was redacted by Dr. Carrier.

Acquisition Information
Gift of Dr. Carrier, 2012. The letters were given to Carrier by a family member of the recipient after her death.
