Title: Christine Tamblyn papers
Creator: Tamblyn, Christine
Identifier/Call Number: MS.F.011
Physical Description: 20.1 Linear Feet (44 boxes and 14 oversize folders) and 2 unprocessed linear feet
Date (inclusive): 1962-1998
Date (bulk): 1976-1997
Abstract: This collection comprises notes, correspondence, interviews, photographs, slides, audio and video recordings, floppy disks, CD-ROMs, books, catalogues, printed ephemera, and artifacts collected and created during the life and career of artist, critic, and educator Christine Tamblyn. The bulk of this collection consists of materials documenting Tamblyn's artwork, writings, academic career, and professional activities from the 1970s through 1990s. The collection also includes some personal files and juvenilia. The collection is particularly strong in the area of conceptual art, performance, video and digital media in the 1970s and 1980s, representing her work as a multimedia, video, and performance artist as well her role as writer and critic. Files include extensive documentation of two of Tamblyn's CD-ROM works, She Loves It, She Loves It Not: Women and Technology (1993) and Mistaken Identities (1995). Materials concerning such artists as Karen Finley, Lynn Hershman-Leeson, and others can be found throughout the collection. Significant issues and debates in the U.S. art world of the 1970s to 1990s are well documented in Tamblyn's articles, essays, and reviews for a variety of publications, including Afterimage, Art news, Cinematograph, Art week, High Performance, Leonardo, and New Art Examiner. Materials also reflect Tamblyn's participation in the national and international art world, primarily through her attendance at and presentations for conferences and symposia, but the geographic emphasis is Chicago and the San Francisco Bay Area. The collection also contains posthumously collected materials, including the multimedia CD-ROM Archival Quality (1998).

Biography
Christine Tamblyn was an American visual artist and critic active in Chicago and the San Francisco Bay Area from the 1970s through 1990s, and known for her performance pieces and multimedia works utilizing CD-ROMs and video. She was born in 1951 in Waukegan, Illinois and attended a Catholic girls' school. In 1968 or 1969 she moved to Chicago where she audited courses at the University of Chicago while working as an administrative assistant for an insurance company. She began her studies at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago (SAIC) in approximately 1973 and taught graduate-level courses in video while still an undergraduate. She also worked as the Video and Performance Editor for the New Art Examiner journal from 1977 to 1979, a beginning in her long and prolific career as an art critic. She quickly became an active participant in the flourishing community of Chicago video artists. In a series of lectures about her own work, Tamblyn noted that she focused on video and performance art at SAIC since they were "the closest to everyday life." In the area of performance she was strongly influenced by the work of Allan Kaprow and the Happenings artists of the late 1950s and early 1960s. Among her video teachers was Phil Morton, who in the early 1970s founded the Video Data Bank at SAIC. Morton, Dan Sandin (inventor of the Image Processor, an analog video synthesizer), Tom DeFanti, and Bob Snyder were part of what became known as the Chicago Imagist school of video makers. This group was the "first generation" of video artists to incorporate the use of special effects into their work, a practice that was initially met with derision by other artists who termed the results "video wallpaper."

Tamblyn herself went on to produce video and performance pieces in which she utilized the technologies available at the time to manipulate autobiographically-based materials that she subjected to filtering, with influences ranging from Dada and surrealist art, the mysticism of Rosicrucianism and the Cabala, to poststructuralist and feminist theories. The theoretical foundations that shaped her work can be easily traced through her decades-spanning habit of journal writing as well as her detailed research for exhibition catalogue essays, articles of art criticism, conference and symposia presentations, and academic papers.

After graduating from SAIC around 1979 she moved to New York City. She described her work there as "stylized Neo-Expressionist performances in East Village clubs." The New York period was a difficult one. She taught for a time at the School of Visual Arts and worked in clerical positions. Without access to equipment, however, she could not make the kind of technology-dependent work she had spent four years producing while in Chicago.

From the late 1970s through the 1990s she was actively involved in a variety of national and international conferences, workshops, symposia, lectures, and festivals. She also became progressively involved in work as a curator in the 1980s. In approximately 1982 she entered the MFA program at the University of California, San Diego where she could study with conceptual artists she admired, including Eleanor and David Antin and Allan Kaprow. She received her degree in 1986.

Tamblyn also began working with feminist performance artists during this time. In 1984, at the invitation of the Los Angeles Woman's Building, she created As the Worm Turns, a response to what she considered a disturbing anti-pornography stance within certain sectors of the women's movement.

In 1985 she moved to San Francisco and began teaching at San Francisco State University (SFSU). In San Francisco she actively worked as a contributing editor for Artweek, an editor for Cinematograph, and a correspondent for Art news. The issue of censorship and the arts, which occupied the U.S. art world's center stage for much of the late 1980s and early 1990s (funding of the National Endowment for the Arts was a key site of contention), surfaced in her career as an art critic and curator. Tableaux Vivants, a group show sponsored by the San Francisco Arts Commission and curated by Tamblyn, and the ensuing Climate of Censorship conference in 1989 unleashed a fury of protests and discussions in response to Tamblyn's conflict with one of the participating artists' large-scale sculptures.

The digital revolution of the 1980s and early 1990s found Tamblyn at the forefront, stemming from her early exposure to and use of technology in her pieces. An artist who often collaborated with others, Tamblyn's first CD-ROM, She Loves It, She Loves It Not: Women and Technology (1993), was a joint project with her students at SFSU, Marjorie Franklin and Paul Tompkins. This was one of the first CD-ROMs created and produced by a woman artist. Women and technology remained a topic of intense interest for Tamblyn throughout her career. This is reflected both in journals from her undergraduate days, in which she recorded her frustrating attempts to forge a place for herself as a woman in the male-dominated world of media labs and studios, and in her commitment to new digital genres, which resulted in two additional CD-ROMs, Mistaken Identities (1995) and the posthumous Archival Quality (1998).

Between 1990 and 1996 she taught at the University of California, Berkeley, and Florida International University, Miami (FIU). She left FIU in 1996 for the Department of Studio Art at the University of California, Irvine (UCI), due to what she perceived as a lack of support for the art program. At UCI she was instrumental in developing the foundation for a digital arts program.

Tamblyn's conceptual and intellectual products are at least as significant as her art production. Part of her life-long project was the blurring of borders between art and living. Until the very end of her life, she continued working on the project she had begun as a young artist, the desire to, as she put it, "make my life a work of art. Having my life as my work of art makes my art totally dependent on the contexts that I operate in." Tamblyn died of breast cancer on January 1, 1998 in San Francisco.

A biographical article on Tamblyn is available online through "University of California: In Memoriam."

Series Scope and Content Summary

This series comprises multimedia artwork, artifacts, and documentation of artwork and performances created by Tamblyn, or co-created by Tamblyn and others. Her works were presented in a variety of formats, including photographic prints, slides, audio and video recordings, and CD-ROMs. Video and audio tapes contain mastered material and raw footage (original and appropriated) incorporated by Tamblyn into her artwork. These files also contain scripts, research materials and notes, show announcements, flyers, posters, correspondence, exhibition contracts, press releases, and reviews of performances. They also contain other conference- and lecture-related materials documenting individual performances.

For articles published by Tamblyn not restricted to her individual works, see Subseries 4.1.

For materials relating to Tamblyn's involvement in conferences, panels, and exhibits that do not document her individual works, see Series 5.

Arrangement

This series is arranged alphabetically by title of the work. Materials relating to individual performances or exhibitions are filed together under the heading Performance and exhibit files. All other materials concerning the research and creation of works are filed together under the heading Research and production files. Individual works that were published or appeared in publications are indicated by headings with the title of the publication in italics and the year of the publication in parentheses. Materials relating to artwork that may not have been exhibited or published, including drafts, research notes, and other documents, are filed under the general heading Miscellaneous artwork and projects.

Subseries Scope and Content Summary

This subseries contains lecture notes, teaching notebooks, assignments and exams, course preparation materials, formal course proposals, awards, personnel files, and other administrative documents accumulated by Tamblyn during her career as a professor, instructor, and lecturer. The bulk of these files document her courses at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago, San Francisco State University, and Florida International University. There is a small amount of material documenting her work at Mills College and the University of California, Irvine. There are no materials documenting her courses at the University of California, Santa Cruz and the School of Visual Arts, Chicago. These files also contain material gathered by Tamblyn during her appointment as a teaching assistant for Moira Roth's 19th and 20th Century Art class at the University of California, San Diego. Job applications and correspondence relating to academic appointments are filed in Series 5.

   Physical Description: 6.7 Linear Feet
   Series Scope and Content Summary
   This series consists of Tamblyn's published and unpublished works, the majority published in journals and newspapers. For articles by Tamblyn or others exclusively concerning her individual artwork, see Series 1.
   Arrangement
   The series is organized in 2 subseries:

By Tamblyn Subseries 4.1. 1962-1997
   Physical Description: 6.5 Linear Feet
   Subseries Scope and Content Summary
   This subseries comprises files of Tamblyn's published works, consisting of holographs, typescripts, drafts, research notes and materials, proofs and tear sheets of articles, photographic prints, reviews, exhibit catalogs, and essays. This subseries also contains numerous unpublished works by Tamblyn, including her extensive research notes and holograph drafts of her history of the School of the Art Institute of Chicago, her overview of Chicago video art and artists, and a biographical work on Lynn Hershman-Leeson titled Artlife. In many cases the publication in which the piece appeared is included as part of the file. Correspondence directly related to the written material is also included. Transcriptions of Tamblyn's performances are filed under the title of the work in Series 1. Material documenting Tamblyn's work as a curator, including exhibits for which she wrote catalog essays as a curator, are filed in Series 5.
   Arrangement
   The subseries is arranged alphabetically by the title of the piece. Book and journal titles are placed in italics. Article and chapter titles are placed in quotes. Dates of publication are indicated within parentheses. Date ranges mark earliest and latest dates of individual items within the files.

Professional files Series 5. 1978-1997

Physical Description: 1.9 Linear Feet

Series Scope and Content Summary
This series consists of notes, typescripts, correspondence, proposals, programs, post- ers, and ephemera documenting Tamblyn's employment and her professional participation in a variety of national and international activities. The bulk of these files document Tamblyn's participation in conferences, workshops, symposia, lectures, and festivals, as well as her work as an exhibit curator and juror. This series also contains files documenting her awards, grants, and funding.

For Tamblyn's curriculum vitae, see Series 2. For grant and funding documentation relating to her specific artwork, see Series 1. Materials relating to her employment as a teacher are filed in Subseries 3.2.

Arrangement
This series is arranged topically. Conference and professional meeting files, and curator and juror files are arranged chronologically by the year of the event and therein by the name of the event or sponsoring organization.

Series Scope and Content Summary

This series contains a wide-ranging collection of brochures, clippings, flyers, press releases, and other printed materials collected by Tamblyn, documenting various conferences, colloquia, and workshop relating to the arts. This series also contains materials documenting performances, exhibits, and artists. This subseries is particularly strong in materials from the San Francisco Bay area from the 1990s. Some of these materials are related to Tamblyn’s long-term interests in specific art works, artists, or issues affecting the art community. In particular, she collected material documenting censorship in the arts in 1990, especially the debate over works by Robert Mapplethorpe. This series also contains videorecordings and photographic prints.

For material collected by Tamblyn for conferences, workshops, symposia, lectures, and festivals that she participated in, see Series 5.
