Acquisition Information

Processing History

Historical Background
Nicholas Magalousis was active in the preservation of California missions, particularly San Juan Capistrano and San Luis Rey de Francia, and other Southern California historic sites such as the Irvine Ranch. He founded the California Mission Studies Association, an organization established in 1984 to preserve the California missions and support education about them. He has done pioneering work in Atomic Absorption Analysis and Archaeology and has taught anthropology and archaeology at the University of California, Irvine, Chapman University, Irvine Valley College, and Long Beach State University. In 2005, he became a professor in the Department of Anthropology and Archaeology at Santiago Canyon College in Orange, California, and had published about 1500 pages of research.

Collection Scope and Content Summary
The collection documents Magalousis' efforts to preserve Southern California historic sites, particularly the San Juan Capistrano Mission in the 1980s, the San Luis Rey de Francia mission in the 1990s, and the Irvine Ranch in the 2000s. This collection also includes records from the California Mission Studies Association. Collection materials include reports, newsletters, publications, slides, photographic prints, memoranda, correspondence, videotapes, audiocassettes, and news clippings. Also included are materials related to Magalousis's scholarly and academic work at Santiago Canyon College.

Collection Arrangement
This collection is arranged alphabetically by subject. Accession 2014.007, an unprocessed addition to the collection, is listed at the end.

Separation Note
Select publications were removed from this collection and cataloged separately in Special Collections and Archives.
