Organizational History
In December 1963, ground was broken for the first major buildings on the University of California, Irvine campus, and in January 1964, construction began. The initial structures that were included in the first Long Range Development Plan included Library-Administration, Commons, Humanities-Social Science, Fine Arts, Natural Sciences and Science Lecture Hall, Central Plant, Campus Hall (later Crawford Hall), and Mesa Court. Architectural plans for most of these structures are included in this collection.

Collection Scope and Content Summary

This collection comprises architectural drawings, plans, renderings, and blueprints used in the construction of the University of California, Irvine campus and College of Medicine from primarily 1963-1976. Materials include black and white and color images and are in both paper and tissue paper formats. The collection includes plans for major campus buildings such as academic units, campus support facilities, and student housing as well as plans for campus layout and infrastructure, including landscaping, roads, and utility systems.

The collection is organized topically by building or type of infrastructure and materials are divided by general subject headings such as academic units or student housing. The dates in the contents list refer to the dates of the plans or drawings; consult the Chronology for building completion dates.

The collection also includes one unprocessed addition, listed at the end of the collection contents.

Related Collections

For architectural plans of other campus buildings, such as those constructed after the time period covered in this collection, contact the Design Group at UCI Facilities Management.

The University Archives Vertical File folder "Buildings" contains more detailed information about individual campus buildings. For information about campus planning and construction, consult the UCI Long Range Development Plan; search Antpac under title "Long Range Development Plan" for a listing of available years and call numbers.

The Central Records Units Records, AS-004, contains project files for most buildings constructed on campus before 1994.
