Abstract: Louise Marie Darling (1911-1999) received degrees in Botany (B.A.) from the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA) and Botany (M.A.) and Librarianship (Certification and Credential) from the University of California, Berkeley. As a civilian in the U.S. Army Library Service she supervised Army libraries for Hawaii and the Philippines (1944-1947). After returning to UCLA, she founded and headed, until her retirement in 1978, the Biomedical Library which was named for her in 1987. She received many major awards and honors in the profession of medical librarianship, and consulted widely. The papers contain correspondence, reports, publication drafts, teaching materials, plus newspaper clippings, reprints, photographs, and artifacts. The bulk focuses on Darling's professional accomplishments aside from administration of the UCLA Biomedical Library. A smaller part pertains to personal matters: education, positions held, and relations with staff, colleagues, and family.

Acquisition Information
The papers were collected by Louise Darling, who sorted and weeded some after her retirement. Following Darling's death her successor and executor, Alison Bunting, added more materials and provided some further organization.
Biography
Louise Darling received a B.A. in Botany from UCLA, and a General Secondary Credential, an M.A. in Botany, a Certificate in Librarianship, and a Special Secondary Credential in Librarianship, all from UC Berkeley. Her early library experience was conventional: an agricultural economics library at UC Berkeley, a high school library, and reference at the UCLA Library. Then she took an interesting detour: accepting a civilian position in the U. S. Army Library Service, eventually to become Supervisor for Hawaii and the Philippines (1944-1947). In 1947 Darling inquired about returning to UCLA; she was offered the opportunity to build a library for the new Medical School at UCLA and for the Zoology and Botany Departments, all of whose leaders wisely decided that a joint BIOmedical library would add strength to the campus. Darling fulfilled their vision superbly, leading her library and its staff to a pioneering, eminent position among U.S. academic health sciences libraries. Her achievements are documented by the national reputation of the library she founded and to which her name is attached, by the number of former staff members heading their own medical and university libraries, and by the wide love and respect evoked by her memory.
Darling's name also loomed large beyond her own campus. She was active in professional societies, published widely, served on many advisory committees. She became president of the main national medical library society, The Medical Library Association, and garnered all its main awards. Honors and awards were also bestowed by other professional groups, by UCLA, and by the alumni associations of two of her former schools. In addition, her professional acumen was honored by the many consulting assignments that were offered, and the awards named for her.
Scope and Content
The bulk of the collection consists of correspondence, reports, manuscripts, and teaching materials, plus some newspaper clippings, reprints, and artifacts. Materials span the years 1929-1999. The major portion deals with Louise Darling's professional accomplishments aside from daily administration of the UCLA Biomedical Library. This includes her publications, involvement in professional organizations, speeches and lectures, teaching notes and reference lists, and consultant projects. A smaller part of the collection pertains to personal matters: education, positions, relations with staff and colleagues, family.

The collection has been organized into ten main series and several sub-series.

The collection is organized into the following series:

Series 1. Professional Publications and Presentations, Except Meeting Presentations., 1940-1990. 26 folders (0.5 linear ft.)
Series 2. Participation in Professional Meetings, Symposia, Congresses., 1953-1995. 28 folders (0.5 linear ft.)
Series 3. Consulting Projects., 1962-1990. 21 folders (0.4 linear ft.)
Series 4. Honors and Awards, Offices, Committee Assignments., 1961-1989. 19 folders (1 linear ft.)
Series 5. Teaching Activities., 1960-1983. 11 folders (0.3 linear ft.)
