Biography

The Los Angeles Times was founded as the Los Angeles Daily Times on December 4, 1881 by Nathan Cole Jr. and Thomas Gardiner. The following year Cole and Gardiner relinquished ownership of the newspaper to its printer, the Mirror Printing Office and Book Bindery. Harrison Gray Otis was hired as editor in 1882 and the paper quickly became a financial success. In 1884 Otis and his partner H. H. Boyce purchased the Times and Mirror properties and incorporated them as the Times-Mirror Company. Otis bought out his partner two years later. In October 1886, "Daily" was dropped from the name, and the paper became known as the Los Angeles Times. On October 1, 1910 the Times building was bombed by union leaders, resulting in the death of twenty-one people.

The Times continued to be owned and published by Harrison Grey Otis' descendants, including son-in-law Harry Chandler (publisher, 1917-1944); grandson Norman Chandler (1944-1960); and great-grandson Otis Chandler (1960-1980). Despite fierce competition amongst local newspapers, the Los Angeles Times became the city's leading newspaper in the mid-1940s. In the 1960s, the paper won four Pulitzer Prizes.

In 1948 the Times launched the afternoon tabloid the Los Angeles Mirror, which absorbed the Los Angeles Daily News in 1954 and ceased publication in 1962. The Times-Mirror Company was also an original owner of Los Angeles television station KTTV which debuted in January 1949.

The Chandler family continued to own the Times until June 2000, when the Tribune Company acquired Times Mirror, and the Los Angeles Times became a Tribune Publishing Newspaper. In 2016, it is the largest metropolitan daily newspaper in the United States.

Scope and Content

The collection dates from circa 1918 to 1990 and provides a record of major world events, what the Times considered as significant news in the moment. The scope of its contents is near-comprehensive as a document of events, personalities, movements, and institutions in the news. The collection contains images of scandals and crimes from the Fatty Arbuckle trial (1921) to the Munich Massacre (1972); coverage of wars from WWII through Vietnam and the wars in the Gulf region; disasters and tragedies from the Hindenburg explosion (1937) to the Challenger Space Shuttle disaster and Chernobyl (1986). Advances in science are recorded, from the first open-heart surgery (1952) to the first moon landing (1969) and the first test-tube baby (1978), as well as images from reporting on global social justice movements such as the anti-apartheid movement in South Africa, democracy movements in Eastern Europe, anti-militarist struggles in Latin America, and the U.S. civil rights movement, among others.

Unique among its content is the amount of photographic evidence concerning the Los Angeles region during this time. The range of documentary material reflecting L.A. politics, the built environment, arts and culture, race relations, industry, growth and development is perhaps unrivaled. The photographic records resulting from the Times' diligent and constant coverage of the Hollywood entertainment industry are a particularly important cache.

Materials include glass negatives (ca. 1918-1932), nitrate negatives (1930-ca. 1948), safety negatives (ca. 1935-1990), and working prints and wire service photos (ca. 1920-1990). The collection also includes prints and negatives from the Los Angeles Times Orange County and San Diego bureaus. Negatives are not limited to published images and include a significant amount of images which never appeared in the paper. A small number of assorted historic negatives are still in the possession of the LA Times.
