The collection was transferred to Library Special Collections from the Asian American Studies Center for final rehousing and description in August and September 2019.

Processing Information

Collections are processed to a variety of levels depending on the work necessary to make them usable, their perceived user interest and research value, availability of staff and resources, and competing priorities. Library Special Collections provides a standard level of preservation and access for all collections and, when time and resources permit, conducts more intensive processing. These materials have been arranged and described according to national and local standards and best practices.

The Okura papers were appraised by Marjorie Lee in 2004. In 2005 Marjorie Lee handled the disposition and shipping from Bethesda, Maryland to UCLA, where she re-boxed and brieflisted materials before they were transferred to Iron Mountain for climate controlled storage. In 2011 the Okura Mental Health Leadership Foundation granted generous funds for the archival processing of the collection. Processing by Marjorie Lee began in 2011, with assistance from archival and research processing assistants Anna Lu, Krista Chavez, Ann Matsumina Chiu, Garrett Giffin, Julie Yamashita, and Aidan Yun and student assistants Jessica Frierson, Michelle Morimoto, Hope Shin, Hisa Tome, Kim Yamasaki, and Kelly Zhao. Processing was completed in 2019. Additional description by Kelly Besser with assistance from Tess Livesley-O'Neill in 2020, utilizing guidelines outlined in the Japanese American Citizens League's 2012 "Power of Words Handbook: A Guide to Language about Japanese Americans in World War II". Description decisions were made to avoid neutral or euphemistic language, for K. Patrick Okura (1911-2005) was born in Los Angeles, California, the eldest son of Japanese immigrants. He attended University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA), obtained a Bachelor’s degree in Psychology (1933), and became the first Asian American to graduate with a Master's degree in Psychology (1935) at UCLA. He was also the first Japanese American to play on their varsity baseball team. Later he received an honorary Doctorate from the Phillips Graduate Institute (2001). After UCLA, Okura worked in various positions for the City of Los Angeles. From 1939-1942, he worked as Personnel Technician to the Los Angeles City Civil Service, serving as the highest-ranking Japanese American in the city and the first Japanese American to be hired by the city for an administrative position.

After Pearl Harbor was attacked, however, the Los Angeles Times and Examiner labeled Okura as “the most dangerous Japanese American” and he faced accusations of plotting to sabotage the city’s water and power supply. He was pushed to resign but refused, and was eventually fired. World War II continued to impact Okura when he and his family, along with thousands of other Americans of Japanese descent, were forcibly removed to the Santa Anita Assembly Center and subsequently transferred to various detention camps.

Lily and her family were also forcibly removed to Santa Anita, and upon closure of the center, Lily and Pat were married in October, 1941. Offered a staff psychologist position by Father Flanagan of Boys Town, a boys’ home in Omaha, Nebraska, the Okuras decided to relocate to the Midwest and re-establish themselves for the next 30 years. Not only did he become well established in his professional career and in the community, Okura also took an active role as a civil rights leader. A member of Japanese American Citizens League (JACL) since the 1930s, he served as National President from 1962-1964. Under his leadership, JACL participated in the first March on Washington for Jobs and Freedom in 1963, and was actively involved with reparations from the U.S. government for the World War II incarceration of Japanese Americans. In 1978, the organization bestowed their highest honor on Okura when he was named Japanese American of the Biennium for his contributions to the JACL.

Okura is a recognized pioneer in Asian Pacific American, minority, and community mental health communities. Beginning in 1971, Okura became the Executive Assistant to Dr. Bertram S. Brown, the Director of the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH). Okura was in a strategic position for more than two decades advocating for and endorsing financial support for the health and welfare needs of Asian American/Pacific Islander (AAPI) communities. In 1980, the UCLA Alumni Association bestowed on him its Community Service Award.

Patrick and Lily used their reparation funds to co-found the Okura Mental Health Leadership Foundation (OMHLF) to promote leadership, research and training in human services. OMHLF has impacted U.S. Congressional Policy regarding Asian American and Pacific Islander health issues. Okura also founded the National Asian Pacific American Families Against Substance Abuse (NAPAFASA) in 1988, as well as the Asian American Psychological Association (AAPA).

Lily A. Okura (1919-2005) was born in Santa Barbara, CA. In her younger years, she was recognized for her talent as a dancer and also appeared in several movies including Oil for the Lamps of China. She represented the city of Long Beach in the Tournament of Roses Parade in 1936 and participated in talent contests during Nisei Week. In 1939, she obtained her Bachelor’s degree in Business Administration from Long Beach Business College and continued her studies at the University of Nebraska, Omaha.

Once the Okuras relocated to Nebraska, Lily worked with theYWCA in Omaha, where she started off as a secretary and eventually served as interim Executive Director. She moved on to become an administrator at the C. Meyer Louis Children’s Therapy Center at the University of Nebraska College of Medicine and then later the Director of Volunteer Services. In 1972, hoping to rest, she moved to Bethesda, Maryland, but was recruited by the Director of Public Relations at the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and held the position of Director of Personnel until her retirement in 1982.

With her administrative experience, Lily managed the OMHLF and was also heavily involved in Altrusa International, a worldwide organization of professionals that aims to better the lives of others. She was recognized for her leadership, consistently serving on their Board of Directors and holding other positions. She took an active role with JACL at regional and national levels, and was the first woman elected to their National Board of Directors. She served in positions such as National Vice President of General Operations, Vice President, National Chair for the JACL’s Japanese American of the Biennium Committee, and Editor of the Washington, D.C. chapter’s D.C. News Notes. Overcome by grief with Patrick’s passing in January 2005, Lily died less than five months later.
