Biography/History

Royce was born on November 20, 1855 in Grass Valley, California; AB, University of California at Berkeley, 1875; studied at Leipzig and Göttingen Universities (1875-76), and then entered Johns Hopkins University, where he received his Ph.D in 1878; instructor in English literature and logic (1878-82), University of California at Berkeley; instructor in philosophy (1882-85), assistant professor (1885-92), professor of the history of philosophy (1892-1914), and in 1914 was named Alford professor of natural religion, moral philosophy, and civil polity, Harvard University; published works include: Primer of Logical Analysis for the Use of Composition Students (1881), The Religious Aspect of Philosophy (1885), The Spirit of Modern Philosophy (1892), The Conception of God (1895), The World and the Individual (1899, 1901), and The Problem of Christianity (2 vols., 1913); he died on September 14, 1916 in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Expanded Biographical/Historical Narrative

In 1927 the Regents of the University of California approved a recommendation that the main classroom building on the new Westwood campus of the University be named Royce Hall in honor of the great American scholar and philosopher, Josiah Royce. The Department of Philosophy on this campus undertook the task of assembling a Josiah Royce Memorial Collection to be placed in a designated alcove of the building, known as the Josiah Royce Alcove.

Through the generosity of Royce's family and friends, books and articles by and about Royce, originals and copies of some of his correspondence, his master's and doctor's thesis, as well as pictures, clippings and other Royce memorabilia were acquired for this collection. His own large and stately walnut bookcase was used to house the collection.

The Royce Memorial remained in Royce Hall under the care of the Philosophy Department until December, 1954. At this time, because of the program for remodeling Royce Hall, it was transferred to the University Library's Department of Special Collections.

Scope and Content

Collection consists of writings by and about Josiah Royce, copies of his correspondence, books, clippings, photographs, a typescript copy of a journal written by his mother, Sarah Eleanor Royce entitled, Across the Plains (1849), and other Royce
