Historical Note

E! Entertainment Television, or more simply referred to as E!, is an American basic cable and satellite television network; the network is owned by NBCUniversal. As its name implies, it features programming relating to Hollywood and the entertainment world, though its programming has expanded to include reality series, feature films and some series and specials unrelated to the entertainment industry.

The E! Entertainment Television Research Department began building its collection c. 1990. Over 20 years, the collection grew to include approximately 16,000 magazines, 3000 books, 4000 newspapers and 25,000 clipping/photo files covering celebrities, film, television, music and fashion. The collection primarily served the needs of the in-house production teams at E! Entertainment Television and The Style Network. Research and production staff members regularly perused the books, files and magazines in search of information to enhance or help develop the content of E! and Style programs. They also accessed the collection for visual elements (e.g., magazine covers, headlines, etc.) to include in programs.

Scope and Content

The collection represents the picture file collection created by the E!Entertainment Research Library, as well as select titles from the library's tabloid collection.

The collection is organized into the following series:

Series 1. Picture Files
Series 2. Tabloids

Series 1. Picture Files

Scope and Content Note

The Picture File Series contains photographs, negatives and slides of popular culture figures such as actors, directors, musicians, as well as film and television stills.
