Biography/History
There was little information available about Hill-Eubanks Group at the time the collection was processed. The company was created in the 1970s by Michael Hill and Bob Eubanks. The company created several network game shows for daytime television, including All-Star Secrets and The Guinness Game; talk shows including The Toni Tennille Show; and a syndicated version of a revision of You Bet Your Life with Buddy Hackett. For the U.K. Hill-Eubanks created the Eubanks-hosted Infatuation, Games for a Laugh and Celebrity Secrets. Michael Hill served as president of both Hill-Eubanks Group, Inc. and Little Joey Productions.
Scope and Content
Collection consists primarily of production records for television game shows produced by The Hill-Eubanks Group, Inc. Includes scripts, pre-production and production materials such as production schedules, budget information, meeting notes, correspondence, and AFTRA contracts. Projects documented in the collection include All Star Charade, The Guinness Game, You Bet Your Life (1980, hosted by Buddy Hackett), and All Star Secrets. Additionally, there are materials representing the variety program The Toni Tennille Show and projects produced by Little Joey Productions.
Organization and Arrangement
The collection is arranged alphabetically by program title.
