Historical Note

The current Classics Department at UCLA originates from a small department called "Classical Languages," formed in 1919 at the inception of UCLA and consisting of one professor and six classes. In 1922, a second professor joined the department and classes in ancient Greek were added to the curriculum. By 1965, the faculty numbered 12 members responsible for courses in Latin and Greek and another six members responsible for Indo-European studies (Hungarian, Finnish, Celtic, Irish, and the ancient languages of Sanskrit and Hittite), and the department had instituted programs leading to the master and doctoral degrees.

Scope and Content

Record Series 302 contains departmental self-reviews of the undergraduate and graduate programs, eight-year reviews by the Committee on Undergraduate Courses and Curriculum, and eight-year reviews by the Graduate Council.

This is an inactive record series; no additional University records are expected to be added.
