Biography / Administrative History

Harvey Oren Banks (1910-1996) was born in Chaumont, New York on March 29, 1910. He obtained his bachelor's degree in civil engineering at Syracuse University. From there he went on to attend Stanford University where he obtained his Master's degree in hydraulic and sanitary engineering. Between the years 1934 and 1955, Mr. Banks worked as an engineer in different capacities for various bodies including the Cities of Palo Alto and Los Angeles, the United States Soil Conservation Service, and as an engineer for the California Division of Water Resources.

In 1956, California Governor Goodwin Knight appointed Mr. Banks as the first director of the newly founded California Department of Water Resources. Soon after his appointment, Mr. Banks began work on developing the legislation and infrastructure for what would become the California State Water Project. The extensive project protected areas of origin, fostered wildlife conservation and required co-operation between state, federal and local agencies. It was to be financed by a state-wide bond measure, which passed in 1960. The next year, Mr. Banks left the Department of Water Resources and joined the consulting firm of Leeds, Hill, and Jewett, Inc where he served as president and chairman of the board until 1969. He left that year to found his own engineering consulting firm. Except for the years between 1977 and 1982 when he joined the company Camp, Dresser and McKee, he worked as an independent consulting engineer.

In his work as an independent consultant and in his work with other companies, Mr. Banks was involved with projects nationally as well as internationally. Throughout his career he continued to serve the state of California working on the California Water Plan, and for various municipalities throughout the state. Nationally, his major projects include his work on developing, formulating and implementing a long range water plan for the State of Texas, serving as project director on the 6-state High Plains-Ogallala Aquifer Regional Resources Study, and as an expert witness in the litigation between the State of New Mexico and Texas over water rights to the Rio Grande River. He served as an expert witness for both federal and state court cases involving various aspects of water rights and water control and management.

In addition to his consulting work, he also served on state and federal panels throughout the United States and served on international commissions and committees. He published extensively on water resources management and water law. He was elected to the National Academy of Engineering in 1973, and served as an honorary member of both the American Society of Civil Engineers and the American Water Works Association. Among his many awards are: the ASCE Julian Hinds Award in 1976 for his distinguished service in the planning, development, and management of water resources; the 1973 Royce J Tipton Award from the ASCE for his contributions to irrigation; the 1980 Icko Iben Award from the American Water Resources Association for promotion and multidisciplinary planning of water resources. Throughout his career, he was a staunch advocate of environmental values and believed that such values could be harmonized with human needs and with economic growth and development.

In recognition of his outstanding work on the California Water Project, the first pumping plant on the California Aqueduct was named the Harvey O. Banks Pumping Plant.

Mr. Banks worked until shortly before his death from Leukemia in 1996.

Collection Scope and Contents

The Harvey O. Banks Papers consist of files dating from his work as a consultant in various water control, water quality and management projects, water rights cases, as well as allocation and planning projects within communities. The collection encompasses a range of subjects and includes materials such as articles, correspondence, contracts, reports, legal transcripts, papers, publications, photographs, photographic slides and negatives, graphs, maps, blueprints, notes, and legal documents - documenting his role in such projects as Californian's Central Valley Project, the San Francisco Bay and San Joaquin/Sacramento River Delta projects, for various projects with the Contra Costa Water District, and in his role as the Santa Ana River Watermaster. Nationally his large projects include the 6-state High Plains-Ogallala Aquifer Regional Resources Study, Platte River Licensing, and serving as an expert witness for the State of New Mexico in their litigation with Texas over rights to the Rio Grande River. He served as an expert witness in many federal, state and municipal cases and this is documented through court transcripts and legal briefs.

In many instances, his work on projects overlapped. Often, he worked for several clients at the same time. He worked on several large projects, such as the Bay-Delta and Central Valley projects, at the municipal and state levels concurrently.

Arrangement

The papers are subdivided into 10 series. Some of the descriptive titles at both the series and the file levels were titles that Mr. Bank's created. There has been an attempt at clarification where the file heading may have been ambiguous or incomplete. Many boxes were received with materials in their original folder and these files often corresponded to an arrangement scheme. However, a large portion of the materials were loose and in no order what-so-ever. As the collection contains materials that were inter-related, decisions were made during processing to group the materials based upon project and a system of order was created. To some degree, this follows the original arrangement scheme. The materials were divided into 10 series based upon project. They were arranged within the series according to format (i.e. article, correspondence etc.) or by subject. Due to the fact that Mr. Banks often worked for a single agency on multiple projects, over a span of years, many of the series are further sub-divided by the various projects. Unless otherwise noted, the materials were arranged according to format and alphabetically by folder title.

Series VI, Subseries I_XI National Organizations - Small Contracts 1961-1986 1971-1976*Series Scope and Content Summary

National organizations - Small Contracts consists of materials from projects that are smaller in scope and due to their size, did not warrant an individual series. The materials include: correspondence, memos, reports, research notes, financial documents, meeting minutes, case studies, publications, and data.

Arrangement

National organizations - Small Contracts has been subdivided into 11 subseries based on the organization or project. The sub-series are: American Water Works Association, Colorado River System, Delaware River Basin Commission, Environments for Tomorrow, Federal Agencies (Environmental Protection Agency, Federal Energy Administration, National Water Commission, Consulting Panel on Water Resources Planning, Office of Water Resources Research, Office of Water Research and Technology, Office of Water Research and Technology- Interstate Groundwater Management, U.S. Geological Survey) General Electric, International Projects (Bangladesh Water Development Board, Iran National Water Planning Program, United Nations - Turkey), Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission, State of Maine, Utah International, Washington State Department of Ecology.

Series VII, Subseries I_XI State of California 1961-1994 1969-1986

Series Scope and Content Summary

His work in the state of California was on many different projects through several agencies and spanned the entire state. The materials consist of agreements, applications, contracts, correspondence, data, legal papers, legislation, notes, research materials, photographic materials, maps and charts, reports, and studies.

Arrangement

The materials have been subdivided based upon contracting agency, and if applicable, further subdivided based upon the project. The sub-series include: Contra Costa Water district, East Bay Municipal Utility District, Lake Elsinore Task Force, Orange County Water District, Santa Ana River Watermaster, Santa Ana Watershed Planning Agency, Santa Clara Valley Water District, Small Contracts, State Water Contractor's Task Force, State Water Resources Control Board, and State Water Rights Board. The materials have been arranged alphabetically according to type of document.

Series IX, Subseries 1_4 State of Texas Water Development Board 1970-1976 1973-1975

Series Scope and Content Summary

State of Texas consists of various projects for the Water Development Board. The materials consist of contracts and consulting invoices, studies, reports, proposals, progress reports, correspondence, notes, data, minutes, photographic material, and oversized maps.

Arrangement

The Series has been sub-divided into 4 subseries based upon project. The subseries include: Coastal Zone Management Program, Hydrologic Data Refinement Study, Miscellaneous Projects, and State Water Plan. Within each series, the materials have been arranged alphabetically by type of document.

State of Texas Water Development Board - Coastal Zone Management Program

Series IX, subseries 1 1970-1976 1973-1975

Physical Description: 15 folders

Subseries Scope and Content Summary

This subseries consists of materials related to his work in developing the Coastal Zone Management plan. This work focused on the management of a Bay and Estuarine system in a region that has off-shore oil and gas reserves.

Arrangement

The materials have been arranged alphabetically according to type of document. It consists of invoices, progress reports, proposals, reports, and studies.

Series X Oversize materials nd nd*Series Scope and Content Summary

The Banks collection included many maps, most of which were filed with their relevant project. Those maps that were directly connected to a project and thus a series are listed with that series. There were several oversize maps that had been stored separately. Due to the scope of Mr. Bank's work, there are maps in the collection that are impossible to directly link to a particular project.

Arrangement

The oversize maps have been grouped, both intellectually and physically, according to the geographical area depicted on the map. These groups are arranged alphabetically.
