Biographical Note
"Tsuyoshi Hasegawa (長谷川 毅 Hasegawa Tsuyoshi, born 23 February 1941, Tokyo, Japan) is an American historian specializing in modern Russian and Soviet history and the relations between Russia, Japan, and the United States. He taught at the University of California, Santa Barbara, where he was director of the Cold War Studies program, until his retirement in 2016.
Hasegawa was born in Tokyo and received his undergraduate education at Tokyo University. He studied international relations and Soviet history at University of Washington, where he earned his doctoral degree in 1969. He became a naturalized American citizen in 1976. Among his awards and fellowships are Fulbright-Hays Research Abroad (1976–77), NEH grant (2002-03), SSRC grant (2002-03), Rockefeller Belagio Center Fellowship (2011) and a Fulbright Fellowship (2012).[1]
Scope and Content
Files mainly concern events of the first half of the 20th century and include materials on Soviet-Japanese relations, the history of the Pacific War during World War II, the social history of the Russian Revolution, and the evolution of nuclear strategy. Research materials consist primarily of notes, annotated reprints of articles, portions of monographs and other published works, as well as copies of source documents from various archives.
Also included in these papers is research material on the early 19th century Prussian Generalfeldmarschall Gebhard Leberecht von Blücher.
Arrangement
Files have been arranged into three series: 1. English language files, 2. Russian language files, and 3. Japanese language files. Materials are subdivided iteratively across these series by the three books represented in these papers.
