Biography

Hayden V. White (1928-2018) was a literary critic and historical theorist. During his academic career, White made contributions to the study of narrative theory, historiography, and hermeneutics. A central thread of White's research throughout his career was questioning how historical events are constructed through writing and discourse. As a teacher and researcher, White held the distinguished title of University Professor in the University of California system, where he spent most of his career at the University of California, Santa Cruz. He also taught at the University of Rochester, Wesleyan University, University of California Los Angeles, University of California Berkeley, and Stanford University.

White was born July 12, 1928 in Martin, Tennessee. His family moved to Detroit in the early 1930s, during the Great Depression. Near the end of World War II, White enlisted in the Navy and served as a pilot. He then attended Wayne State University (then Wayne University) on the GI Bill, where he earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in History in 1951 before pursuing graduate studies in the same subject at the University of Michigan and earning an M.A. in 1952, with a focus in medieval history. He would complete his doctoral dissertation in 1955, after spending two years in Rome on a Fulbright Fellowship. His thesis, heavily influenced by the sociological concepts and methodology of Max Weber, was on the institutional and ideological causes of the papal schism of 1130.

White started his professional career at Wayne State University in 1955, and then moved to the University of Rochester in 1958. In 1968, he began teaching at the University of California, Los Angeles, where he remained for seven years. At Wesleyan University in Connecticut, he was the Director of the Center for the Humanities from 1973 to 1976. In 1978, White started as a professor at the University of California, Santa Cruz, where he was instrumental in the development of the History of Consciousness program. He was named Presidential Professor in 1985 and University Professor in 1990. After officially retiring from the History of Consciousness department in 1996 (but remaining for advising and some teaching duties thereafter), he taught Rhetoric at the University of California Berkeley from 1996-1997 and Comparative Literature at Stanford University from 1996 to 2008. Throughout his career, White traveled extensively, and was a Visiting Professor in Italy, Germany, France, Poland, China, and Japan.

In 1972, while a history professor at UCLA, White sued the Los Angeles Chief of Police Edward Davis for spending public funds in covert intelligence gathering on college campuses by LAPD police officers. White reported that police officers were registering undercover as UCLA students, attending classes, joining student organizations, and subsequently making reports to the police department about discussions happening in classes and organization meetings. This case, White v. Davis, went to the California Supreme Court in 1975, where the court ruled unanimously in White's favor. White v. Davis set a precedent which established that police cannot engage in surveillance of political activity without reasonable suspicion of a crime.

White's major published works include Metahistory: The Historical Imagination in Nineteenth-Century Europe (1973); Tropics of Discourse (1979); The Content of the Form: Narrative Discourse and Historical Representation, which contains "The Value of Narrativity in the Representation of Reality," (1987); Figural Realism: Studies in the Mimesis Effect (1999); The Fiction of Narrative: Essays on History, Literature, and Theory, 1957–2007 (2010); and The Practical Past (2014). He was elected Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the American Philosophical Society, and received honorary doctorates (Doctor of Humane Letters) from several institutions including the University of Michigan, Wesleyan University, North Carolina State University, the University of Bucharest, Gdansk University in Poland, and the Freie Universität of Berlin.

Hayden White passed away at the age of 89 on March 5, 2018 in Santa Cruz, California.

Processing Information

Paper materials processed by Christian Alvarado in the Center for Archival Research and Training (CART) with assistance from Alix Norton, 2019. Nearly all titles in this collection were derived from the original folder titles as received from the donor. Original folders were used when they were deemed to be serviceable, in order to retain notes that White had written on the folders.

Digital materials processed by Patrick King in the Center for Archival Research and Training (CART), under the direction of Kate Dundon and Alix Norton, 2019. Digital files were transferred from carrier disks and hard drives in 2019. Some files were not able to be transferred from the carrier disks due to technical constraints. Duplicate files, personnel records, and other out of scope files were not retained. Files were not reformatted, and file names are original to the creator. Original disks were retained and are included in the collection.

Content Description

The Hayden V. White papers document White's professional, teaching, and research career from the 1950s to 2017. A significant portion of the collection contains White's research files, which include his notes and writings, correspondence, and collected files on various topics, authors and research themes. A small amount of White's undergraduate and graduate work is included in the research files. The correspondence series contains letters and other materials that were not filed with research files, and mainly contains conference invitations, publication and review requests, communications with colleagues at UC Santa Cruz regarding the History of Consciousness department, other professional communications, documentation on the White v. Davis legal case, and some personal correspondence. Writings and publications include both typed and handwritten notes, manuscripts, and annotated drafts of many of his works, as well as offprints of selected published works. Teaching files include course notes, lecture notes and planning documents, and some lecture audio recordings. White was professionally active in conferences and was invited to speak on many occasions, the preparation and products of which are present in this collection. Digital files include research files, talks, and writings from the mid-1990s to the 2010s.

Scope and Contents

This series includes White's research notes on a variety of different authors, topics, and themes. These categorized files have been preserved from their original order. Folders contain notes that center upon specific research topics such as "Freud," "Violence," or "Narration." The vast majority of these files are handwritten notes, prose, and diagrams that pertain to a given topic, and also include annotated works, and clippings from newspapers and magazines. Within this series, some pieces of correspondence that relate to particular topics have been preserved in their original location. Some of White's undergraduate work is included near the end of this series, as well as unsorted research notes on a variety of topics.

Scope and Contents

This series contains White's professional and personal correspondence. Represented are a variety of organizations, colleagues, and personal acquaintances that contextualize White's work and professional life. This series includes letters, faxes, and printed emails from 1954-2008. Heavily represented in this series are invitations to participate in conferences, requests for contributions to publications, the communications of universities and research centers with which White was involved, and correspondence with students and colleagues. Of particular interest in this series is documentation pertaining to the legal case White v. Davis, handwritten and typed correspondence from renowned intellectual figures such as Jacques Derrida and J.G.A. Pocock, and administrative communications regarding the History of Consciousness Department at UC Santa Cruz.

Talks, Speeches, and Conferences 1964-2009

Arrangement

This series is divided into three sub-series:

Speaking Materials

Conference Files

Audio and Video Recordings

Files in each sub-series are arranged chronologically.

Related Materials

Additional materials related to conferences can be found in the Correspondence series.

Scope and Contents

This series contains speaking scripts and notes from a variety of talks and conference presentations given and attended by White. It also contains relevant correspondence regarding particular conferences when extensive speaking notes are housed in the same folder. A wide range of different events is represented in this series, including talks given at student orientations/commencements, conference papers, and public lectures. White's global presence is manifest in this series, as these materials show professional involvement in institutions both domestically and abroad.

Digital Files 1992-2017

Physical Description: 40.7 GB 34,270 digital files

Conditions Governing Access

Digital files are available in the UCSC Special Collections and Archives reading room. Some files may require reformatting before they can be accessed. Technical limitations may hinder the Library's ability to provide access to some digital files. Access to digital files on original carriers is prohibited; users must request to view access copies. Email is currently unprocessed and unavailable. Contact Special Collections and Archives in advance to request access to digital files.

Organization and Arrangement

The series originates from three sources: Disks (files from portable disks), MacBook Pro (files from White's personal laptop computer), and Humanities (files from White's Humanities desktop computer). Original order of the digital material, including file names and folder arrangement, has been retained without intervention by archives staff.

Additional Collection Guide

For a complete inventory of the contents of Series 7: Digital Files, see the following guide:

Series 7: Digital Files

Physical Characteristics and Technical Requirements

Access to the born digital materials of the Hayden White Papers is available on-site in the UCSC Special Collections & Archives reading room. The software application QuickView Plus is recommended for reading and viewing, and is provided for use in the reading room. Note that some files stored may be inaccessible due to obsolete formats, lack of required software, or file degradation.

Processing Information

The digital materials in this collection were processed by Patrick King, Kate Dundon, and Alix Norton in 2019. Digital files were transferred from carrier disks in 2019 including 46 3.5-inch floppy disks, two ZIP disks, 15 CDs, one 2TB external hard drive, one 500GB external hard drive, and one iMac Aluminum desktop computer. Files on the 500GB hard drive and iMac computer were found to be have duplicated files in the Time Machine backups on the 2TB hard drive; only the files on the 2TB drive containing backups from the two computers were transferred.

DataAccessioner v1.1 was used to capture digital files from carrier disks. Tools used in the analysis of files included DROID and TreeSize Pro to identify duplicate files and calculate file sizes, Bulk Extractor and manual file review to locate personal identifying information, ePADD to review email, and Karen's Directory Printer to create a file directory PDF.

Files including personal identifiable information were deleted, in accordance with UCSC Special Collections & Archives privacy policy. These include financial information; medical, student, employment, and legal records; and other private files. Duplicate files over 5 MB; system and temporary files; internet browsing files; application files; drivers and software installers; and files created by the Macintosh computing environment (e.g. thumbs.db, .DS_Store) were removed. CDs and DVDs with out-of-scope content (e.g., readily available films and music) were not transferred. A number of floppy disks were not able to be transferred due to technological constraints. Original disks were retained and are included in the collection, with the exception of the hard drive containing the Time Machine backups from White's two personal computers.

Processor

Digital materials processed by Patrick King in 2019 in the Center for Archival Research and Training (CART), under the direction of Kate Dundon and Alix Norton.

Scope and Contents

This series includes the contents of White's Macintosh hard drives and portable disks (e.g. floppy disks, CDs, ZIP disks). It contains writing and publications; research files; syllabi and teaching files; conference and lecture activities; photographic material related to family, travel, and academic events; and email correspondence, both personal and professional.

Materials related to White's writing and research include numerous drafts and finished versions of articles, reviews, and talks between 1992 and 2017, some of which would end up in three published collections, Figural Realism (1999), The Fiction of Narrative (2010), and The Practical Past (2014). The topics covered in the digital files span historical theory, 24 historical temporality, intellectual history, and the practice of history writing; modernism, postmodernism, utopia, nationalism, literary criticism, aesthetics, and narratology; Holocaust studies, trauma theory, and witness literature.

Across both the digital files and email correspondence there can also be found dialogues and debates that White had with other scholars; publishers' proofs and editorial conversations
