Organizational History
AIDS Treatment News (ATN) is a publication created by John S. James that investigates and reports on both conventional and experimental treatments for HIV/AIDS and related social and political issues. It is a resource for community-based organizations, government agencies, physicians and scientists, and people with AIDS. ATN began publishing in May 1986 in the form of a biweekly column written by James. The column first appeared in the San Francisco Sentinel, a local gay newspaper, where it was featured for over two years. In January 1989 it moved to Bay Times, a monthly San Francisco lesbian and gay newspaper. Since 1986, ATN has also been published as an independent newsletter. In 1994, ATN had a paid circulation of about 5,000 and a staff of five. ATN stories, leads, and other information are gathered by community informants who pass them on to James and by James himself at meetings and conferences, in-person interviews, and through correspondence, journal research, and telephone conversations. James is the editor, publisher, and main writer of ATN.

Scope and Contents
The collection includes ATN newsletters and other AIDS-related publications and ephemera, ATN operational records and writings and research by James, correspondence and working files, photographs and slides, and audiovisual material and computer media. Correspondence files of note include letters to and from subscribers, people with AIDS (including incarcerated PWAs), physicians and researchers, and others. Correspondence files are restricted. Working files include a significant number of subject files regarding specific drugs and treatments. Photographs of special note include images of AIDS protests and Lesbian and Gay Freedom Day activities. There are a significant number of audiotapes in the collection, including recordings of interviews, conference proceedings, educational broadcasts, and other material. One web site related to ATN has been archived and made available through Archive-It.
